Youthful Burglary Rings Hit

By MARY LEYDECKER

Love of intrigue and a desire to feel important were apparently the motives for two teen-age burglary gangs responsible for innumerable burglaries in the Terra Linda and Santa Venetia areas, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

The first group, involving mostly 13 and 14-year-old girls, has been operating during school hours near Terra Linda High School, sheriff's deputy Jeanette Prandi said.

The second group involves boys from Santa Venetia, who have primarily stolen guns, her husband, Inspector Charles Prandi explained.

Seven youngsters have already been cited to juvenile probation officers and more citations are expected, the officers said.

Those named as involved in the Terra Linda group are Karen Silvestri, 14, of 81 Esmeyer Drive, San Rafael; Deborah Talamantez, 15, of 905 Adrian Way, Santa Venetia; Toni Deem, 13, of 814 Hacienda Way, Santa Venetia; Debbie Takahashi, 14, of 613 Montecillo Road, Terra Linda, and Ronald Dunford, 17, of 35 Drakewood Lane, Novato.

Cited in connection with the Santa Venetia burglaries were John Grupe, 13, of 7 Adrian Way, and John Nelson, 14, of 615 Rosal Way. At least one other boy is believed involved with them.

Another youth, Charles Rooney, 17, of 303 Las Flores Avenue, Rafael Meadows, was cited for concealing stolen property after he was found wearing a stolen gun.

The investigation started about three weeks ago, officers said, when young Grupe sold 11 guns to a family in Santa Venetia. Although the weapons were worth about $100 each, Prandi said, the boy sold the lot for $65.

Then came a report from a fellow student that Grupe was wearing a gun in his belt when he arrived at San Rafael High School.

Grupe, along with Nelson and at least one other youth, have been linked now to two burglaries in Santa Venetia, one at Grupe's own home where he took 10 guns, and one in the San Rafael area, the officers said.

Except for the guns, other stolen property including cameras and jewelry has been recovered, Prandi said.

After two girls attempted to burglarize the Grupe home and were recognized, the officers began to learn of the Terra Linda High group, they said.

Mrs. Prandi said that one of the girl burglars also attempted to make a deal with the daughter of another victim and return stolen property to her.

These girls along with the Novato youth had been cutting school and also going out at lunch hour to burglarize homes

New York Hearing On Angela Plea

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Extradition to Marin County of black militant leader Angela Y. Davis has been postponed until a full hearing tomorrow before the five-man Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court.

(The supreme court in New York is comparable to a California superior court.)

State Supreme Court Judge Arthur Markewich agreed yesterday to the full hearing requested by Miss Davis's attorney, John J. Abt.

Abt is seeking a permanent extradition stay until Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's extraditional approval can be challenged in the courts.

The hearing tomorrow is expected to last possibly two or more days, and if the five judges do not approve extradition after the hearing but grant additional appeal time, the extradition could be delayed until next spring.

Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said today that New York officials told him that it could be next May before Miss Davis is returned to Marin.

Since Bales's withdrawal yesterday from the case because of his friendship with slain Judge Joseph J. Haley and wounded Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, the prosecution will be handled by the California Attorney General's office.)

Miss Davis's lawyer claims that the 26-year-old former University of California at Los Angeles instructor is being denied her constitutional rights by the indictment which has charged her with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy.

The indictment accuses Miss Davis of having furnished the guns for the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Hall of Justice as well as conspiring to commit the crime. The indictment also places her at the Hall of Justice the day before the shoot-out.

House Acts To Bar U.S. Rail Walkout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Commerce Committee swiftly approved today emergency legislation to bar a railway strike at midnight which an administration spokesman warned would create a "state of national emergency."

The bill, cleared by the House group by a 19-14 vote, would prohibit any strike until March 1. The committee also voted down a proposal by rail union leaders that a retroactive temporary pay increase be included in the measure.

The bill, which union leaders have said they would defy, was slated for immediate House action later in the day. The Senate Labor Committee opened hearings on the legislation even as the House group acted.

Enactment of the antistrike proposal urged by President Nixon would not avert the prospect of a strike. Leaders have asserted that members of the four rail unions involved would leave their jobs at midnight tonight even if it meant punitive action.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said: "A strike would have a devasting effect on the economy and the transporting of goods throughout the country. "Our interest and I assume the interest of Congress is to take steps to assure there will not be a rail strike."

A member of the House committee predicted the legislation would fail to head off a crippling strike.

Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., told newsmen: "I think we have voted for a strike. They're just giving everything to management. They're not going to negotiate."

The move to give the 500,000 railworkers a temporary 13.5 per cent pay hike because of the enforced strike delay was defeated in the House committee, 16 to 14.

Committee Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., said he would sponsor the pay increase amendment when the bill comes up on the floor.

"Without any compensation, any recognition, we're taking rights away from the working man and that is just not right," he commented.

In another move, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird told newsmen that the military was prepared to run the railroads if need be. He said emergency contingency plans had been made "but we won't come to that."

Servicemen, reservists and national guardsmen were used last spring during the strike of government postal workers.

The warning of the paralyzing impact of a strike came from Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson who told the Senate committee:

"Further time is needed. Such a strike, during the height of the present holiday season, would so disrupt the nation's mails and transportation of

EMBARGO ON CERTAIN MAIL IS SET

An embargo on all second, third and fourth class mail, effective 4 p.m. today has been ordered by the U.S. Post Office in preparation for the threatened nationwide railroad strike.

San Rafael Postmaster Hugh Cassidy said that the embargo will apply to all such mail addressed for delivery beyond the third parcel post zone, roughly 300 miles.

Second class includes newspapers, third includes advertising and printed matter, and fourth is parcel post — packages, most of them Christmas gifts at this time of year.

A Reversal: Jones Wants Sonoma Job

Acting Sonoma State College President Earl W. Jones has reversed himself and said he would like to be considered for the post of permanent president.

On Sept. 21, after only a few months as acting president, Jones said he would not be a candidate and cited personal and professional reasons.

"On Nov. 2, I informed the chancellor (Glenn S. Dumke) that I had reassessed the Sept. 21 statement . . . and if he and the trustees hadn't found someone they like better, I was willing to be reconsidered . . .," Jones said today.

Jones said he has become more comfortable in the presidency in the past few months, but that the final decision took great consideration.

It is expected that the state College Board of Trustees will consider Jones and other candidates for the appointment at its meeting next month.

A campus presidential selection committee and a committee established by Chancellor Dumke have submitted recommendations to trustees.

Committee Votes For SSS Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Finance Committee voted today to boost Social Security taxes by $2.5 billion next year and by additional billions in future years to pay for one of the biggest increases in benefits in history.

Then by a 12-5 vote the committee submitted to the Senate for debate next week a catchall bill which also would impose trade restrictions, change the nation's welfare laws, and introduce a new government health insurance program for people facing "catastrophic" medical expenses.

Novato Sewer Bond Proposal Is Passed

Overwhelming Majority On $5.5 Million Issue

Novato Sanitary District voters yesterday passed a $5.5 million bond measure to finance sewer improvements by a wide margin: a 72.4 per cent favorable vote.

The unofficial count was 2,371 yes votes and 905 no votes, beyond the required two-thirds margin.

There was a 25.4 per cent turnout of the district's 12,899 registered voters, and the measure received the needed two-thirds or better majority in eight of the 11 polling places.

The district is under orders from the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to improve its system plans to finance the improvements from bond sales.

The bond funds will finance improvements to the Novato and Ignacio treatment plants and construction of a trunk line with an outfall into San Pablo Bay, estimated to cost $3,625,000.

They also will finance an improvement of the upstream system over a 10-year period, estimated to cost $1,425,000.

The favorable vote made the district eligible for state and federal funds, which, if granted, could cut the district's outlay to $2.6 million.

Before the election district directors pledged they would sell only the amount of bonds needed to finance planned improvements.

Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph viewed the favorable vote as "an expression of people's concern about environmental problems and shows they place this high on the priority list."

Engineering work for the treatment plant and disposal system is expected to be completed in mid-March and contracts expected to be awarded in Aguust, he said.

The regional board has set a deadline of October, 1972, for completion of these improvements.

The vote count by polling places was Olive School, 144 yes to 58 no; Novato Community House, 153 to 83; Marion School, 245 to 109; All Saints Church, 283 to 83; Pleasant Valley School 203 to 73; Sinaloa Junior High School, 158 to 58; Hill Junior High School, 183 to 79; Novato High School 297 to 95 Lynwood School, 179 to 94; Pacheco School, 145 to 101 and Church in Ignacio, 336 to 64.

Jury Sentences Thurber To Life

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A superior court jury, after five minutes deliberation today, sentenced Frank J. Thurber to life imprisonment.

The prosecution had sought the death penalty.

The jury of eight women and four men last Thursday found Thurber guilty of first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly.

Thurber's attorney, Nathan Cohn, today presented six witnesses; two to continue his unsuccessful contention that Thurber was innocent, two to testify to Thurber's character of prosecution witnesses.

In addition to the murder conviction, Thurber, 45-year-old member of San Francisco-Oakland Mailers Union, was found guilty Thursday of conspiracy, first degree robbery and first degree burglary.

His union is an affiliate of San Francisco Typographical Union 21 which struck the I-J Jan. 7.

Daly, an I-J computer specialist, was shot in his San Francisco home when two young men invaded it July 4 and demanded money. He died 12 days later.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Pierre F. V. Merle contended that Thurber had recruited the youths to attack Daly, provided them with the .45 caliber murder weapon and took them to and from Daly's home July 4.

In asking for the death penalty today, Merle told the jury that Daly's death was not the product "of simple human frailty or uncontrolled emotion."

It was not, he said, committed "in the heat of passion or with provocation."

"Allan Daly was killed in cold blood," Merle said. "Allan Daly was killed as a result of a conspiracy."

He described the conspiracy as "well calculated, well conceived and well planned."

Although Thurber was not in Daly's home at the time of the shooting, Merle said, "his guilt is not only legally the same as the person who pulled the trigger, but his guilt is morally greater."

Cohn today warned the jurors they would have to live with their penalty decision as he asked them to sentence Thurber to life imprisonment rather than death.

He said the jury had made its guilty verdict on the story of only

Two Riot Counts Are Dismissed

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — Judge William E. Jensen yesterday dismissed two of the misdemeanor charges lodged against two of the seven defendants in the Valentine's Day riot trial.

The judge's action came one day after the defense openedits case in Solano County Superior Court.

The judge, after hearing arguments from both prosecution and defense, threw out a charge of participating in a riot against Nimmes H. Shelton, 41, of San Francisco and of failure to disperse against Alvis D. Bailey, 43, also of San Francisco.

Both Bailey and Shelton, however, are still accused of a variety of charges. Bailey is accused of felony assault of a police officer, participating in an unlawful assembly, remaining at the place of a riot, delaying and obstructing an officer and possession of a blackjack. Shelton remains charged with participating in an unlawful assembly and carrying a blackjack and slingshot.

Judge Jensen ruled the prosecution presented no evidence that Shelton took part in the riotous events of Feb. 14 outside the Independent-Journal, and he said he had concluded Bailey was arrested prior to police orders to a chanting crowd of demonstrators on Julia Street to disperse.

The seven were arrested outside the newspaper during daylong violence which grew out of a rally in support of San Francisco Typographical Union 21. The local has struck the I-J since Jan. 7.

Resumption of testimony in the seven-weeks-old trial was delayed today when attorneys argued in Judge Jensen's chambers over the prosecution's attempts to view potential defense evidence and to obtain names and addresses of prospective defense witnesses.

Span Transit Plan Ripped As Lure To The Suburbs

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — The Golden Gate Bridge District's long-range plan for rapid transit came under strong fire last night as a magnet that would speed the exodus of San Francisco's white middle class.

Emory Curtis of San Francisco, a member of the citizens panel advising the district on the transit plan, said that the result of the exodus would be "the problems of the city would be out of sight and out of mind" to those who left it. Curtis, a black, envisioned a city that thus would be increasingly poor and black.

His criticism was repeated by several others who spoke at the City Hall hearing on the $690,000 transit plan.

Despite widespread publicity and clear weather, only 37 persons attended the hearing. Fewer than 30 were still present by the end of the two-and-half-hour hearing, the first held in San Francisco on the plan.

The plan, drawn by district consultants, proposed five possible systems, with varying combinations of an underwater tube to Sausalito, a second deck on the bridge for transit and a new bridge extend rail rapid transit from Richmond to San Rafael and Novato.

The price tags varied from $495 million for bus rapid transit to $987 million for rail rapid transit.

New York Hearing On Angela Plea

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Extradition to Marin County of black militant leader Angela Y. Davis has been postponed until a full hearing tomorrow before the five-man Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court.

State Supreme Court Judge Arthur Markewich agreed yesterday to the full hearing requested by Miss Davis's attorney, John J. Abt.

Abt is seeking a permanent extradition stay until Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's extraditional approval can be challenged in the courts.

The move to give the 500,000 railworkers a temporary 13.5 per cent pay hike because of the enforced strike delay was defeated in the House committee, 16 to 14.

Committee Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., said he would sponsor the pay increase amendment when the bill comes up on the floor.

Novato Sewer Bond Proposal Is Passed

Overwhelming Majority On $5.5 Million Issue

Novato Sanitary District voters yesterday passed a $5.5 million bond measure to finance sewer improvements by a wide margin: a 72.4 per cent favorable vote.

The unofficial count was 2,371 yes votes and 905 no votes, beyond the required two-thirds margin.

There was a 25.4 per cent turnout of the district's 12,899 registered voters, and the measure received the needed two-thirds or better majority in eight of the 11 polling places.

The district is under orders from the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to improve its system plans to finance the improvements from bond sales.

The bond funds will finance improvements to the Novato and Ignacio treatment plants and construction of a trunk line with an outfall into San Pablo Bay, estimated to cost $3,625,000.

They also will finance an improvement of the upstream system over a 10-year period, estimated to cost $1,425,000.

The favorable vote made the district eligible for state and federal funds, which, if granted, could cut the district's outlay to $2.6 million.

Before the election district directors pledged they would sell only the amount of bonds needed to finance planned improvements.

Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph viewed the favorable vote as "an expression of people's concern about environmental problems and shows they place this high on the priority list."

Engineering work for the treatment plant and disposal system is expected to be completed in mid-March and contracts expected to be awarded in Aguust, he said.

The regional board has set a deadline of October, 1972, for completion of these improvements.

The vote count by polling places was Olive School, 144 yes to 58 no; Novato Community House, 153 to 83; Marion School, 245 to 109; All Saints Church, 283 to 83; Pleasant Valley School 203 to 73; Sinaloa Junior High School, 158 to 58; Hill Junior High School, 183 to 79; Novato High School 297 to 95 Lynwood School, 179 to 94; Pacheco School, 145 to 101 and Church in Ignacio, 336 to 64.

Jury Sentences Thurber To Life

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A superior court jury, after five minutes deliberation today, sentenced Frank J. Thurber to life imprisonment.

The prosecution had sought the death penalty.

The jury of eight women and four men last Thursday found Thurber guilty of first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly.

Thurber's attorney, Nathan Cohn, today presented six witnesses; two to continue his unsuccessful contention that Thurber was innocent, two to testify to Thurber's character of prosecution witnesses.

In addition to the murder conviction, Thurber, 45-year-old member of San Francisco-Oakland Mailers Union, was found guilty Thursday of conspiracy, first degree robbery and first degree burglary.

His union is an affiliate of San Francisco Typographical Union 21 which struck the I-J Jan. 7.

Daly, an I-J computer specialist, was shot in his San Francisco home when two young men invaded it July 4 and demanded money. He died 12 days later.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Pierre F. V. Merle contended that Thurber had recruited the youths to attack Daly, provided them with the .45 caliber murder weapon and took them to and from Daly's home July 4.

In asking for the death penalty today, Merle told the jury that Daly's death was not the product "of simple human fraility or uncontrolled emotion."

It was not, he said, committed "in the heat of passion or with provocation."

"Allan Daly was killed in cold blood," Merle said. "Allan Daly was killed as a result of a conspiracy."

He described the conspiracy as "well calculated, well conceived and well planned."

Although Thurber was not in Daly's home at the time of the shooting, Merle said, "his guilt is not only legally the same as the person who pulled the trigger, but his guilt is morally greater."

Cohn today warned the jurors they would have to live with their penalty decision as he asked them to sentence Thurber to life imprisonment rather than death.

He said the jury had made its guilty verdict on the story of only

SAN FRANCISCO — The Golden Gate Bridge District's long-range plan for rapid transit came under strong fire last night as a magnet that would speed the exodus of San Francisco's white middle class.

Emory Curtis of San Francisco, a member of the citizens panel advising the district on the transit plan, said that the result of the exodus would be "the problems of the city would be out of sight and out of mind" to those who left it. Curtis, a black, envisioned a city that thus would be increasingly poor and black.

His criticism was repeated by several others who spoke at the City Hall hearing on the $690,000 transit plan.

Despite widespread publicity and clear weather, only 37 persons attended the hearing. Fewer than 30 were still present by the end of the two-and-half-hour hearing, the first held in San Francisco on the plan.

The plan, drawn by district consultants, proposed five possible systems, with varying combinations of an underwater tube to Sausalito, a second deck on the bridge for transit and a new bridge extend rail rapid transit from Richmond to San Rafael and Novato.

The price tags varied from $495 million for bus rapid transit to $987 million for rail rapid transit.

Two Riot Counts Are Dismissed

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — Judge William E. Jensen yesterday dismissed two of the misdemeanor charges lodged against two of the seven defendants in the Valentine's Day riot trial.

The judge's action came one day after the defense openedits case in Solano County Superior Court.

The judge, after hearing arguments from both prosecution and defense, threw out a charge of participating in a riot against Nimmes H. Shelton, 41, of San Francisco and of failure to disperse against Alvis D. Bailey, 43, also of San Francisco.

Both Bailey and Shelton, however, are still accused of a variety of charges. Bailey is accused of felony assault of a police officer, participating in an unlawful assembly, remaining at the place of a riot, delaying and obstructing an officer and possession of a blackjack. Shelton remains charged with participating in an unlawful assembly and carrying a blackjack and slingshot.

Judge Jensen ruled the prosecution presented no evidence that Shelton took part in the riotous events of Feb. 14 outside the Independent-Journal, and he said he had concluded Bailey was arrested prior to police orders to a chanting crowd of demonstrators on Julia Street to disperse.

The seven were arrested outside the newspaper during day-long violence which grew out of a rally in support of San Francisco Typographical Union 21. The local has struck the I-J since Jan. 7.

Resumption of testimony in the seven-weeks-old trial was delayed today when attorneys argued in Judge Jensen's chambers over the prosecution's attempts to view potential defense evidence and to obtain names and addresses of prospective defense witnesses.

House Balks On Senate SST Stop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, on a 213 to 174 vote, refused to go along with the Senate's SST ban Tuesday, but left the supersonic transport's fate up to its conferees.

Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., House manager for the $2.6 billion money bill from which the Senate had cut the SST funds said the House-Senate conference would have a difficult time resolving the differences.

The administration has been urging Congress to restore the SST funds, claiming failure to continue development of the 300-passenger, faster-than-sound plane would eventually cost the United States 150,000 jobs.

An administration report was released Tuesday — shortly after the House voted not to go along with the Senate. The report largely supported the Transportation Department's view that while the jet would have problems, the solutions could best be determined by continued research and development.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Teacher Suspended

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The Broward County School Board has suspended a teacher who believes "there just isn't liberty and justice for all in this country" and therefore refuses to pledge allegiance to the flag.

Students at Henry Perry Junior High noticed that instructor Leroy Bates usually was out of the classroom when the pledge was recited each morning. The students notified their parents. The parents went to the school board, which started an investigation culminating in the teacher's suspension.

Benjamin Willis, chairman of the school board, recommended that Bates be permanetly dismissed for insubordination.

"I resent being coerced into reciting the pledge because I feel very strongly that the words are not true," Bates said Tuesday. "We are not an indivisible country."

Pollution Threat

HONOLULU (UPI)—The famous waters of Waikiki are in danger of becoming so polluted beachgoers could not use them a tourist industry official has warned. "This is the most critical problem Hawaii has faced in years," Robert Rinker, executive vice president of the Hawaii Hotel Association, said Tuesday.

Rinker noted that scientists have found evidence of bacterial pollution along the beach and that signs warning of polluted waters are posted at Keehi Lagoon, one and one-half miles from Waikiki.

Rinker said the pollution warnings at Keehi Lagoon, which is bordered by Honolulu International Airport and an industrial area, bring the Waikiki problem into critical focus.

Student Rebels

MANILA (UPI) —A student strike in 1957 at the University of the Philippines is believed the first of its kind in Asia. It was staged to protest the delay in appointing a president for the government-operated university.

Vietnam Rioting

QUI NHON, Vietnam (UPI)—All Americans from infantrymen to military police were ordered off the streets of this coastal city today in an effort to prevent further rioting by civilians protesting the death of a schoolboy shot by a U.S. soldier.

More than 2,000 civilians, mostly students, marched through the streets Tuesday, stoning Americans and overturning cars and trucks. Two Americans were hospitalized with minor injuries and one vehicle was burned, national police said.

The protests followed the shooting Monday of Nguyen Van Minh, 12, by a GI. Military sources said the soldier had fired a warning shot from his M16 rifle when a group of youngsters tried to steal supplies from a truck.

Socialist Coalition

RAWALPINDI (UPI)—Nearly complete returns from Pakistan's first general election indicated today prospects for a coalition government between two victorious Socialist parties in the world's biggest Moslem nation.

Former Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's People's party in West Pakistan and Sheikh Mujibur Rehman's Awami League in East Pakistan won easy victories in their respective areas for 291 seats in the national assembly.

The assembly will write a new constitution governing both East and West Pakistan, separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory.

Model Farm Plan

MANILA (UPI) —The Philippine and Japanese governments have started a joint farming project in two agricultural areas in the Philippines. It involves establishment of a model farm featuring the Japanese method of farm production, and use of modern equipment and facilities for drying, storage and processing of newly harvested rice crops.

Ransom Note Found

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—A five-page document found in a church poorbox may be the ransom demands for the release of Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher, kidnaped Monday while on his way to the office.

Police kept an official silence on the matter. The Swiss embassy said they were waitifg for police to show them the document, written in French, in the hopes it was done by Bucher himself.

Any demands are expected to be for the release of prisoners, as have been the case with four previous political kidnapings in Brazil.

LSD Charged To Los Siete

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Police Department crime laboratory declared Tuesday that LSD was in 19 capsules found in the possession of two men who had been acquitted of murdering policeman Joseph Brodnik.

Police said Jose Rios, 19, and Nelson Rodriguez, 20, looked suspicious when he arrested them Monday and found marijuana and the capsules in their automobile.

Rios and Rodriguez declared they were "framed" on the drug charges.

The youths were among six Latin-Americans acquitted of shooting to death Brodnik on a San Francisco street.

State To Sell Extra Parcel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state attorney general's office has asked the Sacramento Superior Court to allow the state to sell 230 acres of surplus California Exposition land, even though the deal is tied up in a legal hassle

The petition was filed Monday at the request of the state Department of General Services.

Recently the land was advertised for bid by the state, with the Kaiser-Aetna Corp. submitting the high bid of $7.3 million.

Last Calley Witness Tells Of Refusing Order To Shoot

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—The huge man with the thick black hair, mustache and the very mod double-breasted light tan Victorian suit sat facing the five-foot-three lieutenant with a pinkish face, uptilted snub nose and brown hair balding at the temples.

At issue was the disobeyance of an order on the battlefield.

The big man said the little man ordered him to shoot on a field bereft of battle. The soldiers had closed with the enemy at an earthen ditch three or four feet wide and deep. The time was two years, eight months, three weeks and two days ago.

"Lieutenant Calley ordered you to fire?" asked the prosecutor.

"Yes," said the big man. His name was James Joseph Dursi, 23, an unmarried, electrical manufacturing tool supply keeper from Brooklyn. He sat in the witness chair.

Lt. William Laws Calley Jr., 27, stared at Dursi from the defense counsel table at his murder court-martial, his right hand holding a pencil and resting on a ruled yellow pad.

"Why didn't you go through with it?" continued Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, the prosecutor.

"I couldn't go through with it—these defenseless women and kids," replied Dursi.

JAMES DURSI
Refused to shoot

"That's all," said Daniel.

It was the close of the government's case—and the Army's trying one of its own—against Calley. A military court could give him death or life imprisonment if it found him guilty of the premeditated murder of 102 civilians in the Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai 4.

The government contends they died of rifle fire by Calley or at the hands of his platoon members at his order. Dursi was the 35th prosecution witness in 12 days of testimony.

He said the enemy he was asked to shoot was a screaming, crying group of "at least 15, mostly old men, women and children ranging from babies carried by mothers to 5 or 6-year-olds."

"They were diving on top of each other—some of the mothers trying to protect their children."

Arrives Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year's White House Christmas tree, a 20-foot white spruce from Merrillan, Wis., was to arrive at the executive mansion today.

Nicholas Breakspear, Pope Adrian IV, who served from 1154 to 1159, was the only Englishman to hold this office.

Reds Attack Siem Reap In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian Command said today Viet Cong and North Vietnamese gunners bombarded Siem Reap near the ruins of Angkor Wat in a mortar attack that wounded two Cambodian soldiers.

The town remains in Cambodian hands. The Reds control the 10th Century ruins.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said five Americans were wounded Tuesday when a booby trap exploded in Quang Nam.

President Nguyen Van Thieu said today the Saigon government and the United States are considering the possibility of proposing to the Communists a month-long holiday cease-fire.

Mt. Vesuvius, the only active volcano in Europe, last erupted in 1944.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Some Major Changes In Reporting of Farm Income

Here are some more of the changes that may affect your tax return this year. This listing is continued from Monday's column.

The farmer has a new election. He can treat income from insurance proceeds for damage or destruction of his crops as income in the year after the destruction, for tax years ending after Dec 30, 1969.

The cost of developing citrus groves for years beginning since 1969 must be capitalized.

An even exchange of male for female livestock is now taxable.

Conservation or land clearance farm expenses deducted after 1969 are recaptured in full or part as ordinary income when the land is sold if held less than 10 years Farm losses after 1969 which were used to reduce non-farm income will be recaptured as ordinary income on sale of the farm in some cases.

CAPITAL GAINS

Capital gain tax - the maximum rate will be 25 per cent, but only on the first $50,000 of long term capital gains, the excess over $50,000 will be taxed at 29½ per cent for 1970, 32½ per cent for 1971 and while there will be no maximum tax after 1971 because of the 50 per cent of capital gains being taxed at a 70 per cent rate, there will be an effective maximum tax of 35 per cent.

Only 50 per cent of long term capital losses can be used to offset ordinary income.

The $1,000 maximum long term capital loss deduction has been reduced to $500 for married persons filing separate returns, effective for 1970.

After May 27, 1969, on an installment sale, payments collected include any regularly marketable securities issued by the purchaser.

If you elected to change from the accrual to the installment method you can now revoke the change within three years after the return for the year of the election was filed This applies to pre-1970 years if the three year assessment period was open on Dec. 31, 1969

If you sell qualified low income housing after October 9, 1969, and replace that with low income housing either by purchase or building within one year after the first year in which part of the gain was realized, you can defer tax on the gain.

HORSES, CATTLE

Horses and cattle purchased after 1969 and held for draft, breeding, dairy or sporting purposes are considered 1231 property only if you hold them for at least two years.

After July 25, 1969, the sale of letters, memorandums or similar property by the creator or for one for whom they were prepared or created is considered ordinary income.

PROPERTY THEFTS

Starting Jan 1 1970 gains and losses from casualty or theft of business property or capital assets held for more than six months are treated as Section 1231 if a net gain results and ordinary if a net loss results.

Uninsured casualty losses of personal assets are treated as Section 1231 property (reported on Schedule D, Part VII, form 1040).

This listing will be continued in Friday's column.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Some Major Changes In Reporting of Farm Income

Here are some more of the changes that may affect your tax return this year. This listing is continued from Monday's column.

The farmer has a new election. He can treat income from insurance proceeds for damage or destruction of his crops as income in the year after the destruction, for tax years ending after Dec 30, 1969.

The cost of developing citrus groves for years beginning since 1969 must be capitalized.

An even exchange of male for female livestock is now taxable.

Conservation or land clearance farm expenses deducted after 1969 are recaptured in full or part as ordinary income when the land is sold if held less than 10 years. Farm losses after 1969 which were used to reduce non-farm income will be recaptured as ordinary income on sale of the farm in some cases.

CAPITAL GAINS

Capital gain tax - the maximum rate will be 25 per cent, but only on the first $50,000 of long term capital gains, the excess over $50,000 will be taxed at 29½ per cent for 1970, 32½ per cent for 1971 and while there will be no maximum tax after 1971 because of the 50 per cent of capital gains being taxed at a 70 per cent rate, there will be an effective maximum tax of 35 per cent.

Only 50 per cent of long term capital losses can be used to offset ordinary income.

The $1,000 maximum long term capital loss deduction has been reduced to $500 for married persons filing separate returns, effective for 1970.

After May 27, 1969, on an installment sale, payments collected include any regularly marketable securities issued by the purchaser.

If you elected to change from the accrual to the installment method you can now revoke the change within three years after the return for the year of the election was filed. This applies to pre-1970 years if the three year assessment period was open on Dec. 31, 1969.

If you sell qualified low income housing after October 9, 1969, and replace that with low income housing either by purchase or building within one year after the first year in which part of the gain was realized, you can defer tax on the gain.

HORSES, CATTLE

Horses and cattle purchased after 1969 and held for draft, breeding, dairy or sporting purposes are considered 1231 property only if you hold them for at least two years.

A lump sum distribution for 1970 or later, out of employee benefits plans, which was accrued in plan years beginning after Jan. 1, 1970, are capital gain only to the extent that the taxable portion exceeds the employer contributions. If the distribution was employer stock a special rule applies.

After July 25, 1969, the sale of letters, memorandums or similar property by the creator or for one for whom they were prepared or created is considered ordinary income.

Starting Jan. 1, 1970, the transfer of a franchise trade mark or trade name is treated as ordinary income if the seller retains any significant power, right or continuing interest.

PROPERTY THEFTS

Starting Jan 1 1970 gains and losses from casualty or theft of business property or capital assets held for more than six months are treated as Section 1231 if a net gain results and ordinary if a net loss results.

If you had an involuntary conversion you now have two years after the year in which part of the gain on conversion was realized in order to replace your property.

Insurance you receive to reimburse you for extraordinary living expenses because of a casualty to your residence, if received after 1968 is not taxable.

Uninsured casualty losses of personal assets are treated as Section 1231 property (reported on Schedule D, Part VII, form 1040).

San Anselmo Votes To Seek 701 Grant

The San Anselmo City Council last night voted 3-2 to apply for a 701 planning grant and hire a city planner required for the grant.

The grant was opposed by Councilmen Warren R. Perry and Woodrow V Capurro who complained about government strings attached to planning money.

Though favoring planning, the two argued that the cost of employing a planner would be difficult to ..nance. The council, however, decided to hire one anyway at $944 to $1151 per month.

The majority also decided to retain Williams and Mocine as the consultant planners for the $30,690 study, two-thirds of which will be financed by federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The rest is to come from the city in cash and services if the application is approved by the state Council on Intergovernmental Relations.

Three citizens charged the city had sold the plan as a solution to drainage problems, which are not in the plan.

Mayor James F. Reed said the storm drain work must be financed from a 702 grant, not the 701 funds.

With the applied-for funds, the city would make a study of residential areas and the efficiency of city government. Work must be completed by May 15.

Judy Emis, secretary of the San Anselmo Civic Action Committee of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin, read a letter to the Council of Intergovernmental Relations claiming "A large segment of the San Anselmo voters" oppose the project. She demanded a city-wide vote on the issue.

goods and people as to add measurably to a state of national emergency."

His appearance touched off a sharp exchange between Chairman Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who introduced the strike-ban legislation for the White House.

In an opening statement, Yarborough blamed the threatened walkout on the Nixon administration—a charge that Jacis vigorously denied.

"We are here this morning because the President of the United States has not pursued free collective bargaining in this railroad-employees case," Yarborough said

Javits, conceding he might have acted differently had he been President, said that nonetheless Nixon believes he has pursued the right policy. "I do not believe the President of the United States is party to any partisanship, partiality, or conspiracy with management or anybody else," Javits said.

Hodgson indicated that even a two-week rail strike would force unemployment to at least 8.4 per cent and that the rate would soar to 22.1 per cent should the walkout last eight weeks.

A Labor Department assessment of the impact indicated it would have "a spreading or cumulative effect that could quickly spread to all areas of the economy—stalling or halting delivery of nearly all goods ranging from groceries to military hardware."

Earlier, union officials said Congress could stave off a strike by granting workers a temporary pay increase—the key issue blocking an agreement. Union leaders threatened to defy Congress and the courts and go to jail if necessary to uphold "our basic right to strike."

plan was Marguerite Warren of the Sunset Improvement Clubs, who argued any Marin transit shoudl be handled by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. She also suggested that Marin and other northern counties served by transit pay an annexation fee to BART since they would benefit from a link to BART.

Mrs. Warren, a frequent critic of transportation systems in San Francisco, objected that transit to Marin would lose money, thus landing "on the taxpayer's back."

Concluding her 25-minute criticism of the plan, she insisted there "should be coordination among the systems rather than going off on your own."

one person, Richard A. Wamsley.

Wamsley had testified during Thurber's trial that he and Larry Rutherford — both 17, and like Thurber, of San Bruno — attacked Daly at Thurber's request.

"We're living in the era of believable young hoods," Cohn told the jury, as he was cut off by visiting Judge Edmund M. Moor when he attempted to compare the Thurber case to that of six San Francisco youths who were found innocent last month of killing a San Francisco policeman. Their trial was held in the same courtroom as Thurber's.

Pot Possession Charge Dismissed

A marijuana possessing charge against Neil George Cuzner, 18, of Novato, has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court because the contraband seized had not been analyzed by a chemist.

Cuzner was arrested Oct. 30 when officers found him asleep in a car.

Marvin C. Kline of Mill Valley died today after an illness which began five years ago. He was 55.

Kline was born in South Bend, Ind., and worked in that area as a contracting carpenter until 1961 when he moved to 17 Homestead Boulevard, Mill Valley.

A member of Peace Lutheran Church in Mill Valley, Kline supervised construction of the church's parsonage.

He also began construction of the Lutheran Shepherd of the Hills Church in San Francisco, but other contractors finished the job in 1965 when he underwent surgery for a brain tumor.

Too ill to continue as a contractor, he became landscape maintenance supervisor for a Lutheran housing development for the elderly in Napa.

He was a member of Carpenters Union Local 35 of San Rafael.

Surviving are his wife, Lois Kline, who works at Woolworth's in Corte Madera; three sons, Douglas Kline, a student at the University of California at Davis, Don Kline of Joliet, Ill., and Dale Kline of St. Louis, Mo., his mother Esther Kline of Bremen, Ind.; and two sisters Evelyn Barker of Salem, Ore. and Ruth Zechiel of Bremen. He was the grandfather of four.

Memorial service will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Godeau Funeral Home, 41 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco preceded by visiting hours beginning at 3 p.m.

Funeral will be in Bremen followed by burial in Woodland Cemetery, Woodland, Ind.

The family asked that memorial contributions be made to the Good Shepherd Home, Terra Bella, Tulare County, Lutheran Care for the Aging or the American Cancer Society.

near Terra Linda High, Mrs. Prandi said.

They are believed responsible for six burglaries within San Rafael city limits and eight in the county. The girls and their male accomplice were fairly sophisticated, Mrs. Prandi said, wearing gloves when they entered a house.

They knocked at doors of residences first to find out if any one was at home, she explained. If someone answered the door, they asked for a friend whom they knew lived elsewhere.

They usually entered homes by removing or cutting screens from side windows and then opening or breaking the windows.

Mrs. Prandi, who described the girls as "innocent looking," warned householders to call police if youngsters appear at their homes especially during school hours.

The teen-agers stole mainly cash, jewelry and guns, she said, which they sold for a fraction of their value, mainly to older teenagers.

The British Museum contains more than 6 million books.

MRS. HERDIN

Funeral for Beatrice K. Herdin, wife of Karl A. Herdin of San Anselmo, was held today in San Rafael.

Mrs. Herdin, who lived at 50 Rutherford Avenue, San Anselmo, died Saturday at her home following a long illness. She was 87.

A native of Norway, she moved to Minneapolis, Minn., in 1905 and to San Francisco in 1912. She had lived in Marin for about 12 years.

Besides her husband who is a retired painter and restaurant employee, Mrs. Herdin is survived by three sisters, Belle Harstad of Los Angeles, Anna Netland and Karen Wistrand, both of Minneapolis.

Burial was private.

JULIE KIENZLE

Julie D. Kienzle, 82, mother of Marjorie McCreal of San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in Owassa, Mich. and had lived there until moving to her daughter's at 16 Unionstone Drive, 16 days ago. She was a retired telephone operator.

She is also survived by a son, George of Covington, Ky., 11 grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren.

The rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today in Duggans Funeral Chapel in San Francisco. Requiem Mass and burial will be in Covington, Ky.

San Anselmo Votes To Seek 701 Grant

The San Anselmo City Council last night voted 3-2 to apply for a 701 planning grant and hire a city planner required for the grant.

The grant was opposed by Councilmen Warren R. Perry and Woodrow V Capurro who complained about government strings attached to planning money.

Though favoring planning, the two argued that the cost of employing a planner would be difficult to finance. The council, however, decided to hire one anyway at $944 to $1151 per month.

The majority also decided to retain Williams and Mocine as the consultant planners for the $30,690 study, two-thirds of which will be financed by federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The rest is to come from the city in cash and services if the application is approved by the state Council on Intergovernmental Relations.

Three citizens charged the city had sold the plan as a solution to drainage problems, which are not in the plan.

Mayor James F. Reed said the storm drain work must be financed from a 702 grant, not the 701 funds.

With the applied-for funds, the city would make a study of residential areas and the efficiency of city government. Work must be completed by May 15.

Judy Emis, secretary of the San Anselmo Civic Action Committee of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin, read a letter to the Council of Intergovernmental Relations claiming "A large segment of the San Anselmo voters" oppose the project. She demanded a city-wide vote on the issue.

goods and people as to add measurably to a state of national emergency."

His appearance touched off a sharp exchange between Chairman Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who introduced the strike-ban legislation for the White House.

In an opening statement, Yarborough blamed the threatened walkout on the Nixon administration—a charge that Jacis vigorously denied.

"We are here this morning because the President of the United States has not pursued free collective bargaining in this railroad-employees case," Yarborough said

Javits, conceding he might have acted differently had he been President, said that nonetheless Nixon believes he has pursued the right policy. "I do not believe the President of the United States is party to any partisanship, partiality, or conspiracy with management or anybody else," Javits said.

Hodgson indicated that even a two-week rail strike would force unemployment to at least 8.4 per cent and that the rate would soar to 22.1 per cent should the walkout last eight weeks.

A Labor Department assessment of the impact indicated it would have "a spreading or cumulative effect that could quickly spread to all areas of the economy—stalling or halting delivery of nearly all goods ranging from groceries to military hardware."

Earlier, union officials said Congress could stave off a strike by granting workers a temporary pay increase—the key issue blocking an agreement. Union leaders threatened to defy Congress and the courts and go to jail if necessary to uphold "our basic right to strike."

TRANSIT

plan was Marguerite Warren of the Sunset Improvement Clubs, who argued any Marin transit shoudl be handled by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. She also suggested that Marin and other northern counties served by transit pay an annexation fee to BART since they would benefit from a link to BART.

Mrs. Warren, a frequent critic of transportation systems in San Francisco, objected that transit to Marin would lose money, thus landing "on the taxpayer's back."

Concluding her 25-minute criticism of the plan, she insisted there "should be coordination among the systems rather than going off on your own."

one person, Richard A. Wamsley.

Wamsley had testified during Thurber's trial that he and Larry Rutherford — both 17, and like Thurber, of San Bruno — attacked Daly at Thurber's request.

"We're living in the era of believable young hoods," Cohn told the jury, as he was cut off by visiting Judge Edmund M. Moor when he attempted to compare the Thurber case to that of six San Francisco youths who were found innocent last month of killing a San Francisco policeman. Their trial was held in the same courtroom as Thurber's.

near Terra Linda High, Mrs. Prandi said.

They are believed responsible for six burglaries within San Rafael city limits and eight in the county. The girls and their male accomplice were fairly sophisticated, Mrs. Prandi said, wearing gloves when they entered a house.

They knocked at doors of residences first to find out if any one was at home, she explained. If someone answered the door, they asked for a friend whom they knew lived elsewhere.

They usually entered homes by removing or cutting screens from side windows and then opening or breaking the windows.

Mrs. Prandi, who described the girls as "innocent looking," warned householders to call police if youngsters appear at their homes especially during school hours.

The teen-agers stole mainly cash, jewelry and guns, she said, which they sold for a fraction of their value, mainly to older teenagers.

Reviews Mixed On Newsletter

The San Rafael School Reporter, the elementary and high school districts' maiden attempt at a newsletter for this year, got mixed reviews last night.

Eric Colby, publisher of the weekly Terra Linda News, said he felt the San Rafael Board of Education should instead use the "magnificent resources" available to it for reporting district activities in his newspaper, the Independent-Journal and the weekly Pacific Sun.

If the districts must have a newsletter, Colby suggested, the board should set up a panel of professional journalists as advisers. He argued a better solution would be to hire a public relations expert to "stimulate" communication from the board, teachers, students and the community, through the public press and by expanding the circulation of student newspapers off campus.

Board member Paul L. Jones said the board's problem is "to try to inform the public, not give them news — the man on the street knows little or nothing about the schools."

He stressed he felt there is a difference between informing the public and generating news stories.

Dist. Supt. John F. Plank said the newsletter, printed at a cost of $800, was designed to reach every home in the district.

Howard Council of the board's citizens advisory committee, said the newsletter was not meant to cut into the functions of the press, but that the districts needed continual communication with the public, rather than just before bond and tax elections.

One parent in the audience said she was "delighted" with the news-magazine style Reporter. "For the first time the schools were sending something out that wasn't a plea for funds," she said. Another woman disagreed, saying her friends felt "a huge chunk of money" was being spent. She said the board should make clear how much the publication cost.

Citizens committee member Lewis S. Pollock stressed that the schools must inform the public of "the meaning of such things as module scheduling, open campus and the like."

Colby agreed to confer further with the committee and district officials on the problem.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

Prince Charles Embarrassed By President

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles says he was embarrassed by the attention President Nixon showed him during his visit to the White House last summer.

"There can be no greater show of generosity and goodwill on the part of the President towards Britain than to introduce my sister (Princess Anne) and me to his country from the White House," he told a Pilgrim Society dinner Tuesday night.

"While we were staying in the White House, I felt that an opportunity to talk to the President could not be missed, and Mr. Nixon very kindly gave up far too much of his valuable time to speak to me in his office.

"I thought that 20 minutes at the most would be the length of our conversation but to my amazed embarrassment it lasted an hour and a half."

Bicycle Path Due Discussion

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the city hall, will discuss the status of city bicycle path proposals.

The commission will consider striping Doherty Drive to provide a four-foot wide bicycle easement, discuss negotiations with the Tiscornia estate on acquiring an easement for a bicycle path from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road and the integration of Corte Madera's planned bike paths with Larkspur's.

The commission also will consider setting criteria on the amount of land subdivision developers will be required to donate to public use and setting a timetable for master planning of city parks.

Littlewoods declined to name the winner, who said she wanted no publicity.

New Draft On Student Policy Given To Board

San Rafael Board of Education last night was handed a draft of district policy on student rights and responsibilities that was entirely different from the proposed policy that evoked a stormy hearing Oct. 5.

The new draft produced no controversy, but its adoption was postponed to the board's Dec. 22 meeting at the request of the board's two student members, David Plotkin and Charles Peden.

sPlotkin said he had been unable to get a full cross section of opinion on the policy from San Rafael High School students. Peden said Terra Linda High School students "want some kind of security" and felt "somewhat betrayed" that the policy Section 7400 did not spell out student rights.

"They've lost no rights" under the new policy draft, declared Herman L. Childress, board president.

The draft prevented in October by a citizens' policy review committee subcommittee headed by Mrs. Dale L. Brubaker listed 13 student rights and five student responsibilities. Parents declared the policy undermined parental authority and was "presumptuous."

The subcommittee studied scores of proposed revisions and heard community ideas Oct. 27. It redrafted the rights portion of the policy in two paragraphs similar but not identical to that presented last night. Mrs. Brubaker was not present last night.

The latest version stated that, "The board believes that the rights guaranteed to all citizens within the law shall not be denied to any student . . . so long as student conduct does not impair the safety, health, well-being or rights of the individual or of others. The board extends to students those constitutional rights and corollary responsibilities which are consistent with orderly educational processes and goals of the San Rafael City Schools."

The rights section was only one part of a lengthy proposed policy governing students in terms of attendance and transfers, handling of school records, discipline, tutoring, student body activities, fund raising and other problems.

The policy proposal provided that "corporal punishment 'is discouraged' but if a teacher finds it necessary, "shall be allowed . . . with discretion, without anger and with no malicious intent."

Grooming was mentioned only in connection with athletics, where individual coaches were declared responsible for seeing that students' hair is "a length consistent with good practices of health, safety and performance."

Dodge Colt Goes On Sale Jan. 4

DETROIT (UPI)—The new Dodge Colt, Chrysler corporations entry in the minicar race, will have a price tag ranging from $1,924 to $2,225 when it goes on sale early next year.

The Dodge Division of Chrysler announced Tuesday the suggested retail price for the standard two-door coupe would be $1,924. A four-door sedan will sell for $1,995 while two and four-door hardtops will carry a pricetag of $2074. The station wagon will cost $2,225.

The subcompact will make its debut initially in the West starting Jan. 4, Chrysler said. It will join the American Motors Gremlin, Ford Pinto and Chevrolet Vega among American minicars.

Street Salting Violates Law

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—A check of the town's statutes has disclosed Pittsfield has been breaking the law every icy winter day for the past 25 years. City Solicitor Samuel Landa, in response to a resident's complaint on the amount of salt being used on city streets, checked Tuesday and found an ordinance passed in the late 1890s expressly prohibiting salting any public way.

It was established "for the protection of horses' hooves," Landa said. Technically, the city is liable for a $20 fine for every use since it began salting streets in 1945 as part of its ice control program.

Noon Religious Meetings Will Continue Pending Legal Advice

A group of students can continue to hold lunch period, voluntary religious meetings at San Rafael High School while the San Rafael Board of Education seeks legal advice on several questions, the board assured students and parents last night.

The board instructed Dist Supt. John F Plank to ask County Counsel Richard V Godino whether the students may invite nonstudent participants to their prayer and Bible reading sessions, and whether religious literature may be distributed during the meetings.

Plank said he would talk to Godino this morning.

Joyce Acosta, a sophomore who leads the student prayer group, said, "A lot us of have been on drugs," but the religious meetings "have gotten us off." She said the meetings have been held on campus for two years, with no problems until "I made the mistake of signing it up for a minicourse a couple of months ago. Dr. Ellsberg (Alan Ellsberg, San Rafael High principal) said it could not be."

The board members did not react to Miss Acosta's remark about drugs.

Several adults in the audience strongly endorsed the student prayer meetings.

Jane Levinsohn of San Rafael declared, "It has helped these kids and we have not helped these kids.

Marie Woelfl, former San Rafael schools employee, reminded the board that similar prayer meetings were held years ago "with Dr. Ellsberg's permission" and said religious programs are combating drug problems at Lowell High School in San Francisco.

"There are spiritual and moral needs no amount of psychology books can ever solve" for the teen-agers, she said.

Rev Kent A. Philpott, Miss Acosta's foster father, told the board, "We're satisfied and happy with your liberal opinion" after board member Paul L. Jones suggested the meetings continue for students only, until the other legal questions are settled.

'Sounding Board' Topic: Proposed Medi-Cal Cuts

The effects on Marin County of proposed cutback in Medi-Cal payments to nursing homes will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

Guest speakers will be Timothy J. Egan, president of Marin Nursing Home Association; William Slocum, administrator of Marin Convalescent and Rehabilitation Hospital; Dr. Frederick J. Hass, general practitioner and D. Jerome Hansen, state health program advisor for Medi-Cal and department specialist for nursing homes.

Questions phoned in will be answered during the morning broadcast. The program will be repeated by tape recording at 1:45 a.m. Sunday.

Yule Program Slated Friday

A public Christmas program will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday by the students of St. Patrick's School in Larkspur.

"Big Wish" a skit by the first grade opens the show. "Santa and the Children" will be presented by the second grade. "Magic Mirror" or how to keep Christmas, will be the third and fourth grade skit. "One Night In Bethlehem," fifth and sixth grade presentation, shows the effect of Christmas on bandits. "The Bells Ring Out," will be given by the seventh grade and "Herbie's Christmas Present" by the eighth grade.

Robert H. Lee will direct the program.

Reviews Mixed On Newsletter

The San Rafael School Reporter, the elementary and high school districts' maiden attempt at a newsletter for this year, got mixed reviews last night.

Eric Colby, publisher of the weekly Terra Linda News, said he felt the San Rafael Board of Education should instead use the "magnificent resources" available to it for reporting district activities in his newspaper, the Independent-Journal and the weekly Pacific Sun.

If the districts must have a newsletter, Colby suggested, the board should set up a panel of professional journalists as advisers. He argued a better solution would be to hire a public relations expert to "stimulate" communication from the board, teachers, students and the community, through the public press and by expanding the circulation of student newspapers off campus.

Board member Paul L. Jones said the board's problem is "to try to inform the public, not give them news — the man on the street knows little or nothing about the schools."

He stressed he felt there is a difference between informing the public and generating news stories.

Dist. Supt. John F. Plank said the newsletter, printed at a cost of $800, was designed to reach every home in the district.

Howard Council of the board's citizens advisory committee, said the newsletter was not meant to cut into the functions of the press, but that the districts needed continual communication with the public, rather than just before bond and tax elections.

One parent in the audience said she was "delighted" with the news-magazine style Reporter. "For the first time the schools were sending something out that wasn't a plea for funds," she said. Another woman disagreed, saying her friends felt "a huge chunk of money" was being spent. She said the board should make clear how much the publication cost.

Citizens committee member Lewis S. Pollock stressed that the schools must inform the public of "the meaning of such things as module scheduling, open campus and the like."

Colby agreed to confer further with the committee and district officials on the problem.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION — Awarded contract for replacing the Laurel Dell Primary School to Joseph DiGiorgio and Son of San Rafael, low among eight bidders, for $156,886. The bid was 5.5 per cent above district estimates, Plank said.

PLANS — Approved preliminary plans for a new, $95,000 music building containing a small auditorium at Davidson School and new shop facilities at Santa Venetia School.

HEARING — Set a special hearing for 7 p.m. Dec. 22 on the appeal of Terra Linda High School custodian Lewis Watkins from his firing Nov. 19.

Prince Charles Embarrassed By President

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles says he was embarrassed by the attention President Nixon showed him during his visit to the White House last summer.

"There can be no greater show of generosity and goodwill on the part of the President towards Britain than to introduce my sister (Princess Anne) and me to his country from the White House," he told a Pilgrim Society dinner Tuesday night.

"While we were staying in the White House, I felt that an opportunity to talk to the President could not be missed, and Mr. Nixon very kindly gave up far too much of his valuable time to speak to me in his office.

"I thought that 20 minutes at the most would be the length of our conversation but to my amazed embarrassment it lasted an hour and a half."

Bicycle Path Due Discussion

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the city hall, will discuss the status of city bicycle path proposals.

The commission will consider striping Doherty Drive to provide a four-foot wide bicycle easement, discuss negotiations with the Tiscornia estate on acquiring an easement for a bicycle path from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road and the integration of Corte Madera's planned bike paths with Larkspur's.

The commission also will consider setting criteria on the amount of land subdivision developers will be required to donate to public use and setting a timetable for master planning of city parks.

New Draft On Student Policy Given To Board

San Rafael Board of Education last night was handed a draft of district policy on student rights and responsibilities that was entirely different from the proposed policy that evoked a stormy hearing Oct. 5.

The new draft produced no controversy, but its adoption was postponed to the board's Dec. 22 meeting at the request of the board's two student members, David Plotkin and Charles Peden.

sPlotkin said he had been unable to get a full cross section of opinion on the policy from San Rafael High School students. Peden said Terra Linda High School students "want some kind of security" and felt "somewhat betrayed" that the policy Section 7400 did not spell out student rights.

"They've lost no rights" under the new policy draft, declared Herman L. Childress, board president.

The draft prevented in October by a citizens' policy review committee subcommittee headed by Mrs. Dale L. Brubaker listed 13 student rights and five student responsibilities. Parents declared the policy undermined parental authority and was "presumptuous."

The subcommittee studied scores of proposed revisions and heard community ideas Oct. 27. It redrafted the rights portion of the policy in two paragraphs similar but not identical to that presented last night. Mrs. Brubaker was not present last night.

The latest version stated that, "The board believes that the rights guaranteed to all citizens within the law shall not be denied to any student . . . so long as student conduct does not impair the safety, health, well-being or rights of the individual or of others. The board extends to students those constitutional rights and corollary responsibilities which are consistent with orderly educational processes and goals of the San Rafael City Schools."

The rights section was only one part of a lengthy proposed policy governing students in terms of attendance and transfers, handling of school records, discipline, tutoring, student body activities, fund raising and other problems.

The policy proposal provided that "corporal punishment 'is discouraged' but if a teacher finds it necessary, "shall be allowed . . . with discretion, without anger and with no malicious intent."

Grooming was mentioned only in connection with athletics, where individual coaches were declared responsible for seeing that students' hair is "a length consistent with good practices of health, safety and performance."

Dodge Colt Goes On Sale Jan. 4

DETROIT (UPI)—The new Dodge Colt, Chrysler corporations entry in the minicar race, will have a price tag ranging from $1,924 to $2,225 when it goes on sale early next year.

The Dodge Division of Chrysler announced Tuesday the suggested retail price for the standard two-door coupe would be $1,924. A four-door sedan will sell for $1,995 while two and four-door hardtops will carry a pricetag of $2074. The station wagon will cost $2,225.

The subcompact will make its debut initially in the West starting Jan. 4, Chrysler said. It will join the American Motors Gremlin, Ford Pinto and Chevrolet Vega among American minicars.

Street Salting Violates Law

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—A check of the town's statutes has disclosed Pittsfield has been breaking the law every icy winter day for the past 25 years. City Solicitor Samuel Landa, in response to a resident's complaint on the amount of salt being used on city streets, checked Tuesday and found an ordinance passed in the late 1890s expressly prohibiting salting any public way.

It was established "for the protection of horses' hooves," Landa said. Technically, the city is liable for a $20 fine for every use since it began salting streets in 1945 as part of its ice control program.

Noon Religious Meetings Will Continue Pending Legal Advice

A group of students can continue to hold lunch period, voluntary religious meetings at San Rafael High School while the San Rafael Board of Education seeks legal advice on several questions, the board assured students and parents last night.

The board instructed Dist Supt. John F Plank to ask County Counsel Richard V Godino whether the students may invite nonstudent participants to their prayer and Bible reading sessions, and whether religious literature may be distributed during the meetings.

Plank said he would talk to Godino this morning.

Joyce Acosta, a sophomore who leads the student prayer group, said, "A lot us of have been on drugs," but the religious meetings "have gotten us off." She said the meetings have been held on campus for two years, with no problems until "I made the mistake of signing it up for a minicourse a couple of months ago. Dr. Ellsberg (Alan Ellsberg, San Rafael High principal) said it could not be."

The board members did not react to Miss Acosta s remark about drugs.

Several adults in the audience strongly endorsed the student prayer meetings.

Jane Levinsohn of San Rafael declared, "It has helped these kids and we have not helped these kids.

Marie Woelfl, former San Rafael schools employee, reminded the board that similar prayer meetings were held years ago "with Dr. Ellsberg's permission" and said religious programs are combating drug problems at Lowell High School in San Francisco.

"There are spiritual and moral needs no amount of psychology books can ever solve" for the teen-agers, she said.

Rev Kent A. Philpott, Miss Acosta s foster father, told the board. "We're satisfied and happy with your liberal opinion" after board member Paul L. Jones suggested the meetings continue for students only, until the other legal questions are settled.

'Sounding Board' Topic: Proposed Medi-Cal Cuts

The effects on Marin County of proposed cutback in Medi-Cal payments to nursing homes will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

Hass, general practitioner and D. Jerome Hansen, state health program advisor for Medi-Cal and department specialist for nursing homes.

Questions phoned in will be answered during the morning broadcast. The program will be repeated by tape recording at 1:45 a.m. Sunday.

Steel Wire Fences To Go Up At Both Ends Of Civic Center

Steel wire fences will go up at both ends of the Marin Civic Center building to prevent intruders from clambering up the hillsides to gain access.

County Administrator Alan Bruce disclosed that the fences and iron grillwork along portions of the balconies are part of the physical security measures authorized by the Marin County Board of Supervisors immediately after the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom in the new Hall of Justice.

The proposed fencing and grillwork drew a blast from Lothar Salin, chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission. He charged that they "would only contribute to the police-state effect already in existence."

On Oct. 13, the supervisors approved an expenditure of up to $300,000 to add a new security force to guard all entrances and to seal up hillside accesses on the quarter-mile long structure which spans three hils.

The fences and grillwork are expected to cost between $40,000 and $50,000.

A steel wire fence will be built around the north end of the Hall of Justice where the County Jail and exercise yard for prisoners is located. Bruce said this will serve a double purpose — keep intruders from stepping from the hillside onto the balconies on the court level and to serve as an evacuation area for jail inmates in case the building must be cleared.

Another fence will be erected on the south end where the hillside leads into the fourth floor of the Administration Building where the county health department offices are located.

In addition, balconies that are within 10 feet drop to hillsides will be sealed off by steel grillwork identical in pattern and color to those installed when the buildings were first built.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

YOUTH COMMISSION — Appointed Sheila Moloney of 1 Melody Lane, Mill Valley, to fill a vacancy on the Marin County Youth Commission. She is a junior at San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow.

ROAD DIVISION — Approved formation of the Paradise Estates Permanent Road Division in the 350-acre Paradise Estates on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard a mile and a half south of Inverness. This will allow residents to tax themselves for road maintenance.

TREE — Authorized the county Department of Public Works to remove a large tree in a creek area off Manor in Greenbrae at a cost not to exceed $500. The tree, on county property, is in danger of collapsing.

OPEN AREA — Rezoned as open-area district a two-acre strip of land, formerly a railroad right-of-way, now owned by Marin Municipal Water District along Fern Canyon Road outside Mill Valley.

MAUCH SUBDIVISION — Unanimously denied landowner Oliver Mauch's appeal against the county planning commission's denial of Mauch's plans for an eight-lot subdivision on two acres adjoining Wild Horse Valley, west of Novato.

INSURANCE — Dropped the idea of self-insuring the county staff on workmen's compensation. The county administrator's office reported that the $11,000 annual savings on premiums would be more than offset by one incident such as the wounding of Deputy Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas in the Aug. 7 Marin Civic Center shootout. Were it possible to build reserves of more than $200,000, self-insurance might be feasible, but county finances make this unlikely, the board agreed.

FOOD INSPECTION — In response to bakery and restaurant owners' appeals to board members, directed the county staff to study revision of annual food establishment health inspection fees on a basis of the size of the business. A flat fee is now charged, regardless of the establishment's size.

AUDITORIUM — Accepted as complete except for agreed minor jobs, the work by contractors Wright and Wright and Oretsky on the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The contractors also will install the seating at a cost of $43,249.

ELECTION — Rescheduled an election on forming a Marin County Fire Protection District from March 2 to April 20 to coincide with school district elections, as an economy move.

CONVALESCENT HOSPITALS — Approved policy drafted by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin for regulation of future long term care facilities or expansion of present facilities.

AGRICULTURAL PRESERVES — Granted Planning Director Werner von Gundell extension of time for a report on agricultural preserves, to Jan. 5.

BOLINAS LIBRARY — Approved transfer of $300 from county library reserves to rent existing Bolinas branch library quarters through February.

HIRINGS — Approved appointment of Linda Jarvis as cashier in the treasurer-tax collector office at $510 per month; Marilyn Marklinger as switchboard operator, communications, at $510; Elsa H. Kellmann, municipal court deputy clerk III, $619 per month; Marilyn A. De Barrows, deputy sheriff I, building security, $700; Alan J Levine, deputy probation officer II, $828; Susette E. Westsmith, group counselor II, juvenile hall, $809; Daniel E. Lewis, group counselor II, juvenile hall, $828, and Philip G. MacDonald, library clerk, county library, $498.

DELEGATED CONTRACTS — Approved agreements by Bruce to obtain county workshop speakers, homemaker services and other items during November.

AMBULANCE — Retroactively approved transfer of county ambulance contract from Bay Cities Ambulance to United Ambulance Co. as of Nov. 15 rather than Nov 16.

UNDERGROUND — As recommended by the underground utilities committee, set a hearing on formation of an underground utilities district on Ridge Road, Muir Woods Park, for Dec 22.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the final subdivision map for Marinview Unit 3, in the Tamalpais Valley area.

RADIOS — Approved purchase of three solid state microwave radio relay units from the only bidder, Motorola Co., at a cost of $21,832.65.

WELFARE DEFICIT — Were told by Betty L. Presley, director of public social services, that the county faces a $100,000 deficit by June, largely as a result of an increase in the number of mothers receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Supervisors asked her to watch spending closely and asked the county administrator to see where funds could be found to meet the deficit.

GAS MONEY — Unanimously backed a charge by Supervisor Michael Wornum that the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau had "done a real disservice to Marin" by asking the Golden Gate Bridge District to divert money earmarked for ferries to improvement of approaches to the bridge. The board urged top priority to bus and ferry service.

Insanity Plea Is Entered

Reginald Bruce Johnson, 22, of Novato, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to charges of twice burglarizing a Novato residence in August.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court appointed two psychiatrists to examined Johnson and asked for their reports to be given to the court on Dec. 28.

Johnson is accused of twice taking auto parts from a house at 1290 Lynwood Drive.

Fingerprinting is not new; it was used in ancient China.

CSD Proposal Due At Meeting

Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association will ask for permission to set up a Sleepy Hollow Community Services District at tonight's meeting of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission.

The commissinn will meet at 8 o'clock in the Ross Town Hall.

The Sleepy Hollow Community Services District, if formed, would absorb the existing Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District and provide other services such as recreation, large debris boxes for general community use, and possibly extra police protection if the voters in the district want it.

Shoot-Out Legislation To Be Asked In Bill Package

During the 1971 legislative session, Marin County will introduce 14 bills, including three that are directly related to the shootout and bombing at the new Hall of Justice.

Marin County Board of Supervisors agreed to the list and asked County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney to draw up the bills for introduction by Marin legislators.

The bills related to the Aug. 7 kidnap-shoot-out and the Oct. 8 courtroom bombing would:

1. Create some type of state insurance fund to provide building damage and liability insurance for public buildings. The insurance carrier on the Civic Center building is threatening a drastic increase in the deductible or a pullout because of the bomb damage.

2. Prohibit an insurance carrier from making unilateral changes in the insurance policy, or cancelling a policy without cause.

3. Amend the Ralph M. Brown Act to permit a city council or board of supervisors to meet in closed session to discuss protection of citizens or property from revolutionary or conspiratorial attack.

All three were approved without comment yesterday by the supervisors. The Marin Council for Civic Affairs submitted a letter of protest on the proposed amendment to the Brown Act, charging that the bill would give every local government a pretext for meeting in secret for the purpose of providing greater security for its citizens.

A bill suggested by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr and Michael Wornum won unanimous backing. This would give tax relief when homes are destroyed by fire or calamity and would include flood and slide insurance in the standard residential insurance coverage.

Arrigoni also wanted a bill to set a maximum five-cent tax ceiling in a sub-zone of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone. However, supervisors delayed action on this for a week because Maloney said a specific five-cent ceiling might be too restrictive for other subzones, which may want a 7 or an 8-cent tax.

Other county bills approved for introduction included these:

Define violations of building and sanitation codes as infractions rather than misdemeanors, triable by a judge without a jury, and punishable by fine only.

Provide full state reimbursement to counties for losses from the business inventory tax exemptions.

Amend the Welfare and Institutions Code to reduce administrative costs.

Establish parental responsibility for prenatal and medical costs of unwed mothers and fathers.

Establish state financial responsibility for basic living costs of unemployed paroles from state prisons who are participating in vocational rehabilitation.

Amend the state Penal Code to require partial repayment of public defense costs where defendant has ability to pay.

Require annual legislation to adjust salaries of municipal court attaches.

Provide uniform statewide standards to identify bicycle paths.

Authorize the county supervisors to designate a non-supervisor as its representative on the mental health advisory board.

Name Omitted From Bar List

The name of David B. Paynter of 1827 Mar West Street, Tiburon, was omitted from a list of applicants who passed the fall bar examination published in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

The name of Peter J. Muzio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Muzio of 37 Marquard Avenue, San Rafael, was not included in the list of Marin and Southern Sonoma county residents.

John F. Fahy, postmaster, said yesterday the substation will be open through Dec. 19 except Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Located at the United Travel service office, the branch will accept outgoing mail and sell stamps, Fahy said.

Operas At U.C. Are Called Off

The Opera Theater of Dominican College has canceled two operas which it had scheduled for Saturday at the University of California in Berkeley because it was impossible to reassemble all the musicians.

It had scheduled Ravel's "L'Enfant el les Sortileges" and Poulenc's "La Voic Humaine", said Sister Antoinette.

Steel Wire Fences To Go Up At Both Ends Of Civic Center

Steel wire fences will go up at both ends of the Marin Civic Center building to prevent intruders from clambering up the hillsides to gain access.

County Administrator Alan Bruce disclosed that the fences and iron grillwork along portions of the balconies are part of the physical security measures authorized by the Marin County Board of Supervisors immediately after the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom in the new Hall of Justice.

The proposed fencing and grillwork drew a blast from Lothar Salin, chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission. He charged that they "would only contribute to the police-state effect already in existence."

On Oct. 13, the supervisors approved an expenditure of up to $300,000 to add a new security force to guard all entrances and to seal up hillside accesses on the quarter-mile long structure which spans three hils.

The fences and grillwork are expected to cost between $40,000 and $50,000.

A steel wire fence will be built around the north end of the Hall of Justice where the County Jail and exercise yard for prisoners is located. Bruce said this will serve a double purpose — keep intruders from stepping from the hillside onto the balconies on the court level and to serve as an evacuation area for jail inmates in case the building must be cleared.

Another fence will be erected on the south end where the hillside leads into the fourth floor of the Administration Building where the county health department offices are located.

In addition, balconies that are within 10 feet drop to hillsides will be sealed off by steel grillwork identical in pattern and color to those installed when the buildings were first built.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

YOUTH COMMISSION — Appointed Sheila Moloney of 1 Melody Lane, Mill Valley, to fill a vacancy on the Marin County Youth Commission. She is a junior at San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow.

ROAD DIVISION — Approved formation of the Paradise Estates Permanent Road Division in the 350-acre Paradise Estates on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard a mile and a half south of Inverness. This will allow residents to tax themselves for road maintenance.

TREE — Authorized the county Department of Public Works to remove a large tree in a creek area off Manor in Greenbrae at a cost not to exceed $500. The tree, on county property, is in danger of collapsing.

OPEN AREA — Rezoned as open-area district a two-acre strip of land, formerly a railroad right-of-way, now owned by Marin Municipal Water District along Fern Canyon Road outside Mill Valley.

MAUCH SUBDIVISION — Unanimously denied landowner Oliver Mauch's appeal against the county planning commission's denial of Mauch's plans for an eight-lot subdivision on two acres adjoining Wild Horse Valley, west of Novato.

INSURANCE — Dropped the idea of self-insuring the county staff on workmen's compensation. The county administrator's office reported that the $11,000 annual savings on premiums would be more than offset by one incident such as the wounding of Deputy Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas in the Aug. 7 Marin Civic Center shootout. Were it possible to build reserves of more than $200,000, self-insurance might be feasible, but county finances make this unlikely, the board agreed.

FOOD INSPECTION — In response to bakery and restaurant owners' appeals to board members, directed the county staff to study revision of annual food establishment health inspection fees on a basis of the size of the business. A flat fee is now charged, regardless of the establishment's size.

AUDITORIUM — Accepted as complete except for agreed minor jobs, the work by contractors Wright and Wright and Oretsky on the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The contractors also will install the seating at a cost of $43,249.

ELECTION — Rescheduled an election on forming a Marin County Fire Protection District from March 2 to April 20 to coincide with school district elections, as an economy move.

CONVALESCENT HOSPITALS — Approved policy drafted by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin for regulation of future long term care facilities or expansion of present facilities.

AGRICULTURAL PRESERVES — Granted Planning Director Werner von Gundell extension of time for a report on agricultural preserves, to Jan. 5.

BOLINAS LIBRARY — Approved transfer of $300 from county library reserves to rent existing Bolinas branch library quarters through February.

HIRINGS — Approved appointment of Linda Jarvis as cashier in the treasurer-tax collector office at $510 per month; Marilyn Marklinger as switchboard operator, communications, at $510; Elsa H. Kellmann, municipal court deputy clerk III, $619 per month; Marilyn A. De Barrows, deputy sheriff I, building security, $700; Alan J Levine, deputy probation officer II, $828; Susette E. Westsmith, group counselor II, juvenile hall, $809; Daniel E. Lewis, group counselor II, juvenile hall, $828, and Philip G. MacDonald, library clerk, county library, $498.

DELEGATED CONTRACTS — Approved agreements by Bruce to obtain county workshop speakers, homemaker services and other items during November.

AMBULANCE — Retroactively approved transfer of county ambulance contract from Bay Cities Ambulance to United Ambulance Co. as of Nov. 15 rather than Nov 16.

UNDERGROUND — As recommended by the underground utilities committee, set a hearing on formation of an underground utilities district on Ridge Road, Muir Woods Park, for Dec 22.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the final subdivision map for Marinview Unit 3, in the Tamalpais Valley area.

RADIOS — Approved purchase of three solid state microwave radio relay units from the only bidder, Motorola Co., at a cost of $21,832.65.

WELFARE DEFICIT — Were told by Betty L. Presley, director of public social services, that the county faces a $100,000 deficit by June, largely as a result of an increase in the number of mothers receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Supervisors asked her to watch spending closely and asked the county administrator to see where funds could be found to meet the deficit.

GAS MONEY — Unanimously backed a charge by Supervisor Michael Wornum that the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau had "done a real disservice to Marin" by asking the Golden Gate Bridge District to divert money earmarked for ferries to improvement of approaches to the bridge. The board urged top priority to bus and ferry service.

Insanity Plea Is Entered

Reginald Bruce Johnson, 22, of Novato, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to charges of twice burglarizing a Novato residence in August.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court appointed two psychiatrists to examined Johnson and asked for their reports to be given to the court on Dec. 28.

Johnson is accused of twice taking auto parts from a house at 1290 Lynwood Drive.

CSD Proposal Due At Meeting

Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association will ask for permission to set up a Sleepy Hollow Community Services District at tonight's meeting of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission.

The commissinn will meet at 8 o'clock in the Ross Town Hall.

The Sleepy Hollow Community Services District, if formed, would absorb the existing Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District and provide other services such as recreation, large debris boxes for general community use, and possibly extra police protection if the voters in the district want it.

Fingerprinting is not new; it was used in ancient China.

Shoot-Out Legislation To Be Asked In Bill Package

During the 1971 legislative session, Marin County will introduce 14 bills, including three that are directly related to the shoot-out and bombing at the new Hall of Justice.

Marin County Board of Supervisors agreed to the list and asked County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney to draw up the bills for introduction by Marin legislators.

The bills related to the Aug. 7 kidnap-shoot-out and the Oct. 8 courtroom bombing would:

1. Create some type of state insurance fund to provide building damage and liability insurance for public buildings. The insurance carrier on the Civic Center building is threatening a drastic increase in the deductible or a pullout because of the bomb damage.

2. Prohibit an insurance carrier from making unilateral changes in the insurance policy, or cancelling a policy without cause.

3. Amend the Ralph M. Brown Act to permit a city council or board of supervisors to meet in closed session to discuss protection of citizens or property from revolutionary or conspiratorial attack.

All three were approved without comment yesterday by the supervisors. The Marin Council for Civic Affairs submitted a letter of protest on the proposed amendment to the Brown Act, charging that the bill would give every local government a pretext for meeting in secret for the purpose of providing greater security for its citizens.

A bill suggested by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Michael Wornum won unanimous backing. This would give tax relief when homes are destroyed by fire or calamity and would include flood and slide insurance in the standard residential insurance coverage.

Arrigoni also wanted a bill to set a maximum five-cent tax ceiling in a sub-zone of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone. However, supervisors delayed action on this for a week because Maloney said a specific five-cent ceiling might be too restrictive for other subzones, which may want a 7 or an 8-cent tax.

Other county bills approved for introduction included these:

Define violations of building and sanitation codes as infractions rather than misdemeanors, triable by a judge without a jury, and punishable by fine only.

Provide full state reimbursement to counties for losses from the business inventory tax exemptions.

Amend the Welfare and Institutions Code to reduce administrative costs.

Establish parental responsibility for prenatal and medical costs of unwed mothers and fathers.

Establish state financial responsibility for basic living costs of unemployed paroles from state prisons who are participating in vocational rehabilitation.

Amend the state Penal Code to require partial repayment of public defense costs where defendant has ability to pay.

Require annual legislation to adjust salaries of municipal court attaches.

Provide uniform statewide standards to identify bicycle paths.

Authorize the county supervisors to designate a non-supervisor as its representative on the mental health advisory board.

Name Omitted From Bar List

The name of David B. Paynter of 1827 Mar West Street, Tiburon, was omitted from a list of applicants who passed the fall bar examination published in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

The name of Peter J. Muzio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Muzio of 37 Marquard Avenue, San Rafael, was not included in the list of Marin and Southern Sonoma county residents.

Branch To Help With Yule Rush

The San Anselmo Post Office will open a branch office tomorrow at the Red Hill Shopping Center to help handle the volume of Christmas mail.

John F. Fahy, postmaster, said yesterday the substation will be open through Dec. 19 except Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Located at the United Travel Service office, the branch will accept outgoing mail and sell stamps, Fahy said.

Operas At U.C. Are Called Off

The Opera Theater of Dominican College has canceled two operas which it had scheduled for Saturday at the University of California in Berkeley because it was impossible to reassemble all the musicians.

It had scheduled Ravel's "L'-Enfant el les Sortileges" and Poulenc's "La Voic Humaine", said Sister Antoinette.

ORIGINAL DESIGNS — Floyd Ross of Petaluma, has designed new sets and costumes for this year's performance of the opera, "Hansel and Gretel" at Sonoma State College. Ross is coordinator of the college Center for Performing Arts.

WICKED WITCH — Sonoma State student Berta Wright of Sebastopol will sing the witch's role in the Opera Workshop production of "Hansel and Gretel" scheduled for Dec. 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Sonoma State Sets 'Hansel And Gretel'

The classic fairy tale opera, "Hansel and Gretel" will be presented by the Sonoma State College Opera Workshop on Dec. 16, 17, 18 and 19 in Ives Hall of Music.

Evening performances will start at 7:30 p.m. and matinees are scheduled for 1 p.m. on Dec. 16 and 17 and at 2 p.m. on Dec. 19. The Dec. 17 matinee performance is already sold out.

Reservations may be made with the Office of Educational Services.

Dr. Peggy Donovan-Jeffry is directing the production with original costumes and stage designs by Floyd Ross of Petaluma, coordinator for the center for performing arts at the college.

The production will feature a gingerbread chorus of 25 children from Sonoma County schools. Members of the college dance workshop will perform roles of angels and witches.

Local students in the production include Kristine Unsicker of Cotati, Almavida Rayos del Sol of Petaluma and Patricia Landsowne of Rohnert Park.

102 Cases Of Strep Reported

Strep infections with 102 cases reported last week, led all other communicable diseases, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

Other diseases reported were 23 cases of gonorrhea, five of syphillis and four of infectitious hepatitis.

No Charges In Burglary Probe

No charge has been filed in Marin Municipal Court against Anthony Luchessi, and Steve Constantin Negoesco, both 18 and of Corte Madera, who were arrested Thursday on suspicion of commiting a burglary Wednesday in San Anselmo.

Luchessi, who is also known as Tony Corbello, has been charged, however, with burglarizing and concealing property stolen from a Kentfield residence on Nov. 3. He is to return to court Friday to enter pleas to those charges.

The shrimp catch along the Texas coastline ranges in value from $38 million to $48 million a year.

You Are Invited to a Public Hearing

The Golden Gate Bridge,
Highway and Transportation District
Is Holding a "Town Meeting" in San Rafael on Thursday, December 10

Under a mandate from the California State Legislature, the Golden Gate Bridge Highway and Transportation District is studying ways to meet future transportation needs in the District. As soon as the engineering and environmental reports —just completed by the District's consultants—have been reviewed by the public, the District's directors will prepare a recommendation for the State Legislature, centering on a single Transportation Facilities Plan.

To encourage the broadest possible public dialogue, the District directors are holding a series of 20 meetings throughout the District. At each meeting, the District management and its consultants will present reports on five different alternatives for a long-range plan. They will discuss routes, types of transit systems, costs, social and environmental factors, and the other aspects of their extensive studies. They will answer questions. EVERYBODY WELCOMES gifts of homemade Christmas cookies to serve friends through the holiday season. Two recipes for good Christmas cookies are Maple Nut Cooky Canes and Almond Crescents. Both are attractive to serve on a platter with coffee or punch when guests drop by.

It's Time To Bake Those Christmas Cookie Gifts

Christmas is the most universally celebrated holiday. It is a festival that is shared by people all over the world, both from a religious and a social point of view.

The traditional Christmas festivities in America are a blend of many foreign customs — Spanish, German, French, English and Scandinavian, to name a few.

The use of a decorated evergreen dates back to the Eighth Century in Northern Europe. From Czech and Bohemian immigrants we get our interpretation of yuletide as a time to reward "good children" and punish the bad.

Our Santa Claus has many foreign counterparts. Pelznickel, Tomten, St. Nicholas, Kris Kringle, Sonner Klas and Sunder Klaas are international versions of our jolly fat man in the red suit.

"Merry Christmas" becomes "Joyeux Noel" in France, "Buon Natale" in Italy, "Feliz Navidad" in Spain and "Frohliche Weinachten" in Germany. The holiday greeting, in any language, expresses joy and good will.

Christmas cookies are popular holiday treats in many countries. Pfeffernusse, Norwegian Kringle and Swedish Spritz are classic European favorites which have been adopted by Americans.

Here are two recipes which you will want to add to your holiday favorites. Maple Nut Cookie Canes and Almond Crescents are delicious and fun to make. The cookie canes owe their nutty goodness to ground walnuts. For a festive touch, they can be sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. The crescents are coated with a mixture of sugar, cinnamon and finely chopped almonds.

MAPLENUT COOKIECANES

½ cup (1 stick) margarine, softened
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1 egg yolk
¼ teaspoon imitation maple flavor
1 cup ground English walnuts
1 cup unsifted flour

Cream margarine and sugar until very light. Thoroughly beat in egg, egg yolk and maple flavor. Blend in ground English Walnuts and flour. Chill thoroughly, at least 1 hour.

Turn a small amount of dough out onto a lightly floured board. Refrigerate remaining dough. Gently roll 1 level tablespoon dough into a 5-inch rope. Place ungreased baking sheet curving one end to form cane. Repeat with remaining dough.

Bake at 400 F. 10 to 12 minutes, or until edges are lightly browned. Remove from baking sheets and place on wire racks to cool. When cool, if desired, coat with confectioners' sugar. Makes about 3 dozen cookies.

ALMOND CRESCENTS

½ cup (1 stick) margarine, softened
2-3 cup sugar
2 hard cooked egg yolks, sieved
1 uncooked egg yolk
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1¼ cups unsifted flour
1-3 cup very finely chopped blanched almonds
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 egg white, slightly beaten

Cream margarine and 1-3 cup sugar until light. Add sieved yolks and uncooked yolk; beat until smooth. Blend in lemon peel and flour. Chill until firm, about 1 hour.

Meanwhile, mix together blanched almonds, remaining 1-3 cup sugar and cinnamon.

Roll 1 tablespoon dough into 2½-inch rope. Curve to form half-moon. Flatten to about ⅛-inch thickness; taper ends. Brush both sides with beaten egg white, then lightly coat with sugar-nut mixture.

Bake at 375 F. for 12 to 14 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2½ to 3 dozen cookies.

Steak, Blue Cheese Into Quick Sandwich

This is the season for informal entertaining. The holidays seem to encourage good fellowship and people will drop in to visit on short notice.

With this in mind, make sure that you will have ingredients on hand for quick repasts.

For instance, try this hot sandwich specialty featuring tenderloin tips topped with tangy blue cheese.

A slice of toasted rye is topped-off with tenderloin tips in a mushroom wine sauce and accented with American blue cheese. The sandwich is placed under the broiler until the cheese is melted and bubbly; then served with fresh vegetable garnishes or cole slaw and lots of hot beverages to drink.

The resulting subtle, sharp flavor of the blue-marbled cheese produces a delightfully different taste sensation sure to please everyone.

Plus factor in your favor, too, is that the pungent cheese eliminates need for lots of other seasonings.

With a speedy meal such as this you'll have one supper or luncheon you can put together with a minimum of work, both before and after.

STEAK SANDWICHES ALA BLUE

4 slices rye, whole wheat or pumpernickle bread (toasted and buttered)
½ cup butter
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup chopped onions
½ cup chopped mushrooms
4 beef tenderloin tips (4 oz. each
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ cup sweet red wine
½ cup American blue cheese (about 3 ounces, crumbled)

Melt butter in skillet. Add garlic, onions and mushrooms Saute until tender. Cut horizontally almost through tenderloins Open them butterfly fashion and put into skillet. Season with salt and pepper. Cook until brown on both sides. Add wine and allow to simmer about one minute. Place each tenderloin on a slice of buttered toast and pour juice over meat. Sprinkle crumbled blue cheese over each tenderloin Place sandwiches under broiler until cheese is melted

Serve A Lemon-Blueberry Fluff To Those Who Shun The Calories

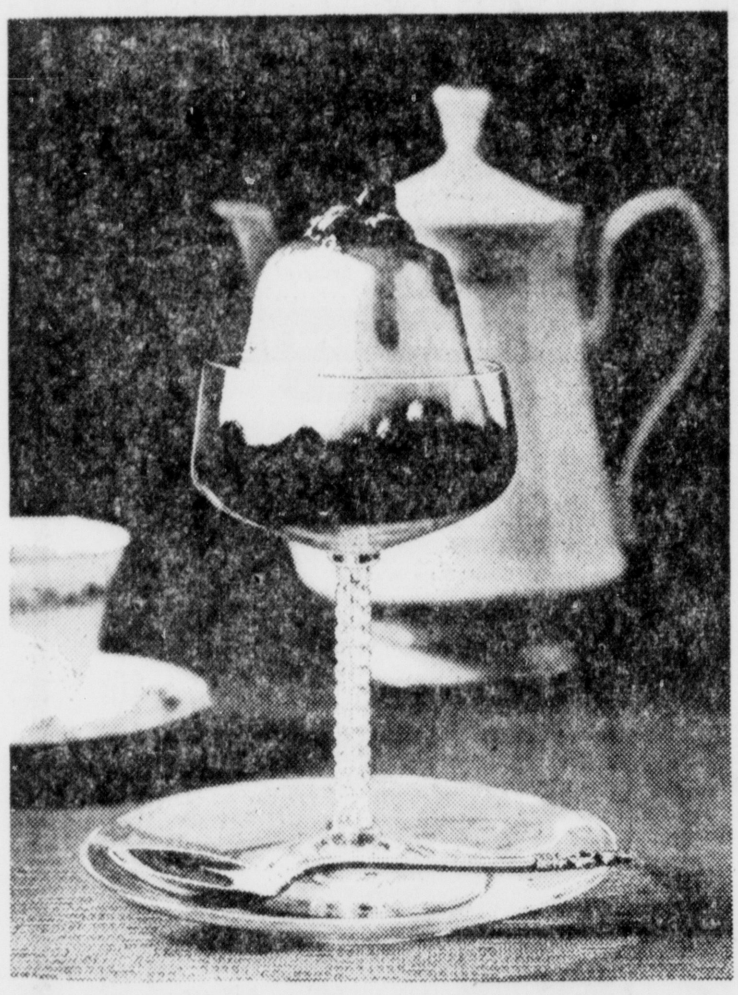
Tired of passing up those elegant-looking desserts in order to count calories? Now you can have your dessert and eat it too. And better yet, when entertaining you can proudly serve it to non-dieting guests.

Entertaining is more fun when you top off the meal with an eye-catching dessert. Dieters and non-dieters alike all voice their approval of Lemon-Blueberry Fluff, a light and satisfying lemon-flavored treat topped with blueberry sauce.

This dessert is a glamorous finale to any meal. And it contains only 76 calories per serving.

To make Lemon-Blueberry Fluff you need:

1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup cold water
2 egg whites
1 9-ounce carton frozen unsweetened blueberries, thawed (1½ cups)
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons sugar
Few drops vanilla



In large bowl dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in lemon peel, lemon juice, and ¾ cup cold water. Chill till partially set.

Add unbeaten egg whites to gelatin mixture. Beat with electric mixer till mixture is light and fluffy, about 1 to 2 minutes. Pour into eight 5-ounce custard cups. Chill till firm. (Slight separation into layers may occur.)

Meanwhile, in saucepan crush ½ cup of the blueberries. Blend together cornstarch and ½ cup cold water. Add cornstarch mixture and sugar to crushed blueberries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, till mixture is thick and bubbly; cook and stir 1 minute longer. Remove sauce from heat; stir in remaining blueberries and vanilla. Chill sauce.

To serve, unmold lemon fluff in individual dessert dishes. Spoon a little blueberry sauce over each dessert. Makes 8 servings.

Low Cholesterol Dieters Can Enjoy A Cookie Too

Some suggestions from your Heart Association for holiday eating and entertaining with new, tasty recipes, low in cholesterol.

"POLY" CHRISTMAS WREATH

Heat oven to 400 degrees.

To prepare pan: Melt 1⅞3 cup polyunsaturated margarine. Put 3 Tablespoons in bottom of 9-inch ring mold (save rest of melted margarine for later step) Sprinkle with 3 Tablespoons brown sugar. Use almond halves or walnuts and red and green maraschino cherries (or pineapple) and place over brown sugar in a design.

Batter:

Sift together:
1-1⅞3 cup sifted all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1⅞2 tsp salt
Add:
1'¼ cup polyunsaturated oil
1'½' cup nonfat (skim) milk

Mix to a moderately soft dough. If dough is too sticky to handle with fingers, knead in another tablespoon flour. Shape dough into 12 balls, about the size of walnuts. Roll each ball in melted margarine and then in mixture of 1-½ cup white sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Bake at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from pan immediately by placing a plate over top of mold and turning whole thing over. Best when served warm.

NON-CHOLESTEROL CRUMB CRISPS

1 cup sugar
2 cups fresh breadcrumbs
2 oz. glace cherries cut into small pieces
1-1⅞' cups chopped or sliced nuts (any type will do but a mixture of almonds and walnuts is especially good)
3 egg whites, slightly beaten
Pinch salt
3 drops vanilla flavoring

Mix all together. Drop on to well-greased cookie sheet by teaspoonful. Bake at 350 degrees for approx 15 minutes, until golden brown color. Makes 2½ ι2 dozen cookies, about 70 calories each.

STUFFED STAR APPLES

Heat oven to 375 degrees.
1 cup flour, sifted
1 teasp salt
1'¼ cup vegetable oil (polyunsaturated)
2½ Tablespoons water
For EACH serving:
1 Roman Beauty Apple
2 dates, pitted, sliced
1 tsp. chopped nuts

Remove core from each apple, and remove peel one inch from top. Mixchopped dates, and nuts and fill core holes lightly. To make pastry: Mix flour and l salt together. Beat oil and water together and add to flour. Mix until ball of dough is formed. Roll dough between sheets of wax paper until thin. Cut out a star for each apple (recipe will make 6 to 8 stars). Place a star on top of each apple, sprinkle with cinnamon and bake at 375 for about 45 minutes, until apple is done and pastry a light brown color.

About 275 calories each — compared to 420 calories for one slice apple pie.

Other stuffing which may be used: dried apricots and nuts, mincemeat, raisins and nuts, whole cranberry sauce.

Cranberries

Cranberry cookery was not popular, even in New England, until the early 1800's. Like Rhubarb, the tart fruit required sweetening and until Louisiana cane sugar was profitably produced after 1796, sugar was a precious food. Today sugar is one of the few low-cost food items, and cranberry recipes abound.

You Are Invited to a Public Hearing

The Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District Is Holding a "Town Meeting" in San Rafael on Thursday, December 10

Under a mandate from the California State Legislature, the Golden Gate Bridge Highway and Transportation District is studying ways to meet future transportation needs in the District. As soon as the engineering and environmental reports—just completed by the District's consultants—have been reviewed by the public, the District's directors will prepare a recommendation for the State Legislature, centering on a single Transportation Facilities Plan.

To encourage the broadest possible public dialogue, the District directors are holding a series of 20 meetings throughout the District. At each meeting, the District management and its consultants will present reports on five different alternatives for a long-range plan. They will discuss routes, types of transit systems, costs, social and environmental factors, and the other aspects of their extensive studies. They will answer questions. They will welcome comments and suggestions, which will be weighed in the District's recommendation to the Legislature.

This is an important and interesting subject, one that can affect the future of the communities in the District's counties.

EVERYBODY WELCOMES gifts of homemade Christmas cookies to serve friends through the holiday season. Two recipes for good Christmas cookies are Maple Nut Cooky Canes and Almond Crescents. Both are attractive to serve on a platter with coffee or punch when guests drop by.

It's Time To Bake Those Christmas Cookie Gifts

Christmas is the most universally celebrated holiday. It is a festival that is shared by people all over the world, both from a religious and a social point of view.

The traditional Christmas festivities in America are a blend of many foreign customs — Spanish, German, French, English and Scandinavian, to name a few.

The use of a decorated evergreen dates back to the Eighth Century in Northern Europe. From Czech and Bohemian immigrants we get our interpretation of yuletide as a time to reward "good children" and punish the bad.

Our Santa Claus has many foreign counterparts. Pelznickel, Tomten, St. Nicholas, Kris Kringle, Sonner Klas and Sunder Klaas are international versions of our jolly fat man in the red suit.

"Merry Christmas" becomes "Joyeux Noel" in France, "Buon Natale" in Italy, "Feliz Navidad" in Spain and "Frohliche Weinachten" in Germany. The holiday greeting, in any language, expresses joy and good will.

Christmas cookies are popular holiday treats in many countries. Pfeffernusse, Norwegian Kringle and Swedish Spritz are classic European favorites which have been adopted by Americans.

Here are two recipes which you will want to add to your holiday favorites. Maple Nut Cookie Canes and Almond Crescents are delicious and fun to make. The cookie canes owe their nutty goodness to ground walnuts. For a festive touch, they can be sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. The crescents are coated with a mixture of sugar, cinnamon and finely chopped almonds.

MAPLENUT COOKIECANES

- ½ cup (1 stick) margarine, softened
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 egg yolk
- ¼ teaspoon imitation maple flavor
- 1 cup ground English walnuts
- 1 cup unsifted flour

Cream margarine and sugar until very light. Thoroughly beat in egg, egg yolk and maple flavor. Blend in ground English Walnuts and flour. Chill thoroughly, at least 1 hour.

Turn a small amount of dough out onto a lightly floured board. Refrigerate remaining dough. Gently roll 1 level tablespoon dough into a 5-inch rope. Place ungreased baking sheet curving one end to form cane. Repeat with remaining dough.

Bake at 400 F. 10 to 12 minutes, or until edges are lightly browned. Remove from baking sheets and place on wire racks to cool. When cool, if desired, coat with confectioners' sugar. Makes about 3 dozen cookies.

ALMOND CRESCENTS

- ½ cup (1 stick) margarine, softened
- 2-3 cup sugar
- 2 hard cooked egg yolks, sieved
- 1 uncooked egg yolk
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1¼ cups unsifted flour
- 1-3 cup very finely chopped blanched almonds
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 egg white, slightly beaten

Cream margarine and 1-3 cup sugar until light. Add sieved yolks and uncooked yolk; beat until smooth. Blend in lemon peel and flour. Chill until firm, about 1 hour.

Meanwhile, mix together blanched almonds, remaining 1-3 cup sugar and cinnamon.

Roll 1 tablespoon dough into 2½-inch rope. Curve to form half-moon. Flatten to about ⅛-inch thickness; taper ends. Brush both sides with beaten egg white, then lightly coat with sugar-nut mixture.

Bake at 375 F. for 12 to 14 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2½ to 3 dozen cookies.

Steak, Blue Cheese Into Quick Sandwich

This is the season for informal entertaining. The holidays seem to encourage good fellowship and people will drop in to visit on short notice.

With this in mind, make sure that you will have ingredients on hand for quick repasts.

For instance, try this hot sandwich specialty featuring tenderloin tips topped with tangy blue cheese.

A slice of toasted rye is topped-off with tenderloin tips in a mushroom wine sauce and accented with American blue cheese. The sandwich is placed under the broiler until the cheese is melted and bubbly; then served with fresh vegetable garnishes or cole slaw and lots of hot beverages to drink.

The resulting subtle, sharp flavor of the blue-marbled cheese produces a delightfully different taste sensation sure to please everyone.

Plus factor in your favor, too, is that the pungent cheese eliminates need for lots of other seasonings.

With a speedy meal such as this you'll have one supper or luncheon you can put together with a minimum of work, both before and after.

STEAK SANDWICHES ALA BLUE

- 4 slices rye, whole wheat or pumpernickle bread (toasted and buttered)
- ½ cup butter
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- ¼ cup chopped onions
- ½ cup chopped mushrooms
- 4 beef tenderloin tips (4 oz. each
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- ¼ cup sweet red wine
- ½ cup American blue cheese (about 3 ounces, crumbled)

Melt butter in skillet. Add garlic, onions and mushrooms Saute until tender. Cut horizontally almost through tenderloins Open them butterfly fashion and put into skillet. Season with salt and pepper. Cook until brown on both sides. Add wine and allow to simmer about one minute. Place each tenderloin on a slice of buttered toast and pour juice over meat. Sprinkle crumbled blue cheese over each tenderloin Place sandwiches under broiler until cheese is melted

Serve A Lemon-Blueberry Fluff To Those Who Shun The Calories

Tired of passing up those elegant-looking desserts in order to count calories? Now you can have your dessert and eat it too. And better yet, when entertaining you can proudly serve it to non-dieting guests.

Entertaining is more fun when you top off the meal with an eye-catching dessert. Dieters and non-dieters alike all voice their approval of Lemon-Blueberry Fluff, a light and satisfying lemon-flavored treat topped with blueberry sauce.

This dessert is a glamorous finale to any meal. And it contains only 76 calories per serving.

To make Lemon-Blueberry Fluff you need:

- 1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- ¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¾ cup cold water
- 2 egg whites
- 1 9-ounce carton frozen unsweetened blueberries, thawed (1½ cups)
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ½ cup cold water
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- Few drops vanilla

In large bowl dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in lemon peel, lemon juice, and ¾ cup cold water. Chill till partially set.

Add unbeaten egg whites to gelatin mixture. Beat with electric mixer till mixture is light and fluffy, about 1 to 2 minutes. Pour into eight 5-ounce custard cups. Chill till firm. (Slight separation into layers may occur.)

Meanwhile, in saucepan crush ½ cup of the blueberries. Blend together cornstarch and ½ cup cold water. Add cornstarch mixture and sugar to crushed blueberries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, till mixture is thick and bubbly; cook and stir 1 minute longer. Remove sauce from heat; stir in remaining blueberries and vanilla. Chill sauce.

To serve, unmold lemon fluff in individual dessert dishes. Spoon a little blueberry sauce over each dessert. Makes 8 servings.

Low Cholesterol Dieters Can Enjoy A Cookie Too

Some suggestions from your Heart Association for holiday eating and entertaining with new, tasty recipes, low in cholesterol.

"POLY" CHRISTMAS WREATH

Heat oven to 400 degrees.

To prepare pan: Melt 1⅞3 cup polyunsaturated margarine. Put 3 Tablespoons in bottom of 9-inch ring mold (save rest of melted margarine for later step) Sprinkle with 3 Tablespoons brown sugar. Use almond halves or walnuts and red and green maraschino cherries (or pineapple) and place over brown sugar in a design.

Batter:

Sift together:

- 1-1⅞3 cup sifted all purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1⅞2 tsp salt

Add:

- 1¼ cup polyunsaturated oil
- 1½ cup nonfat (skim) milk

Mix to a moderately soft dough. If dough is too sticky to handle with fingers, knead in another tablespoon flour. Shape dough into 12 balls, about the size of walnuts. Roll each ball in melted margarine and then in mixture of 1-½ cup white sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Bake at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from pan immediately by placing a plate over top of mold and turning whole thing over. Best when served warm.

NON-CHOLESTEROL CRUMB CRISPS

(a macaroon-type cookie)

- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cups fresh breadcrumbs
- 2 oz. glace cherries cut into small pieces
- 1-1⅞" cups chopped or sliced nuts (any type will do but a mixture of almonds and walnuts is especially good)
- 3 egg whites, slightly beaten
- Pinch salt
- 3 drops vanilla flavoring

Mix all together. Drop on to well-greased cookie sheet by teaspoonful. Bake at 350 degrees for approx 15 minutes, until golden brown color. Makes 2½ ,2 dozen cookies, about 70 calories each.

STUFFED STAR APPLES

Heat oven to 375 degrees.

- 1 cup flour, sifted
- 1 teasp salt
- 1¼ cup vegetable oil (polyunsaturated)
- 2½ Tablespoons water

For EACH serving:

- 1 Roman Beauty Apple
- 2 dates, pitted, sliced
- 1 tsp. chopped nuts

Remove core from each apple, and remove peel one inch from top. Mixchopped dates, and nuts and fill core holes lightly. To make pastry: Mix flour and salt together. Beat oil and water together and add to flour. Mix until ball of dough is formed. Roll dough between sheets of wax paper until thin. Cut out a star for each apple (recipe will make 6 to 8 stars). Place a star on top of each apple, sprinkle with cinnamon and bake at 375 for about 45 minutes, until apple is done and pastry a light brown color.

About 275 calories each — compared to 420 calories for one slice apple pie.

Other stuffing which may be used: dried apricots and nuts, mincemeat, raisins and nuts, whole cranberry sauce.

Cranberries

Cranberry cookery was not popular, even in New England, until the early 1800's. Like Rhubarb, the tart fruit required sweetening and until Louisiana cane sugar was profitably produced after 1796, sugar was a precious food. Today sugar is one of the few low-cost food items, and cranberry recipes abound.

PRACTICAL FASHIONS ON THE SLOPES

Color, texture and style have no limits in ski wear. Skiers do not have to stick to the one-style parka-sweater-pants look, and there are more parka lengths than there are dress lengths. Some stop at the waist; others are long and belted, tunic-fashion. The midi in parkas, left, by Bogner is a nylon mid-thigh length self-belted jacket. Bogner calls it the Forela and believes it will replace the short waist jacket popular last season and impractical because of insufficient protection. Center, a trio of skiers wear, from left, the Tioga, a two-piece vertical matchstick-quilted suit in stretch nylon with horizontal quilting at elbows for freedom of movement; the Carera, a nylon stretch quilted jumpsuit for men; and Peru, a window pane quilt cire nylon vest which reverses to fleece lining to top the matching over-the-boot pants in stretch gabardine-like fabric. Bogner's leanest silhouette look, right, is a stretch gabardine one-piece suit that affords a minimum of bulk.

Status Of Women Told In Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — Women in the Royal Canadian Mounties?

Yes, said Canada's four-year-old Royal Commission on the Status of Women Monday when it called for an end to discrimination against females in employment, the right to abortion on demand for pregnancies up to three months, and raising the marriage age to 18 "with no exceptions at all."

In a 500-page report presented to the House of Commons by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the Commission released its formula for promoting women's equality in a society "unjustly conceived and controlled by men."

Questioned about the government's plans for action on the proposals Trudeau was noncommittal.

"WE WILL consider the report, then we will announce to the House what course we will follow," he said.

Among the 167 detailed recommendations were proposals for child care centers accessible to women of all income levels, 18 weeks paid maternity leave, guaranteed annual income for the heads of one-parent families and a pension plan for housewives.

The report asked for special measures to spur women's employment in every area from the public service to the armed forces and demanded an end to "six-typing" of occupations in all fields and equal opportunity in hiring, salaries, recruitment and promotions.

It proposed enlistment of women in the Royal Canadian Mounted police, admittance of women to federally operated defense colleges and a required plan for increased female representation in the Canadian senate.

CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING

Prepare For All Conditions

By PAT BALMES

Families are taking new interest in the old winter sport of cross-country skiing, according to Mrs. Mary King, owner of a mountain shop in Kentfield

Safer than down hill skiing because of gentle slopes and non-rigid ski bindings. Mrs King says, cross-country skiing offers families who are tired of long waits for ski lifts the freedom of backpacking. The push-glide movement, she says, can be learned in a weekend, and special waxes increase the glide.

HIGH ENERGY snacks, especially for children who burn more calories than adults, include beef jerky, chocolates, pemmican bars, dried fruits, herb and dextrose candies and meat bars, specially designed to be eaten on the trail.

The ability to read maps, a compass and the knowledge of weather are prerequisites, according to the mountaineer. She advises observing safety rules and wearing the right kind of clothes to have fun in the snow country.

Elementary mountaineering safety rules can prevent tragedy, says Mrs. King, who has been readying families for the mountains for 25 years. She advises:

Don't start out on a long tour without being in good shape.

Never go alone

TALK WITH people who know the area before you try out new terrain.

Have your mountain equipment in order, and always take it with you, even on a short tour. Include a knife, map, compass, matches, candle, first aid kit, snow glasses, flashlight and whistle.

Report where you start from and where you are going.

Respect weather and weather forecasts.

Turn back in time! There is nothing shameful in turning back, says the mountaineer.

Keep together in critical situations.

Save your strength. Seek shelter in time. When necessary, dig yourself into the snow.

You must have this equipment with you in the mountains: wool or thermal underwear, parka with hood, windproof pants, extra sweater and stockings, stiff ski hat with earflaps, woolen mittens and windproof cover with spares, snow boots, scarf and extra ski straps.

TO KEEP warm, cover your head so your body won't lose heat through radiation.

Thick insulation and trapped

The couple plan to be married in August.

Mrs. Traversi Unit President

MRS. DAVID TRAVERSI

Petaluma Unit, Catholic Social Service, members have elected Mrs. David Traversi, president. She has also served as recording secretary, Sonoma County bulletin chairman and chaired various sub committees for the unit.

Rowene Traversi and her attorney husband are native Petalumans. They have four children Marrianne, 13, David, 11, Diane, 10, and Stephen, 6. A Petaluma High School graduate, the new president worked in San Francisco prior to her marriage.

Mrs. Traversi's pastimes include sewing, reading and decoupage, and she is a leader of Junior Great Books' discussions. She is a past president of the Petaluma Boys Club Auxiliary and maintains an active interest in Sonoma County Law Wives, St. Vincent's Mothers Club.

The annual Black and White Ball, set for Feb. 20 is this unit's main fund raising activity. All proceeds provide operating funds for the Santa Rosa agency to further its counseling services in addition to the chapter's own donations of gifts to the dependent children of the Sonoma County Juvenile Hall during holidays and birthdays. Any woman, regardless of faith, may join.

Other officers serving with Mrs. Traversi are Mmes. Daniel Longaker, vice president; Ronald Walters, recording secretary; George Mertens, treasurer; Gino Paieri, corresponding secretary; Edward Borr, membership chairman; Ron Hopkins, press releases; and William J Bianchini, dance chairman.

It's Bike Sales Time

More bicycles are sold during the Christmas shopping season than at any other time of the year The California Medical Association warns that parents making these purchases should keep certain accident hazards in mind.

Two kinds of braking systems for bicycles are currently available. The simplest to operate is the coaster brake, which requires only that the direction of the pedals be reversed. To apply reverse pedal pressure the arms are used to push the main weight of the body back from the handle bars and onto the pedals. This bracing action tends to keep the rider from being pitched headlong over the front wheel as the cycle stops.

Becoming increasingly popular with youngsters are bicycles with gears which permit the use of multiple speeds. Usually, such cycles are equipped with brakes operated by special grips applied to the handle bars. Cables transmit the pressure from one hand grip to the front wheel and from the other grip to the rear wheel. If equal pressure is applied to both wheels the braking

Academic Status Of Women

A survey adding to the data showing that women do not have equal status with men in the academic world has been released by the American Association of University Women.

Questionnaires were sent to 750 colleges, and answers were received from 454. The survey showed that at every level in colleges and universities women are under represented or placed in positions with little power.

Dr. Mabelle G. McCullough, assistant dean of students at the University of Minnesota, who headed the AAUW committee making the survey last January, said, "There are clear indications that there are discriminations, at least between policy and prectices."

Ninety per cent of the schools, the servey said, say that their promotional policies are the same for men and women faculty, yet in 34 schools, all coeducational, there are no women department heads and the mean number of women department heads in all schools is less than three per institution. Women as department heads are found primarily in the fields of home economics, physical education, English languages, nursing and education, it said.

The report also said that nationally women comprise about 22 per cent of the faculty at all ranks in higher education in the United States.

"Percentage of women decreases, however, as rank increases, with less than nine per cent holding the rank of full professor," it said.

Of the schools contacted only 21 per cent had no women trustees while 25 per cent had only one.

The AAUW plans to get the information out to its branches for them to use in trying to improve the status of women

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Son And Daughter, 35 and 37 Are Still At Home Tied To Mother

DEAR HELEN:

This woman has been a widow for 35 years, is now 76. She had five children, three married, and two still living at home. These two are 35 and 37.

At dinner time she fixes their plates as if they were 10-year-olds. She buys their clothes and tells them what to do, even though both have good jobs and seem moderately intelligent. They're normal, I mean, though they have no social life outside of their mother's friends.

Don't you think she should untie the apron strings and let them go? — NOSEY NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR:

Don't you think if they had wanted to go, they'd have done so long before this? Those apron strings may only be untied by death — and then two middle-aged people may find themselves very much alone in a world they've never learned to face. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband has all he ever wanted: A very good job, prestige, clothes that enhance his good looks, a fine car, and his choice of women. Perhaps he doesn't take advantage of that choice — yet — but he loves the feeling they consider him a good catch (even though married).

He started climbing the ladder of success when our children were in their teens. I was so busy raising the three of them that I didn't see he was drifting away from me. I've never wanted a career — being a wife and mother was enough. But now I'm neither — just an anchor, and feeling pretty well encrusted with barnacles.

You see, I didn't have a college education. I don't talk well at parties. I have no polish. My husband has all these attributes and, besides, he looks 10 years younger than me. He doesn't say it, but I know he'd be glad if I just disappeared so that he wouldn't be ashamed of me.

Should I leave a note and vanish? The children are all grown and gone, so nothing holds me back any more. — NO LONGER NEDDED

DEAR N.L.N.

For heavens sake, get off your self-pity and start competing. Take a self-improvement course, enroll at college, volunteer for worthwhile community projects, fix up your figure and face; look alive. And act it.

Your husband chose you because he loved you above any other woman. If you weren't still his choice, he'd be out chasing (which you indicate hasn't happened — yet). So stop the "Poor little left-behind me" routine and start catching up. A visit to your doctor might help you develop the energy for it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

"Soft-Hearted" mourned about all the dogs and cats taken to the pound. Might I remind her that slaughterhouses are filled with animals who don't want to die — and they aren't flesh-eaters either. Those poor innocent cows, pigs, lambs, etc. are killed every day. Does she mourn them — or enjoy the chops?

A dog, when unrestrained is a killer — responsibile for the deaths of more deer than poachers kill. A cat tortures its prey to death — and not from need to eat.

I love and respect all animal life, but I am provoked with people who shed tears for the poor "pets" who are humanely put to sleep at the shelter, when they have no feeling for those larger animals they raise for food. — HARD HEARTED

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal

Suspenders

Suspenders are back, says Levi's, the world's largest pants maker. So saying, the company will feature four numbers in fashion suspenders — a nine-color ribbon stripe, a red and blue stripe, a red, white and blue stripe and a solid red. They are to be worn with suspender buttons. Since there are a few pants now made that may not have such buttons, Levi's will pack detachable copper buttons with each pair of suspenders.

Buying Washer

Before you purchase a washer, ask yourself if there are any conditions peculiar to your home which might cause washing problems. For example, if your home has low water pressure, be sure the washer you select has a pressure-fill system so it will fill properly before washing and rinsing.

Hippies Stir Men's Fashion Revolution

Pierre Balmain, the French designer, credits the current men's fashion renaissance to the hippie revolution and the complete freedom in dress.

"Also the hippie revolution stirred the men's fashion industry that was really falling asleep in a sort of routine of suits that were just basic and just useful. "Now," Balmain says, "instead of just buying clothes to cover themselves, men are buying clothes to better their appearance, enhance their personality and make themselves more dashing." See?

Businessmen Disclose Plans To Help Solve Consumer's Problems

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — At precisely the hour last week when a group of housewives launched a nation-wide sale of stamps to draw attention to consumer problems, a nation-wide sale of stamps to draw attention to consumer problems, a nation-wide organization of businessmen disclosed plans for doing more to solve those problems.

Although the timing was a merely coincidence, rather than a split-second response of one group to another, it dramatized the accelerated pace of action programs by both consumers and businessmen in response to them.

Never before have businessmen become more alert to consumer issues. The 14-point plan of the Council of Better Business Bureaus promises a better day for consumers if it is fulfilled as announced last week.

FOR IT BRINGS one of the more controversial organizations into the mainstream of what has become known as "consumerism."

For many consumers frustrated by problems with products or services, the Better Business Bureau has become only the final disillusionment of many. By the council's own count, four out of every 10 callers to the 139 bureaus last year got either a busy or no-answer signal.

Of the six who did get through, probably less than one got any sort of satisfaction with a buying problem. Service to the public has varied greatly from bureau to bureau, with the best operating in large metropolitan areas such as Chicago and St. Louis.

Although an estimated one out of every 12 households in the country had some type of contact with BBB last year, many of the others had no bureau to contact in their area.

TO HELP remedy these problems, the Council of Better Business Bureaus has drawn up a Declaration of Responsibilities "to help business and the consuming public achieve maximum satisfaction in their relations with each other."

The Council has also elected a new president, H. Bruce Palmer, a former insurance executive, and assigned him to raise $25 million from concerned businessmen to provide funds for the new program.

Among the aims of the program are:

— Increase bureau capacity to handle consumer complaints.

— Broaden bureau coverage by establishing new bureaus and inaugurating free telephone service for people not now covered.

— Set up consumer councils "as vehicles to promote consumer education and to create a consumer presence that will encourage business in self-regulation." Twelve "public" members would be added to the board of directors.

— Allow private citizens to become members of local bureaus so they can receive periodical literature and materials and participate in market panels.

— Expand consumer education activities through schools, mobile vans and other means.

— Prod business to eliminate any malpractices in the marketing of goods and services.

— Encourage establishment of arbitration procedures for consumer complaints, a system which has been growing in popularity in recent years.

In announcing the new program, Council Chairman Elisha Gray II, head of the Whirlpool Corporation, acknowledged "a swelling tide of consumer complaints and frustrations."

"We've reached the point," he said, "where either business is responsibe to consumer needs or the choice for voluntary action will be taken out of its hands."

SKIING

air space between a down jacket and a covering windproof parka will keep you warm even below freezing. Keep torso warm; it will heat your toes and fingers.

Avoid sweating. Allow for ventilation through clothes or out of neck of jacket. Foam rubber and nylon insulation allows for evaporation.

Leather boots, waterproofed, which double for hiking in the summer.

Tight boots cut off circulation. If they are too short, going downhill the boots will rub blisters on tips and tops of toes.

When buying boots, unlace them and slide foot forward. Observe if there is the ideal ⅜ inch space between heal and back of boot. For another test, kick a board. That simulates the movement of the foot inside the boot when traveling downhill. Kick hard! If you feel your toes hit the front of the boot, they are too short. For sore spots on the trail, cut a piece of gum-backed moleskin and stick on foot.

WET FEET are susceptible to frostbite. Take off boots and dry stockings when you come into shelter. Warm feet with warm hands. Never rub. Never use snow.

Altitude in mountains effects visitors. It takes three or four days to acclimate. Altitude dries skin and a moisturizer is helpful.

Remember that mountains demand respect. Therefore, take no unnecessary chances. The tour is not wholly successful until you are home again in good condition, according to Mrs. Mary King.

Fatal Accidents

Last year 5,900 children under 15 years old were killed in motor vehicles accidents.

PRACTICAL FASHIONS ON THE SLOPES

Color, texture and style have no limits in ski wear. Skiers do not have to stick to the one-style parka-sweater-pants look, and there are more parka lengths than there are dress lengths. Some stop at the waist; others are long and belted, tunic-fashion. The midi in parkas, left, by Bogner is a nylon mid-thigh length self-belted jacket. Bogner calls it the Forela and believes it will replace the short waist jacket popular last season and impractical because of insufficient protection. Center, a trio of skiers wear, from left, the Tioga, a two-piece vertical matchstick-quilted suit in stretch nylon with horizontal quilting at elbows for freedom of movement; the Carera, a nylon stretch quilted jumpsuit for men; and Peru, a window pane quilt cire nylon vest which reverses to fleece lining to top the matching over-the-boot pants in stretch gabardine-like fabric. Bogner's leanest silhouette look, right, is a stretch gabardine one-piece suit that affords a minimum of bulk.

Status Of Women Told In Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — Women in the Royal Canadian Mounties?

Yes, said Canada's four-year-old Royal Commission on the Status of Women Monday when it called for an end to discrimination against females in employment, the right to abortion on demand for pregnancies up to three months, and raising the marriage age to 18 "with no exceptions at all."

In a 500-page report presented to the House of Commons by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the Commission released its formula for promoting women's equality in a society "unjustly conceived and controlled by men."

Questioned about the government's plans for action on the proposals Trudeau was noncommittal.

"WE WILL consider the report, then we will announce to the House what course we will follow," he said.

Among the 167 detailed recommendations were proposals for child care centers accessible to women of all income levels, 18 weeks paid maternity leave, guaranteed annual income for the heads of one-parent families and a pension plan for housewives.

The report asked for special measures to spur women's employment in every area from the public service to the armed forces and demanded an end to "six-typing" of occupations in all fields and equal opportunity in hiring, salaries, recruitment and promotions.

It proposed enlistment of women in the Royal Canadian Mounted police, admittance of women to federally operated defense colleges and a required plan for increased female representation in the Canadian senate.

CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING
Prepare For All Conditions

By PAT BALMES

Families are taking new interest in the old winter sport of cross-country skiing, according to Mrs. Mary King, owner of a mountain shop in Kentfield.

Safer than down hill skiing because of gentle slopes and non-rigid ski bindings. Mrs. King says, cross-country skiing offers families who are tired of long waits for ski lifts the freedom of backpacking. The push-glide movement, she says, can be learned in a weekend, and special waxes increase the glide.

HIGH ENERGY snacks, especially for children who burn more calories than adults, include beef jerky, chocolates, pemmican bars, dried fruits, herb and dextrose candies and meat bars, specially designed to be eaten on the trail.

The ability to read maps, a compass and the knowledge of weather are prerequisites, according to the mountaineer. She advises observing safety rules and wearing the right kind of clothes to have fun in the snow country.

Elementary mountaineering safety rules can prevent tragedy, says Mrs. King, who has been readying families for the mountains for 25 years. She advises:

Don't start out on a long tour without being in good shape.

Never go alone

TALK WITH people who know the area before you try out new terrain.

Have your mountain equipment in order, and always take it with you, even on a short tour. Include a knife, map, compass, matches, candle, first aid kit, snow glasses, flashlight and whistle.

Report where you start from and where you are going.

Respect weather and weather forecasts.

Turn back in time! There is nothing shameful in turning back, says the mountaineer.

Keep together in critical situations.

Save your strength. Seek shelter in time. When necessary, dig yourself into the snow.

You must have this equipment with you in the mountains: wool or thermal underwear, parka with hood, windproof pants, extra sweater and stockings, stiff ski hat with earflaps, woolen mittens and windproof cover with spares, snow boots, scarf and extra ski straps.

TO KEEP warm, cover your head so your body won't lose heat through radiation.

Thick insulation and trapped

It's Bike Sales Time

More bicycles are sold during the Christmas shopping season than at any other time of the year. The California Medical Association warns that parents making these purchases should keep certain accident hazards in mind.

Two kinds of braking systems for bicycles are currently available. The simplest to operate is the coaster brake, which requires only that the direction of the pedals be reversed. To apply reverse pedal pressure the arms are used to push the main weight of the body back from the handle bars and onto the pedals. This bracing action tends to keep the rider from being pitched headlong over the front wheel as the cycle stops.

Becoming increasingly popular with youngsters are bicycles with gears which permit the use of multiple speeds. Usually, such cycles are equipped with brakes operated by special grips applied to the handle bars. Cables transmit the pressure from one hand grip to the front wheel and from the other grip to the rear wheel. If equal pressure is applied to both wheels the braking

Academic Status Of Women

A survey adding to the data showing that women do not have equal status with men in the academic world has been released by the American Association of University Women.

Questionnaires were sent to 750 colleges, and answers were received from 454. The survey showed that at every level in colleges and universities women are under represented or placed in positions with little power.

Dr. Mabelle G. McCullough, assistant dean of students at the University of Minnesota, who headed the AAUW committee making the survey last January, said, "There are clear indications that there are discriminations, at least between policy and prectices."

Ninety per cent of the schools, the servey said, say that their promotional policies are the same for men and women faculty, yet in 34 schools, all coeducational, there are no women department heads and the mean number of women department heads in all schools is less than three per institution. Women as department heads are found primarily in the fields of home economics, physical education, English languages, nursing and education, it said.

The report also said that nationally women comprise about 22 per cent of the faculty at all ranks in higher education in the United States.

"Percentage of women decreases, however, as rank increases, with less than nine per cent holding the rank of full professor," it said.

Of the schools contacted only 21 per cent had no women trustees while 25 per cent had only one.

The AAUW plans to get the information out to its branches for them to use in trying to improve the status of women

Rings For Men, More The Merrier

Shake a man's hand these days and you're likely to withdraw yours in pain — not from the heartiness of his grip, but form the collection of hardware he's sporting on a minimum of two to a maximum of four fingers per hand.

The ring is the thing, and like rings for the gals, the more the merrier. The rings for "him" range from combinations of everything from writhing snakes perfect for pinkies to bold metallic nuggets, mythological animals, Zodiac signs, genuine gem stones, not-so-genuine gem stones, Indian beaded bands, leather thongs, and,of course, for the unlibbed man, the wedding band.

Washing Knits

Before washing a knit anything, make sure it is washable. Read the labels, including information about trimmings and bindings.

Bicycle Sales And Safety Tips

action of this system is excellent, but obtaining this result requires a degree of skill not possessed by all children. It too often happens that most of the braking is applied to the front wheel, flipping the bike so that the rider is thrown headfirst to the pavement. Hand brakes also add to the risk of severe injury by encouraging coasting with the weight suspended over the handle bars instead of back over the pedals.

In addition, parents should ponder the availability in their neighborhoods of areas safe for cyclists. Physicians are reporting more fatalities and serious head injuries from falls, particularly from bicycle accidents, in the 5 to 15 age group than all other causes combined. Here are four suggestions for reducing the danger to your child:

Give more thought to matching the bike to the skill of the rider

Beware of hand brakes for younger children.

Provide a hard helmet, similar to those worn by motorcyclists, to be worn while bicycling.

Make certain that lights (the tail light in particular) are installed, maintained, and used when your youngster rides in darkness.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Son And Daughter, 35 and 37 Are Still At Home Tied To Mother

DEAR HELEN:

This woman has been a widow for 35 years, is now 76. She had five children, three married, and two still living at home. These two are 35 and 37.

At dinner time she fixes their plates as if they were 10-year-olds. She buys their clothes and tells them what to do, even though both have good jobs and seem moderately intelligent. They're normal, I mean, though they have no social life outside of their mother's friends.

Don't you think she should untie the apron strings and let them go? — NOSEY NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR:

Don't you think if they had wanted to go, they'd have done so long before this? Those apron strings may only be untied by death — and then two middle-aged people may find themselves very much alone in a world they've never learned to face. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband has all he ever wanted: A very good job, prestige, clothes that enhance his good looks, a fine car, and his choice of women. Perhaps he doesn't take advantage of that choice — yet — but he loves the feeling they consider him a good catch (even though married).

He started climbing the ladder of success when our children were in their teens. I was so busy raising the three of them that I didn't see he was drifting away from me. I've never wanted a career — being a wife and mother was enough. But now I'm neither — just an anchor, and feeling pretty well encrusted with barnacles.

You see, I didn't have a college education. I don't talk well at parties. I have no polish. My husband has all these attributes and, besides, he looks 10 years younger than me. He doesn't say it, but I know he'd be glad if I just disappeared so that he wouldn't be ashamed of me.

Should I leave a note and vanish? The children are all grown and gone, so nothing holds me back any more. — NO LONGER NEDDED

DEAR N.L.N.

For heavens sake, get off your self-pity and start competing. Take a self-improvement course, enroll at college, volunteer for worthwhile community projects, fix up your figure and face; look alive. And act it.

Your husband chose you because he loved you above any other woman. If you weren't still his choice, he'd be out chasing (which you indicate hasn't happened — yet). So stop the "Poor little left-behind me" routine and start catching up. A visit to your doctor might help you develop the energy for it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

"Soft-Hearted" mourned about all the dogs and cats taken to the pound. Might I remind her that slaughterhouses are filled with animals who don't want to die — and they aren't flesh-eaters either. Those poor innocent cows, pigs, lambs, etc. are killed every day. Does she mourn them — or enjoy the chops?

A dog, when unrestrained is a killer — responsibile for the deaths of more deer than poachers kill. A cat tortures its prey to death — and not from need to eat.

I love and respect all animal life, but I am provoked with people who shed tears for the poor "pets" who are humanely put to sleep at the shelter, when they have no feeling for those larger animals they raise for food. — HARD HEARTED

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal

Suspenders

Suspenders are back, says Levi's, the world's largest pants maker. So saying, the company will feature four numbers in fashion suspenders — a nine-color ribbon stripe, a red and blue stripe, a red, white and blue stripe and a solid red. They are to be worn with suspender buttons. Since there are a few pants now made that may not have such buttons, Levi's will pack detachable copper buttons with each pair of suspenders.

Buying Washer

Before you purchase a washer, ask yourself if there are any conditions peculiar to your home which might cause washing problems. For example, if your home has low water pressure, be sure the washer you select has a pressure-fill system so it will fill properly before washing and rinsing.

Hippies Stir Men's Fashion Revolution

Pierre Balmain, the French designer, credits the current men's fashion renaissance to the hippie revolution and the complete freedom in dress.

"Also the hippie revolution stirred the men's fashion industry that was really falling asleep in a sort of routine of suits that were just basic and just useful. "Now," Balmain says, "instead of just buying clothes to cover themselves, men are buying clothes to better their appearance, enhance their personality and make themselves more dashing." See?

air space between a down jacket and a covering windproof parka will keep you warm even below freezing. Keep torso warm; it will heat your toes and fingers.

Avoid sweating. Allow for ventilation through clothes or out of neck of jacket. Foam rubber and nylon insulation allows for evaporation.

Leather boots, waterproofed, which double for hiking in the summer.

Tight boots cut off circulation. If they are too short, going downhill the boots will rub blisters on tips and tops of toes.

When buying boots, unlace them and slide foot forward. Observe if there is the ideal ⅜ inch space between heal and back of boot. For another test, kick a board. That simulates the movement of the foot inside the boot when traveling downhill. Kick hard! If you feel your toes hit the front of the boot, they are too short. For sore spots on the trail, cut a piece of gum-backed moleskin and stick on foot.

Businessmen Disclose Plans To Help Solve Consumer's Problems

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — At precisely the hour last week when a group of housewives launched a nation-wide sale of stamps to draw attention to consumer problems, a nation-wide sale of stamps to draw attention to consumer problems, a nation-wide organization of businessmen disclosed plans for doing more to solve those problems.

Although the timing was a merely coincidence, rather than a split-second response of one group to another, it dramatized the accelerated pace of action programs by both consumers and businessmen in response to them.

Never before have businessmen become more alert to consumer issues. The 14-point plan of the Council of Better Business Bureaus promises a better day for consumers if it is fulfilled as announced last week.

FOR IT BRINGS one of the more controversial organizations into the mainstream of what has become known as "consumerism."

For many consumers frustrated by problems with products or services, the Better Business Bureau has become only the final disillusionment of many. By the council's own count, four out of every 10 callers to the 139 bureaus last year got either a busy or no-answer signal.

Of the six who did get through, probably less than one got any sort of satisfaction with a buying problem. Service to the public has varied greatly from bureau to bureau, with the best operating in large metropolitan areas such as Chicago and St. Louis.

Although an estimated one out of every 12 households in the country had some type of contact with BBB last year, many of the others had no bureau to contact in their area.

TO HELP remedy these problems, the Council of Better Business Bureaus has drawn up a Declaration of Responsibilities "to help business and the consuming public achieve maximum satisfaction in their relations with each other."

The Council has also elected a new president, H. Bruce Palmer, a former insurance executive, and assigned him to raise $25 million from concerned businessmen to provide funds for the new program.

Among the aims of the program are:

— Increase bureau capacity to handle consumer complaints.

— Broaden bureau coverage by establishing new bureaus and inaugurating free telephone service for people not now covered.

— Set up consumer councils "as vehicles to promote consumer education and to create a consumer presence that will encourage business in self-regulation." Twelve "public" members would be added to the board of directors.

— Allow private citizens to become members of local bureaus so they can receive periodical literature and materials and participate in market panels.

— Expand consumer education activities through schools, mobile vans and other means.

— Prod business to eliminate any malpractices in the marketing of goods and services.

— Encourage establishment of arbitration procedures for consumer complaints, a system which has been growing in popularity in recent years.

In announcing the new program, Council Chairman Elisha Gray II, head of the Whirlpool Corporation, acknowledged "a swelling tide of consumer complaints and frustrations."

"We've reached the point," he said, "where either business is responsibe to consumer needs or the choice for voluntary action will be taken out of its hands."

Resolution Due On Sewer Policy

A resolution to form an improvement district for financing of a study of a proposed Southern Marin sanitary sewer system will be considered by the Marin Municipal Water District board when it meets at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Passage of the resolution would end seven months of discussion of the sewerage system. The board on Nov. 13 passed a resolution of intention to form the improvement district and set a public hearing on the proposal for tomorrow.

The resolution of intention passed last month differed from one passed in June in that the City of Belvedere and the portion of Tiburon served by the Tiburon Sanitary District have been removed from the boundaries of the proposed district.

16-Year-Old Is Cited On Stereo Theft

Sixteen-year-old Peter Epidendio of 57 Oxford Drive, Santa Venetia, has been cited to the juvenile probation department on a charge of stealing an auto stereo valued at $140.

Information that led to young Epidendio's arrest came through a tip to the "Secret Witness" program sponsored by the Independent-Journal said Inspector Charles Prandi of the county sheriff's juvenile division.

Prandi said the stereo was stolen Oct. 22 from a car parked in front of 405 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia.

The "Secret Witness" program has offered rewards for information leading to solution of the courthouse bombing and of incidents of vandalism involving the Independent-Journal and Marin merchants. No reward has been offered in other cases, but the program invites information about any crime known to a person who wishes to inform the authorities while retaining his anonymity.

He was released on his own recognizance to appear in Marin Municipal Court Dec. 14.

action of this system is excellent, but obtaining this result requires a degree of skill not possessed by all children. It too often happens that most of the braking is applied to the front wheel, flipping the bike so that the rider is thrown headfirst to the pavement. Hand brakes also add to the risk of severe injury by encouraging coasting with the weight suspended over the handle bars instead of back over the pedals.

In addition, parents should ponder the availability in their neighborhoods of areas safe for cyclists. Physicians are reporting more fatalities and serious head injuries from falls, particularly from bicycle accidents, in the 5 to 15 age group than all other causes combined. Here are four suggestions for reducing the danger to your child:

Give more thought to matching the bike to the skill of the rider

Beware of nand brakes for younger children.

Provide a hard heimet, similar to those worn by motorcyclists, to be worn while bicycling.

Make certain that lights (the tail light in particular) are installed, maintained, and used when your youngster rides in darkness.

Novato Gets Townhouse Master Plan

The Novato City Council last night approved Boise Cascade Building Company's master plan for a townhouse development west of the city including 20 acres of park land.

The firm plans to construct 215 townhouses on the 59-acre site between Novato Boulevard and Novato Creek.

The vote was 3-1 with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting, and Mayor Douglas M. Merrill abstaining because his architectural firm designed the Boise Cascade headquarters building.

Residents of nearby Trumball Estates, who protested strongly at previous hearings, agreed "in principle" to the plan on several conditions.

Controversy had developed over the number of units to be made available to low and moderate income buyers. It was finally agreed that there be a maximum of 15 per cent of the units for such families.

Jerry A. Cannon, representing the Ecumenical Association for Housing, backed low and moderate income housing, explaining: "We don't want a Marin City in Novato. The thinking that went into creating a Marin City in Marin County has gone by."

Cannon said that Boise Cascade's plan would provide "economic integration," and "this type of housing is needed."

William T Hopkins, representing Trumball Estates Residents Association, presented the request that Raposa Vista and Pico Vista be closed rather than serve as through streets into the proposed development.

The firm has agreed to donate 20 acres of hill land to the city for park use, and Councilman Wayne Sartain recommended that there be a soils check of an area to be given to the city where there is sloughing.

The Novato City Council also:

ASPHALT PLANT — Denied an appeal of planning commission approval for McPhail's Inc. to operate an asphaltic concrete plant at the northeast corner of Highways 101 and 37, after hearing protests that the site wasn't appropriate for the proposed plant and that the use was incompatible with residential zoning across Highway 101.

RESERVOIR HILL — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 13 acres between Oleander Avenue and Reservoir Drive, east of the future Highway 101 by-pass, to planned residential with one family homes on half-acre lots, by a 3-2 vote with Councilmen Joseph Gargiulo and Womack dissenting. Attorney Leland H. Jordan and George Gnoss Jr., representing property owners affected, opposed the rezoning, and there was a petition with 33 signatures favoring it. Councilmen viewed the proposed rezoning as a holding action, pending further study

SURPLUS PROPERTY — Authorized the sale of three surplus city cars, with a minimum bid of $300 each, and about 40 bicycles at a public auction at 10 a.m Saturday.

COMMITTEES — Voted to reappoint the members of the beautification, building code, plan review, underground utilities and school traffic committees for one more year.

SIDEWALK — Passed a resolution ordering construction of a sidewalk for 126 feet on the south side of Ignacio Boulevard between Alameda Del Prado and the highway interchange by the property owner, Hector and Nancy Rubini of San Rafael, and set 8 p.m. Jan. 26 for a public hearing.

HIGHWAY AGREEMENT — Approved an agreement with the State Division of Highways for the state to construct storm drainage facilities and sidewalk on Reichert Avenue and pave the new alignment of San Marin Drive, at a cost of $63,000 to the city.

FLOOD INSURANCE — Passed a resolution that the city intends to enact land use and control measures in flood plain areas, a step which will enable Novato residents to qualify for federal flood insurance.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned at 1:35 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House

Novato Council To Explore Land Offer For Park Site

The Novato City Council agreed last night to explore an offer by G. J. Garlick and Associates of Salt Lake City to sell 425 acres west of San Marin High School for park land.

The council voted 4-1 to discuss possible methods of acquiring the land with Garlick. Councilman J. Wayne Womack dissented.

Earlier the council had received a letter from attorney David Price Jones of Novato, representing Garlick, saying it appeared "that shortly" the property might not be available to the city.

Garlick has a 856-acre parcel, the Magetti Ranch, and he has given an option on a portion of the site to a builder, Jones wrote.

However, the unavailability of this portion doesn't make the property less attractive as a park site, Jones contended.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said the choices before the city would be outright purchase, lease purchase or parcel-by-parcel purchase.

Garlick originally offered to sell the land to the city for $600,000.

Womack argued that the city shouldn't attempt to acquire park land at this time, unless the property is donated. He opposed spending city funds for park land without authorization by the voters.

Leo R Andre of 1510 Vallejo Street said park land purchase "is okay if you have the money: but the streets aren't repaired yet."

Womack said there had not yet been a study of the cost involved in maintaining a major park, and the needed tax revenue.

Councilman Wayne Sartain suggested that the city study the possibility of acquiring the site "at some time," but felt there should be support in the community for it, and it should be financed by bonds.

The council then voted that a council committee should meet with Garlick to determine if he has a possible long-term financing proposal.

It was proposed that there be a closed session for negotiations.

Pelican Pesterers

LIMA, Peru (UPI) —Pelicans aren't curiosities in Lima. They are pests. Previously applicants had to have lived for at least three years within 30 air miles of the city.

First The Lights, Now Only A Stump

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI)— The 10-foot evergreen in front of Anthony Aceti's home here was stripped of the Christmas lights last year and the family thought they would leave it bare this time.

The decision doesn't make much difference now, though. The Acetis reported this week that sometime during the early hours of Nov. 28 bandits sawed the tree down and carted it away, leaving only a stump.

16-Year-Old Is Cited On Stereo Theft

Sixteen-year-old Peter Epidendio of 57 Oxford Drive, Santa Venetia, has been cited to the juvenile probation department on a charge of stealing an auto stereo valued at $140.

Information that led to young Epidendio's arrest came through a tip to the "Secret Witness" program sponsored by the Independent-Journal said Inspector Charles Prandi of the county sheriff's juvenile division.

Prandi said the stereo was stolen Oct. 22 from a car parked in front of 405 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia.

The "Secret Witness" program has offered rewards for information leading to solution of the courthouse bombing and of incidents of vandalism involving the Independent-Journal and Marin merchants. No reward has been offered in other cases, but the program invites information about any crime known to a person who wishes to inform the authorities while retaining his anonymity.

Novato Gets Townhouse Master Plan

The Novato City Council last night approved Boise Cascade Building Company's master plan for a townhouse development west of the city including 20 acres of park land.

The firm plans to construct 215 townhouses on the 59-acre site between Novato Boulevard and Novato Creek.

The vote was 3-1 with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting, and Mayor Douglas M. Merrill abstaining because his architectural firm designed the Boise Cascade headquarters building.

Residents of nearby Trumball Estates, who protested strongly at previous hearings, agreed "in principle" to the plan on several conditions.

Controversy had developed over the number of units to be made available to low and moderate income buyers. It was finally agreed that there be a maximum of 15 per cent of the units for such families.

Jerry A. Cannon, representing the Ecumenical Association for Housing, backed low and moderate income housing, explaining: "We don't want a Marin City in Novato. The thinking that went into creating a Marin City in Marin County has gone by."

Cannon said that Boise Cascade's plan would provide "economic integration," and "this type of housing is needed."

William T Hopkins, representing Trumball Estates Residents Association, presented the request that Raposa Vista and Pico Vista be closed rather than serve as through streets into the proposed development.

The firm has agreed to donate 20 acres of hill land to the city for park use, and Councilman Wayne Sartain recommended that there be a soils check of an area to be given to the city where there is sloughing.

The Novato City Council also:

ASPHALT PLANT — Denied an appeal of planning commission approval for McPhail's Inc. to operate an asphaltic concrete plant at the northeast corner of Highways 101 and 37, after hearing protests that the site wasn't appropriate for the proposed plant and that the use was incompatible with residential zoning across Highway 101.

RESERVOIR HILL — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 13 acres between Oleander Avenue and Reservoir Drive, east of the future Highway 101 by-pass, to planned residential with one family homes on half-acre lots, by a 3-2 vote with Councilmen Joseph Gargiulo and Womack dissenting. Attorney Leland H. Jordan and George Gnoss Jr., representing property owners affected, opposed the rezoning, and there was a petition with 33 signatures favoring it. Councilmen viewed the proposed rezoning as a holding action, pending further study

SURPLUS PROPERTY — Authorized the sale of three surplus city cars, with a minimum bid of $300 each, and about 40 bicycles at a public auction at 10 a.m Saturday.

COMMITTEES — Voted to reappoint the members of the beautification, building code, plan review, underground utilities and school traffic committees for one more year.

SIDEWALK — Passed a resolution ordering construction of a sidewalk for 126 feet on the south side of Ignacio Boulevard between Alameda Del Prado and the highway interchange by the property owner, Hector and Nancy Rubini of San Rafael, and set 8 p.m. Jan. 26 for a public hearing.

HIGHWAY AGREEMENT — Approved an agreement with the State Division of Highways for the state to construct storm drainage facilities and sidewalk on Reichert Avenue and pave the new alignment of San Marin Drive,at a cost of $63,000 to the city.

FLOOD INSURANCE — Passed a resolution that the city intends to enact land use and control measures in flood plain areas, a step which will enable Novato residents to qualify for federal flood insurance.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned at 1:35 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House

Novato Council To Explore Land Offer For Park Site

The Novato City Council agreed last night to explore an offer by G. J. Garlick and Associates of Salt Lake City to sell 425 acres west of San Marin High School for park land.

The council voted 4-1 to discuss possible methods of acquiring the land with Garlick. Councilman J. Wayne Womack dissented.

Earlier the council had received a letter from attorney David Price Jones of Novato, representing Garlick, saying it appeared "that shortly" the property might not be available to the city.

Garlick has a 856-acre parcel, the Magetti Ranch, and he has given an option on a portion of the site to a builder, Jones wrote.

However, the unavailability of this portion doesn't make the property less attractive as a park site, Jones contended.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said the choices before the city would be outright purchase, lease purchase or parcel-by-parcel purchase.

Garlick originally offered to sell the land to the city for $600,000.

Womack argued that the city shouldn't attempt to acquire park land at this time, unless the property is donated. He opposed spending city funds for park land without authorization by the voters.

Leo R Andre of 1510 Vallejo Street said park land purchase "is okay if you have the money: but the streets aren't repaired yet."

Womack said there had not yet been a study of the cost involved in maintaining a major park, and the needed tax revenue.

Councilman Wayne Sartain suggested that the city study the possibility of acquiring the site "at some time," but felt there should be support in the community for it, and it should be financed by bonds.

The council then voted that a council committee should meet with Garlick to determine if he has a possible long-term financing proposal.

It was proposed that there be a closed session for negotiations.

Crime Consultant's Solution In Increasing Burglary Rate

By GEORGE NEVIN

A former police officer turned criminal justice consultant believes consolidation of police departments in Marin would provide better service for less money, but is not "a political reality."

Thomas A. Anderson of Mill Valley, a 10-year veteran of the San Francisco Police Department who describes himself as a 'progressive'' thinker, has put his experience, education and ideas to work in LEMPEC (Law Enforcement Management Police Education Consultants).

Anderson, who talks knowledgeably about difficulties facing police departments today, said he feels a combined "department of public services' in Marin could do much to attack the county's number one crime problem'' — burglaries.

"With only 19 per cent of all burglars caught and 2 or 3 per cent convicted, it's clear that crime, at least this one, does pay," said the 34-year-old Anderson.

A combined agency could help by setting up an effective burglary prevention program to educate homeowners to simple but effective devices and locks to protect their houses.

"Many burglaries are committed because people leave their homes open and invite theft," he said. A simple course of education could do much to combat the crime.

Other advantages of one countywide police department would be more incentive to officers and greater opportunity for promotion, more juvenile officers and decreased cost. There's only one disadvantage, he said: "It's not a political reality. What department would be willing to give up its independence?"

Anderson founded LEMPEC in January after 10 years on the San Francisco police force and graduate work at the University of California School of Criminology. At first he and 10 associates worked near Chicago, but Anderson decided to return to the Bay Area because "California is the most progressive state in law enforcement." Other states, he said, are "primitive."

THOMAS A. ANDERSON
Would unify Marin police

Some of the assignments his firm is prepared to handle for Marin agencies are police management studies, community relations programs, police education and training studies, personnel testing and evaluation, manpower appraisal and classification and salary review.

Assisting him isa staff which includes a court administrator, a professor, a psychologist, an attorney and a police chief.

An example of the firm's offerings is an educational program it is developing for John F. Kennedy University in Martinez, leading to a degree in political science. It deals with every aspect of a person's contact with law enforcement from arrest through eventual release.

Although Anderson has not made any study on law reform ("too time-consuming''), he does believe that there are good laws and bad laws, and bad ones should be changed.

"It's a tragedy of our legal system that some laws are enacted in a different historical period and are carried over and still applied and enforced when conditions change," he said.

In this category he places marijuana laws, which he calls "too hard to enforce." But he stopped short of calling pot laws "poor," although they're not "doing the job they were intended to do."

Anderson said he favors penalties for pot possession but increasing them for heroin pushers. He thinks much more scientific study is needed before marijuana is legalized, however, and the answer to drug abuse is education, especially in the primary grades.

The one thing that pleases Anderson about the new crop of policemen more than any other factor is their education, helped in part by a state requirement that they have some college background.

"We're in a renaissance of law enforcement now," he said, brought on by the passage in 1968 of the federal omnibus crime control bill. The funds made available by the law have permitted hiring a much higher quality of officer, he believes.

"The individual entering law enforcement today in California is the best ever. He's a more complete person, better educated, more concerned and has a more professional approach," he said.

The officer of tomorrow, he said "will be totally service oriented" — he'll be a social worker in the best sense of the term." [illegible] of police departments than ever before, and officers need to have the education and background to cope.

"Departments today have to be think centers," he said, "and officers have to be creative thinkers. This is what our programs are trying to bring about."

PUC Denies Greyhound Cutbacks

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The California Public Utilities Commission yesterday rejected new cutbacks in passenger service sought by Greyhound Lines in Southern and Central Marin.

Greyhound's application, protested by Marin County and the Golden Gate Bridge District in a hearing in October, proposed increasing from 30 to 45 minutes the gap between buses on three routes.

Greyhound's application for the cutbacks, originally filed in August, said it would be followed soon by a separate application for new fare increases, and that the cutbacks were designed to reduce the amount of fare increase that will be sought.

Debris Removal Bids Called

Fairfax City Council last night approved specifications and called bids for Dec. 21 on removal of debris from the Wynn property, 29 Canyon Road, in a special meeting last night. The job is expected to cost about $3,000 according to Dale W. Hostrup, building inspector.

The council then spent two and one-half hours in closed session, to begin winnowing 89 applications for the job of city administrator. The job will pay up to $15,000 per year, depending on experience.

Mayor Frank J. Egger Jr. said the council did not decide when to resume screening the applications.

Air-Boat Saves Stranded Pair

A Coast Guard experimental craft made its first Bay Area rescue off Strawberry Point yesterday, according to the Coast Guard.

The air cushioned vehicle, one of two being run experimentally in the Bay Area, rescued James C. Thompson of Redwood City and a companion at 1:15 p.m., the Coast Guard said.

The craft, which can skim over the surface of the water at 60 miles an hour, made the rescue after Thompson's sailboat apparently ran aground, the Coast Guard said.

Outlays For Campaigns

Marin's new state senator, Republican Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley, spent $134,548 getting elected to the $19,200-a-year job.

Ernest N. Kettenhofen of San Anselmo, Republican nominee for the state Board of Equalization, spent $140,510 getting defeated by Democrat William M. Bennett of Kentfield, who spent $6,858.

Behr's Democratic opponent, Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael, spent $49,247, according to campaign statements filed by yesterday's deadline at the Marin Civic Center and in Sacramento.

All of the above figures were total expenditures for both the June primary and November general elections.

Total costs of other major candidates were $98,518 by Russell R. Miller of San Francisco, unsuccessful Democratic nominee in the Sixth Congressional District, and $68,817 by the Republican incumbent, William S. Mailliard of San Francisco.

The only opponents who spent close to the same amount were Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, at $6,250, and Democrat Joseph A. Forest of Novato, at $7,207. Bagley, who won, raised $9,002 more for the general election than he spent, reporting the balance was "deposited in trust for future campaign purposes."

Robert A. Smallman of Kentfield, successful candidate for Marin Municipal Court judge, reported spending $11,384 in the general election. His opponent, Ernest C. Zunino of Fairfax, did not file a statement.

Failure to file can be a misdemeanor or a felony, but willful violation of the law must be proved in the latter case. As a practical matter, no one is prosecuted for violating campaign reporting laws.

Candidates who fail to file, however, cannot take office if they win, and those who lose cannot seek elective office again. In both cases, however, all that is needed to clear these barriers is getting a routine court order extending the deadline — even by years — to file belatedly.

Dr. Justin L. Williams, winning candidate in the Ross School District, was the only winner who failed to file by yesterday's deadline.

Behr's statement showed he spent $49,860 in the general, compared to $84,688 in the primary election. He listed $28,059 in almost 400 contributions for the general election, none over $500, plus $5,750 from fund raising events.

His deficit in November was $16,051. He had a $16,163 deficit in the June primary, despite the use then of $13,000 of his own money.

Peevey got, and spent, $44,704 for the general election, including $15,572 in donations under $500 from almost 600 persons. Individual contributions over $500, which must be reported, were: Vallejo Dinner Committee, $601; Marin Dinner Club, $9,000; June Oppen Degnan, $750; California State Alliance Legislative Defense Fund, $1,000; California Labor (Marin) COPE (Committee on Political Education), $1,000; Labor Friends of Michael Peevey, $5,000; anonymous, $700; R.E. Thompson, $1,000; and fund-raising events, $9,750.

The third candidate in the Senate race, Esther Anne Smart of Larkspur, nominee of the American Independent Party, spent $622, of which $568 was donated and $53 was her own money

Kettenhofen raised $94,116 for the general election, and put in $5,000 of his own money, but still had an $11,000 deficit. His contributions over $500 included: R.F. Ingold, $4,960; Good Government Committee, $3,000; anonymous, $1,000; Forrest E. Anderson, $1,000; anonymous, $1,987; Commerce Service Corp., $1,000; Reagan-Reinecke Team, $30,000; Reagen-Kettenhofen receipt, $6,858; Good Government Fund, $1,000; Reagan Team '70, $1,000; William T. Bagley, $5,000; Kettenhofen Dinner Committee, $5,500, and anonymous, $1,000.

Kettenhofen's contributions through the Reagan administration thus totaled $37,858, not including the $5,000 from Bagley.

Kettenhofen also put in $27,474 of his own money in his primary campaign.

Bennett raised and spent $5,303 in the November election, and reported contributions of $1,000 from the Teamsters, $500 from the Committee on Political Education, AFL-CIO, and $250 from the Bartenders Union.

Miller, reportedly the biggest spender among all San Francisco candidates in November, received and spent $82,618 for the general election. Mailliard spent $59,570 in the general election, including $1,176 of his own money.

Candidates for congressional office are not subject to the state law requiring detailed reporting of contributions.

In the First Congressional District, incumbent Republican Don H. Clausen of Crescent City reported spending $38,729 in the November election, which he won. He listed about 25 contributors of $500 or more, including a Mr. Erickson of Marin at $1,000.

Clausen's Democratic challenger, Dr. William M. Kortum of Petaluma, did not file.

Bagley's only contributors over $500 were industrialist Norton Simon, who gave 24 shares of stock in his company worth $975 after sale, and $3,000 from United for California, a San Francisco based organization. Forest gave $300 to his own campaign.

Glenn A. Bernd of Sebastopol, nominee of the American Independent Party for the Assembly seat, reported spending $470, including $320 in contributions and $150 of his own money.

In the Marin Municipal Water District, Ray W. Foreaker Jr. spent $257, of which $119 was donated and $138 his own money. The incumbent he defeated, Dr. Leo L. Stanley, filed a statement that his campaign cost less than $200.

In other Marin elections, all but one candidate filed statements reporting their campaigns cost less than $200. The exception was John W. Larson, losing candidate in the Ross School District, who reported spending $364, all of it his own money.

The only other candidates who failed to file, other than Zunino and Williams, were Harry Murphy, losing candidate in the Fairfax School District, and Tom Miller, losing candidate in the Strawberry Recreation District.

Jail Time And Probation On Single Count

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court has sent Rebecca Matthews, 21, of Forest Knolls, to jail for 30 days and placed her on probation for three years after deciding she is not a mentally disordered sex offender.

His decision was made after reading reports of two doctors who had examined her after she had pleaded guilty to one count of sex perversion and another of battery upon a police officer.

Miss Matthews was arrested at Kent Lake Aug. 2 after reportedly engaging in sex acts in the nude with several men while a crowd of hippies and children watched, watched, played guitars and joked.

Man Sentenced On Pot Charge

Willard Homer Hammond, 35, of no known address, has been sentenced to the time he has served in Marin County Jail since his arrest Nov. 14 on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Hammond, a prole violator, had earlier admitted having the pot when arrested in Sausalito. He was sentenced by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court.

Larkspur Ideas To Get Hearing

Recommendations drafted last month during Larkspur's town meeting will be presented tomorrow at 8 p.m. at city hall to the city council, planning commission and parks and recreation commission.

According to Joan Sestak, chairman of the town meeting, the 15 recommendations will be discussed by the city agencies and the town meeting committee to determine solutions to problems outlined by the recommendations.

The recommendations deal with establishment of bicycle paths, park development, marsh preservation, zoning, the proposed ferry terminal, downtown renovation and a study of the city's plan.

Rest Stop Plan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California's Highway Master Plan calls for landscaped safety highway rests to be placed one-half hour's driving time apart on the state's Interstate Highway System.

Double Sessions At Kenilworth Likely

Double sessions were forecast last night for Kenilworth Junior High School as teachers described the school as a pushing-shoving cage rather than a place of learning.

Principal Douglas C. Arthur and a team of teachers told the Petaluma Board of Education that 1,127 students have been crowded into facilities designed for 850

The teachers told of overtaxed facilities in the library, gymnasium, cafeteria, hallways and offices. They said some faculty members have no classrooms of their own and must be "traveling teachers''using empty rooms in off-hours.

Georgia Squires, a social studies teacher, described the psychological effects of crowding as one of the main causes of discipline problems. She said supervision has become almost impossible and that crowding intensifies agressiveness and overstimulates the young people.

The panel said the double session plan received the unanimous endorsement of the entire faculty. They said it would also accommodate future eastside growth that may increase the school enrollment to 1,500 before the new junior high school opens in the fall of 1972.

In the double session plan, the student body would be divided into two separate groups with one-half in school from 7 a.m. to 2:10 p.m. and the second half from 12:20 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

They said the academic day would not be shortened, but that lunch hours would be reduced to 20-minute snack breaks. Arthur said the proposed schedule reflected the 45-minute class period now in effect, but that it could be cut to 40 minutes and the school day reduced by one hour and still meet minimum state standards.

Although the board took no formal action, most seemed to agree that double sessions will be necessary for the spring semester. Board president Sol Fishman explained the crowding was caused by a slow down in school construction because of the inability of the state to sell construction bonds when it was necessary.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer had no recommendation, but said he would approve one of the plans within two weeks.

The board approved an agreement last night that will permit elementary students to study ecology on city land on Sonoma Mountain.

Alfred L. Walker, principal at McKinley School, said agreement had been reached with the city on use of the 395-acre parcel known as the Lafferty Ranch.

The board also granted a 7 per cent salary increase to Asst. Supt. George W. Castleberry, bringing his salary to $21,000; approved employment of 12 seniors at Rancho Cotate and Petaluma high schools to lead special discussion seminars with other students at a cost of $1.60 per hour under funding from grants, and approved hiring of Karen Prestis at a salary of $5,532.

Jury Finds Man Guilty Of Sales

A jury in Marin Superior Court yesterday convicted George William Beale, 22, of San Rafael, of three counts of sale of marijuana but acquitted his codefendant, Robert S. Jones Jr., 24, of Forest Knolls.

Jones had been accused of a sale of dangerous drugs in April 1969 and being in on a pot sale with Beale in May of that year.

Beale was charged with selling pot to drug agents in January, March and May of 1969.

After hearing his first criminal jury trial, Judge Henry J. Broderick, who took the bench in November, set sentencing for Beale for Jan. 26.

Injuries Minor In 2-Car Crash

Two persons received minor injuries at 7:26 p.m. yesterday in a two-car accident at Francisco Boulevard and Bellam Boulevard, San Rafael, police reported.

Susan Rae Echols, 22, of 42 Plaza Drive, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised forehead and left leg. Herbert Louis Lucas, 49, of 17 Sonoma Way, Corte Madera, a passenger in the Echols car, was to see his own doctor for a bruised forehead.

The Echols car was northbound on Francisco Boulevard when it collided with an eastbound car driven by Kandice Earl Stafford, 22, of 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma, according to police.

Extension Of Time On Trailers

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night reluctantly approved time extensions for two "watchman's trailers" but decided to take a look later at the commission policy on such trailers.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner pointed out that "we seem to live in a time where security is needed. Maybe it won't in the future and we won't have this problem."

Commission Chairman Joseph J. Garbarino said that one of the watchmen's trailers would be in an area (Gary Place) "that needs a general dressing up." He also asked that the commission's policy which has been to grant use permits for watchmen's trailers be reviewed.

The two trailers approved were granted two-year permits. They are at 51 Harbor Street and at 58 Gary Place.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

HORSE — Granted John C. Alioto permission to keep one horse at 12 Blossom Court on a nine-month trial basis.

SIGN — Approved an illuminated wall sign for Security Pacific Bank at 1242 Fifth Avenue.

FENCE — Approved an oriental type fence about 5 feet in height for a residence at 325 H Street.

DENIAL — Turned down unanimously a request by Edwin Beddard to erect a 10 to 12 foot high fence at his residence at 32 Chestnut Avenue after a neighbor protested.

SALES OFFICE — Granted a one-year extension for a temporary building used as a sales office of a car lot at 495 Francisco Boulevard.

ANNEXATION — Recommended annexation to the city of a lot adjacent to Valley View Drive owned by Charles Grandi as well as three slivers owned by other persons with the provision there be no annexation fee charged for the small parcels.

Couple Injured In 101 Crash

Two 21-year-old residents of Windsor, Sonoma County, were injured yesterday at 3:20 p.m. in a two-car accident on Highway 101 at the foot of California Park Hill in San Rafael, according to the California Highway Patrol.

David A. and Linda Russell said they would see their own doctors for neck and back pains.

Officers said their car, northbound on the freeway, collided with one driven by Leonard D. Smith Jr., 20, of 171 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Transfer Of Kidney Unit Urged

The board of supervisors yesterday asked the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin to see whether one of San Francisco's six kidney treatment centers could be moved to Marin.

The board tacked the request as a rider, onto unanimous approval of a health planning council report that said Marin should not go to the expense of setting up its own dialysis center for kidney patients. The available chronic-treatment centers in San Francisco are not operating at capacity, the council report said.

COULD SUFFER

Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, said if a Marin kidney center were established despite the council's findings, Marin might suffer when it soughtregional health planning approval for other medical projects.

"If we're going to be regional, let's start being regional — let's not isolate Marin," Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said. "Why can't one of those six units be transferred over to Marin?"

Board chairman John F. McInnis, whom Arrigoni called "the father of regional government," replied, "You shouldn't have askedthat question. The regional comprehensive health planning council may become a regional government that may replace us all."

McInnis warned that in terms of medical facilities, Marin is "rich. . . By population count and medical attention count we don't merit many of the things we have," compared to other Bay Area counties.

What's the council going to do — tell us we can't have many of the things we do have? There are too many questions regarding the regional approach that don't have any answers," McInnis said.

"Each and every month you're losing more options and authority," Campanella added.

TOO COSTLY REPORT

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin adopted on Nov. 18 its report that a dialysis center would be too costly in terms of equipment and staff, in light of availability of such centers in San Francisco. The report said Marin needed an emergency kidney machine for use in acute kidney failures, but that chronic treatment should be handled through San Francisco. The report required board action yesterday, Campanella told the supervisors.

Families of kidney patients in Marin have been urging creation of a Marin treatment center, and have been collecting Betty Crocker premium coupons to obtain a small machine.

Tiburon Appeal On Sewage Idea

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has called for formation of a citizens committee to help the district build a tertiary sewage treatment plant which would produce clear water effluent.

President Robert A. Sterling said the board called Monday for interested persons, especially members of conservation groups, to assist in planning and building the plant, which he said would be the first of its kind in California.

The $1.25 million plant would be built with a government grant, for which the district is applying. It would use an activated carbon filtering process to produce clear water.

Persons interested in serving on the citizens committee may submit their names to Sterling at the district's plant at 2001 Paradise Drive, Tiburon.

Bicycle Path Due Discussion

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the city hall, will discuss the status of city bicycle path proposals.

The commission will consider striping Doherty Drive to provide a four-foot wide bicycle easement, discuss negotiations with the Tiscornia estate on acquiring an easement for a bicycle path from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road and the integration of Corte Madera's planned bike paths with Larkspur's.

The commission also will consider setting criteria on the amount of land subdivision developers will be required to donate to public use and setting a timetable for master planning of city parks.

Legless Youth Has A Spirited Outlook

By BONNIE BARD

Danny Stankalis waited nervously in his wheelchair yesterday for a confrontation with the man accused of injuring him, but it wasn't to be.

The scheduled preliminary hearing was waived by Lewis Edward Meyers, 59, charged with felony drunken driving in the accident that cut off both of Stankalis's legs. Meyers will appear for arraignment in Sonoma County Superior Court next Tuesday at 9 a.m.

Stankalis, 17, chain-smoked cigarettes in the solarium at Hillcrest Hospital and joked to relieve the tense atmosphere as the first meeting with Meyers was anticipated.

When word was received from Judge Alexander J. McMahon that the hearing had been canceled, the youth said, "Boy, I'm glad of that," packed his belongings and was released from the hospital a few hours later.

Stankalis was injured on Nov. 17 when a car Petaluma police said was driven by Meyers struck him as he was bending over the motor of hiw own car making repairs. The impact of the bumpers acted as scissors on his legs.

His eyes bright and full of life, Stankalis wheeled around the hospital with youthful energy. His parents, Roger and Velma Vlastos, were obviously proud of his rapid adjustment to being an amputee and seemed to gain strength from his high spirits.

Stankalis said he hoped to be fitted with artificial limbs as soon as possible and to get back to full mobility.

With an attitude of hope and plans for the future, Stankalis hopes to collect enough money to build a future.

"All I want is money," he said. "I want to have bed sheets made out of $100 bills."

The family has attorneys preparing insurance claims, but his mother quickly reminded him. "It's going to be a long, drawn out process."

Mounds of cards and letters of concern from Petalumans have brightened the spirits of Stankalis and his family. "Everyone has been so kind, we certainly could never thank all of them personally," his mother said.

While in the solarium, Stankalis took a call from Paul Zell of Zell Furniture Designs of Petaluma offering him a job.

"He (Zell) says he's got a job I can do from my wheel chair," he said, beaming with assurance that he can still be useful.

With an eye to the distant future, Stankalis said he is thinking of working with the military in a medical program so that he can use his experience as an amputee to help men maimed in the war.

Chrysler Next

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers today turned its attention to Chrysler Corp., the last of the automotive Big Three without a national contract agreement with the union.

Ratification of its contract with Ford Motor Co. began today as the union's 166,000 members at Ford began voting on a tentative agreement.

TWA Scoffs At Collapse Rumor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Trans World Airlines (TWA) says it will lose up to $65 million on operations this year, but assured major financial backers rumors the carrier faced collapse "are completely unfounded."

Charles C. Tillinghast Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said in a formal statement after a 90-minute closed meeting that profits were expected for the airline in 1972 and 1973, with marginal results for 1971.

Tillinghast told newsmen the meeting had been scheduled for next month.

Economist Sees Joblessness Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Nathanial Goldfinger, the AFL-CIO's top economist, says unemployment will rise from the present 5.8 per cent to 6.5 per cent or more by next fall unless President Nixon initiates a "very decisive and very massive stimulus to the economy."

Goldfinger said an increase to 6.5 per cent would mean 5.5 million jobless and "it may be even higher because the whole trend in the economy today is one, unfortunately, of stagnation."

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

Crime Consultant's Solution In Increasing Burglary Rate

By GEORGE NEVIN

A former police officer turned criminal justice consultant believes consolidation of police departments in Marin would provide better service for less money, but is not "a political reality."

Thomas A. Anderson of Mill Valley, a 10-year veteran of the San Francisco Police Department who describes himself as a "progressive" thinker, has put his experience, education and ideas to work in LEMPEC (Law Enforcement Management Police Education Consultants).

THOMAS A. ANDERSON
Would unify Marin police

Anderson, who talks knowledgeably about difficulties facing police departments today, said he feels a combined "department of public services" in Marin could do much to attack the county's number one crime problem" — burglaries.

"With only 19 per cent of all burglars caught and 2 or 3 per cent convicted, it's clear that crime, at least this one, does pay," said the 34-year-old Anderson.

A combined agency could help by setting up an effective burglary prevention program to educate homeowners to simple but effective devices and locks to protect their houses.

"Many burglaries are committed because people leave their homes open and invite theft," he said. A simple course of education could do much to combat the crime.

Other advantages of one countywide police department would be more incentive to officers and greater opportunity for promotion, more juvenile officers and decreased cost. There's only one disadvantage, he said: "It's not a political reality. What department would be willing to give up its independence?"

Anderson founded LEMPEC in January after 10 years on the San Francisco police force and graduate work at the University of California School of Criminology. At first he and 10 associates worked near Chicago, but Anderson decided to return to the Bay Area because "California is the most progressive state in law enforcement." Other states, he said, are "primitive."

Some of the assignments his firm is prepared to handle for Marin agencies are police management studies, community relations programs, police education and training studies, personnel testing and evaluation, manpower appraisal and classification and salary review.

Assisting him isa staff which includes a court administrator, a professor, a psychologist, an attorney and a police chief.

An example of the firm's offerings is an educational program it is developing for John F. Kennedy University in Martinez, leading to a degree in political science. It deals with every aspect of a person's contact with law enforcement from arrest through eventual release.

Although Anderson has not made any study on law reform ("too time-consuming"), he does believe that there are good laws and bad laws, and bad ones should be changed.

"It's a tragedy of our legal system that some laws are enacted in a different historical period and are carried over and still applied and enforced when conditions change," he said.

In this category he places marijuana laws, which he calls "too hard to enforce." But he stopped short of calling pot laws "poor," although they're not "doing the job they were intended to do."

Anderson said he favors penalties for pot possession but increasing them for heroin pushers. He thinks much more scientific study is needed before marijuana is legalized, however, and the answer to drug abuse is education, especially in the primary grades.

The one thing that pleases Anderson about the new crop of policemen more than any other factor is their education, helped in part by a state requirement that they have some college background.

"We're in a renaissance of law enforcement now," he said, brought on by the passage in 1968 of the federal omnibus crime control bill. The funds made available by the law have permitted hiring a much higher quality of officer, he believes.

"The individual entering law enforcement today in California is the best ever. He's a more complete person, better educated, more concerned and has a more professional approach," he said.

The officer of tomorrow, he said "will be totally service oriented" — he'll be a social worker in the best sense of the term." [illegible] of police departments than ever before, and officers need to have the education and background to cope.

"Departments today have to be think centers," he said, "and officers have to be creative thinkers. This is what our programs are trying to bring about."

PUC Denies Greyhound Cutbacks

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The California Public Utilities Commission yesterday rejected new cutbacks in passenger service sought by Greyhound Lines in Southern and Central Marin.

Greyhound's application, protested by Marin County and the Golden Gate Bridge District in a hearing in October, proposed increasing from 30 to 45 minutes the gap between buses on three routes.

Greyhound's application for the cutbacks, originally filed in August, said it would be followed soon by a separate application for new fare increases, and that the cutbacks were designed to reduce the amount of fare increase that will be sought.

Debris Removal Bids Called

Fairfax City Council last night approved specifications and called bids for Dec. 21 on removal of debris from the Wynn property, 29 Canyon Road, in a special meeting last night. The job is expected to cost about $3,000 according to Dale W. Hostrup, building inspector.

The council then spent two and one-half hours in closed session, to begin winnowing 89 applications for the job of city administrator. The job will pay up to $15,000 per year, depending on experience.

Mayor Frank J. Egger Jr. said the council did not decide when to resume screening the applications.

Air-Boat Saves Stranded Pair

A Coast Guard experimental craft made its first Bay Area rescue off Strawberry Point yesterday, according to the Coast Guard.

The air cushioned vehicle, one of two being run experimentally in the Bay Area, rescued James C. Thompson of Redwood City and a companion at 1:15 p.m., the Coast Guard said.

The craft, which can skim over the surface of the water at 60 miles an hour, made the rescue after Thompson's sailboat apparently ran aground, the Coast Guard said.

Outlays For Campaigns

Marin's new state senator, Republican Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley, spent $134,548 getting elected to the $19,200-a-year job.

Ernest N. Kettenhofen of San Anselmo, Republican nominee for the state Board of Equalization, spent $140,510 getting defeated by Democrat William M. Bennett of Kentfield, who spent $6,858.

Behr's Democratic opponent, Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael, spent $49,247, according to campaign statements filed by yesterday's deadline at the Marin Civic Center and in Sacramento.

All of the above figures were total expenditures for both the June primary and November general elections.

Total costs of other major candidates were $98,518 by Russell R. Miller of San Francisco, unsuccessful Democratic nominee in the Sixth Congressional District, and $68,817 by the Republican incumbent, William S. Mailliard of San Francisco.

The only opponents who spent close to the same amount were Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, at $6,250, and Democrat Joseph A. Forest of Novato, at $7,207. Bagley, who won, raised $9,002 more for the general election than he spent, reporting the balance was "deposited in trust for future campaign purposes."

Robert A. Smallman of Kentfield, successful candidate for Marin Municipal Court judge, reported spending $11,384 in the general election. His opponent, Ernest C. Zunino of Fairfax, did not file a statement.

Failure to file can be a misdemeanor or a felony, but willful violation of the law must be proved in the latter case. As a practical matter, no one is prosecuted for violating campaign reporting laws.

Candidates who fail to file, however, cannot take office if they win, and those who lose cannot seek elective office again. In both cases, however, all that is needed to clear these barriers is getting a routine court order extending the deadline — even by years — to file belatedly.

Dr. Justin L. Williams, winning candidate in the Ross School District, was the only winner who failed to file by yesterday's deadline.

Behr's statement showed he spent $49,860 in the general, compared to $84,688 in the primary election. He listed $28,059 in almost 400 contributions for the general election, none over $500, plus $5,750 from fund raising events.

His deficit in November was $16,051. He had a $16,163 deficit in the June primary, despite the use then of $13,000 of his own money.

Peevey got, and spent, $44,704 for the general election, including $15,572 in donations under $500 from almost 600 persons. Individual contributions over $500, which must be reported, were: Vallejo Dinner Committee, $601; Marin Dinner Club, $9,000; June Oppen Degnan, $750; California State Alliance Legislative Defense Fund, $1,000; California Labor (Marin) COPE (Committee on Political Education), $1,000; Labor Friends of Michael Peevey, $5,000; anonymous, $700; R.E. Thompson, $1,000; and fund-raising events, $9,750.

The third candidate in the Senate race, Esther Anne Smart of Larkspur, nominee of the American Independent Party, spent $622, of which $568 was donated and $53 was her own money

Kettenhofen raised $94,116 for the general election, and put in $5,000 of his own money, but still had an $11,000 deficit. His contributions over $500 included: R.F. Ingold, $4,960; Good Government Committee, $3,000; anonymous, $1,000; Forrest E. Anderson, $1,000; anonymous, $1,987; Commerce Service Corp., $1,000; Reagan-Reinecke Team, $30,000; Reagen-Kettenhofen receipt, $6,858; Good Government Fund, $1,000; Reagan Team '70, $1,000; William T. Bagley, $5,000; Kettenhofen Dinner Committee, $5,500, and anonymous, $1,000.

Kettenhofen's contributions through the Reagan administration thus totaled $37,858, not including the $5,000 from Bagley.

Kettenhofen also put in $27,474 of his own money in his primary campaign.

Bennett raised and spent $5,303 in the November election, and reported contributions of $1,000 from the Teamsters, $500 from the Committee on Political Education, AFL-CIO, and $250 from the Bartenders Union.

Miller, reportedly the biggest spender among all San Francisco candidates in November, received and spent $82,618 for the general election. Mailliard spent $59,570 in the general election, including $1,176 of his own money.

Candidates for congressional office are not subject to the state law requiring detailed reporting of contributions.

In the First Congressional District, incumbent Republican Don H. Clausen of Crescent City reported spending $38,729 in the November election, which he won. He listed about 25 contributors of $500 or more, including a Mr. Erickson of Marin at $1,000.

Clausen's Democratic challenger, Dr. William M. Kortum of Petaluma, did not file.

Bagley's only contributors over $500 were industrialist Norton Simon, who gave 24 shares of stock in his company worth $975 after sale, and $3,000 from United for California, a San Francisco based organization. Forest gave $200 to his own campaign.

Glenn A. Bernd of Sebastopol, nominee of the American Independent Party for the Assembly seat, reported spending $470, including $320 in contributions and $150 of his own money.

In the Marin Municipal Water District, Ray W. Foreaker Jr. spent $257, of which $119 was donated and $138 his own money. The incumbent he defeated, Dr. Leo L. Stanley, filed a statement that his campaign cost less than $200.

In other Marin elections, all but one candidate filed statements reporting their campaigns cost less than $200. The exception was John W. Larson, losing candidate in the Ross School District, who reported spending $364, all of it his own money.

The only other candidates who failed to file, other than Zunino and Williams, were Harry Murphy, losing candidate in the Fairfax School District, and Tom Miller, losing candidate in the Strawberry Recreation District.

Jail Time And Probation On Single Count

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court has sent Rebecca Matthews, 21, of Forest Knolls, to jail for 30 days and placed her on probation for three years after deciding she is not a mentally disordered sex offender.

His decision was made after reading reports of two doctors who had examined her after she had pleaded guilty to one count of sex perversion and another of battery upon a police officer.

Miss Matthews was arrested at Kent Lake Aug. 2 after reportedly engaging in sex acts in the nude with several men while a crowd of hippies and children watched, watched, played guitars and joked.

Man Sentenced On Pot Charge

Willard Homer Hammond, 35, of no known address, has been sentenced to the time he has served in Marin County Jail since his arrest Nov. 14 on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Hammond, a prole violator, had earlier admitted having the pot when arrested in Sausalito. He was sentenced by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court.

Larkspur Ideas To Get Hearing

Recommendations drafted last month during Larkspur's town meeting will be presented tomorrow at 8 p.m. at city hall to the city council, planning commission and parks and recreation commission.

According to Joan Sestak, chairman of the town meeting, the 15 recommendations will be discussed by the city agencies and the town meeting committee to determine solutions to problems outlined by the recommendations.

The recommendations deal with establishment of bicycle paths, park development, marsh preservation, zoning, the proposed ferry terminal, downtown renovation and a study of the city's plan.

Rest Stop Plan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California's Highway Master Plan calls for landscaped safety highway rests to be placed one-half hour's driving time apart on the state's Interstate Highway System.

Double Sessions At Kenilworth Likely

Double sessions were forecast last night for Kenilworth Junior High School as teachers described the school as a pushing-shoving cage rather than a place of learning.

Principal Douglas C. Arthur and a team of teachers told the Petaluma Board of Education that 1,127 students have been crowded into facilities designed for 850

The teachers told of overtaxed facilities in the library, gymnasium, cafeteria, hallways and offices. They said some faculty members have no classrooms of their own and must be "traveling teachers" using empty rooms in off-hours.

Georgia Squires, a social studies teacher, described the psychological effects of crowding as one of the main causes of discipline problems. She said supervision has become almost impossible and that crowding intensifies agressiveness and overstimulates the young people.

The panel said the double session plan received the unanimous endorsement of the entire faculty. They said it would also accommodate future eastside growth that may increase the school enrollment to 1,500 before the new junior high school opens in the fall of 1972.

In the double session plan, the student body would be divided into two separate groups with one-half in school from 7 a.m. to 2:10 p.m. and the second half from 12:20 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

They said the academic day would not be shortened, but that lunch hours would be reduced to 20-minute snack breaks. Arthur said the proposed schedule reflected the 45-minute class period now in effect, but that it could be cut to 40 minutes and the school day reduced by one hour and still meet minimum state standards.

Although the board took no formal action, most seemed to agree that double sessions will be necessary for the spring semester. Board president Sol Fishman explained the crowding was caused by a slow down in school construction because of the inability of the state to sell construction bonds when it was necessary.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer had no recommendation, but said he would approve one of the plans within two weeks.

The board approved an agreement last night that will permit elementary students to study ecology on city land on Sonoma Mountain.

Alfred L. Walker, principal at McKinley School, said agreement had been reached with the city on use of the 395-acre parcel known as the Lafferty Ranch.

The board also granted a 7 per cent salary increase to Asst. Supt. George W. Castleberry, bringing his salary to $21,000; approved employment of 12 seniors at Rancho Cotate and Petaluma high schools to lead special discussion seminars with other students at a cost of $1.60 per hour under funding from grants, and approved hiring of Karen Prestis at a salary of $5,532.

Jury Finds Man Guilty Of Sales

A jury in Marin Superior Court yesterday convicted George William Beale, 22, of San Rafael, of three counts of sale of marijuana but acquitted his codefendant, Robert S. Jones Jr., 24, of Forest Knolls.

Jones had been accused of a sale of dangerous drugs in April 1969 and being in on a pot sale with Beale in May of that year.

Beale was charged with selling pot to drug agents in January, March and May of 1969.

After hearing his first criminal jury trial, Judge Henry J. Broderick, who took the bench in November, set sentencing for Beale for Jan. 26.

Injuries Minor In 2-Car Crash

Two persons received minor injuries at 7:26 p.m. yesterday in a two-car accident at Francisco Boulevard and Bellam Boulevard, San Rafael, police reported.

Susan Rae Echols, 22, of 42 Plaza Drive, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised forehead and left leg. Herbert Louis Lucas, 49, of 17 Sonoma Way, Corte Madera, a passenger in the Echols car, was to see his own doctor for a bruised forehead.

The Echols car was northbound on Francisco Boulevard when it collided with an eastbound car driven by Kandice Earl Stafford, 22, of 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma, according to police.

Extension Of Time On Trailers

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night reluctantly approved time extensions for two "watchman's trailers" but decided to take a look later at the commission policy on such trailers.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner pointed out that "we seem to live in a time where security is needed. Maybe it won't in the future and we won't have this problem."

Commission Chairman Joseph J. Garbarino said that one of the watchmen's trailers would be in an area (Gary Place) "that needs a general dressing up." He also asked that the commission's policy which has been to grant use permits for watchmen's trailers be reviewed.

The two trailers approved were granted two-year permits. They are at 51 Harbor Street and at 58 Gary Place.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

HORSE — Granted John C. Alioto permission to keep one horse at 12 Blossom Court on a nine-month trial basis.

SIGN — Approved an illuminated wall sign for Security Pacific Bank at 1242 Fifth Avenue.

FENCE — Approved an oriental type fence about 5 feet in height for a residence at 325 H Street.

DENIAL — Turned down unanimously a request by Edwin Beddard to erect a 10 to 12 foot high fence at his residence at 32 Chestnut Avenue after a neighbor protested.

SALES OFFICE — Granted a one-year extension for a temporary building used as a sales office of a car lot at 495 Francisco Boulevard.

ANNEXATION — Recommended annexation to the city of a lot adjacent to Valley View Drive owned by Charles Grandi as well as three slivers owned by other persons with the provision there be no annexation fee charged for the small parcels.

Couple Injured In 101 Crash

Two 21-year-old residents of Windsor, Sonoma County, were injured yesterday at 3:20 p.m. in a two-car accident on Highway 101 at the foot of California Park Hill in San Rafael, according to the California Highway Patrol.

David A. and Linda Russell said they would see their own doctors for neck and back pains.

Officers said their car, northbound on the freeway, collided with one driven by Leonard D. Smith Jr., 20, of 171 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Bruce, Gardiner Reach A Truce In Juvenile Cases

A truce has been reached between County Administrator Alan Bruce and Judge Samuel W. Gardiner over the placement of juvenile court wards in institutions.

Judge Gardiner had threatened to hold Bruce and his assistant, Thomas F. Campanella, in contempt of court for interfering in such proceedings by refusing to approve the payment of county funds in some cases.

Concerned over the expense of placing youngsters in such institutions as Sunny Hills, where costs often run several hundred dollars a month, the board of supervisors had ordered Bruce to intercede.

Yesterday, Bruce, Judge Gardiner and County Probation Officer John W. Brewer agreed to work out a plan where the costs will be discussed before placements are made by the court.

Furthermore, Judge Gardiner agreed that it is reasonable that the county place a maximum amount on the funds that can be used for such placements, but not to make decisions on individual cases.

It is also planned that the county revenue officer will investigate the possibility of the families of the youngsters bearing a part of the costs, and if it is deemed they can, he will set up a payment schedule.

It is also planned that before such placements are made, a representative of the Community Mental Health Services will review each case to decide if there is a community agency that could be used instead of a private institution.

Bolinas PUD Panel Sets Closed Talks

Directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District will meet in closed session today at 7 p.m. to discuss hiring of a maintenance foreman. The district's foreman Edward H. Genazzi, died last week.

The board's regular meeting will follow the personnel session, according to clerk Jane Boyer.

Brazil, largest country in South America, is the fifth largest in the world.

Ice Age Fossil Discovery In Labrea Tar Pits Hailed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The discovery of prehistoric fossils of seeds, insects, twigs and leaves from the Ice Age was reported Tuesday and described by an archaeologist as "the equivalent of the discovery of King Tut's tomb"

Scientists digging in the Labrea tar pits adjacent to the county art museum here announced the find.

Project director George Miller said the discovery was unusual in that seeds, sod, leaves, branches and stems hardly ever remain fossilized. Also found were bones from an arctic musk ox.

Miller said a seed from a cypress tree which does not now grow in California and twigs from a now extinct juniper indicated that the climate in Southern California was much cooler 10,000 to 40,000 years ago than it is today.

Nixon Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will hold a nationally televised news conference at 7 p.m. Thursday, his first formal news conference since July 30.

City Votes Ban On Phosphates

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Detergents sold here after June 30, 1972, must be phosphate-free.

The City Council voted Tuesday to ban the sale of detergents containing phosphates after that date and, as an interim measure, ordered detergents to be labeled with their phosphate content no later than Feb. 1.

The ordinance contains a maximum penalty for the first offense of a six-month jail sentence and $300 fine.

Panel Backs Boise Park Land Offer

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended that the city accept the offer of Boise Cascade Building Co. to donate park land at its Oliva Ranch property, west of the city.

The firm plans to construct 215 townhouses at a 59-acre site and has offered the city 20 acres for park land between Novato Boulevard and Novato Creek.

At a recent city council hearing on the townhouse plan, neighboring residents protested that a city park in the area would create traffic and policing problems.

Parks and Recreation Dir. Edward W. Adams reported that the commission voted Monday night that the city should accept dedication of the land.

Commissioners also felt that the park preference survey taken by the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce wasn't representative because only 1,271 persons responded.

The Jaycee survey showed opposition to the commission's position that a major park should be developed at the 67-acre O'Hair property at Novato Boulevard and Sutro Avenue.

Sixty per cent of the persons who responded to the survey preferred major park development at the 425-acre site west of San Marin High School offered for sale for a city park by G. J. Garlick and Associates of Salt Lake City.

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission also:

PIONEER PARK — Accepted the design plan for Phase II development at Pioneer Memorial Park, including a children's play area, restrooms, tennis courts and restoration of the cemetery area.

CITATION — Nominated the Novato Rotary Club for a citation by the California Parks and Recreation Society for its work in developing the Joyce Street lot and its work on youth employment.

ATTENDANCE — Received a report that attendance last month was 23,700, up 4,500 from November of last year.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 4 at the Novato Community House.

Probation Given In Drug Case

Eugene Breiskin Weiss, 26-year-old San Geronimo man now serving time in federal prison in Southern California for sale of LSD, yesterday was given straight probation for a drug charge in Marin by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court.

The judge first indicated he intended to give Weiss, who was being sentenced in absentia, jail time to run concurrently with the federal sentence. He was then pursuaded to impose only probation so that Weiss can attend college in a prison work furlough program.

Weiss had earlier pleaded guilty in absentia to a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana at his home on Oct. 29, 1969, when agents arrested him on the federal charge.

Wife Shot By Pillow Gun

HOUSTON (UPI) —Sherry Thrift, 53, was shot and killed in her sleep Tuesday by a pistol her husband kept under his pillow.

Thomas M. Thrift, 61, said the gun went off as he climbed out of bed and didn't realize the bullet had struck his wife until he returned to the bedroom from the kitchen after brewing their morning coffee.

Police charged Thrift with murder.

Transfer Of Kidney Unit Urged

The board of supervisors yesterday asked the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin to see whether one of San Francisco's six kidney treatment centers could be moved to Marin.

The board tacked the request as a rider, onto unanimous approval of a health planning council report that said Marin should not go to the expense of setting up its own dialysis center for kidney patients. The available chronic-treatment centers in San Francisco are not operating at capacity, the council report said.

COULD SUFFER

Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, said if a Marin kidney center were established despite the council's findings, Marin might suffer when it soughtregional health planning approval for other medical projects.

"If we're going to be regional, let's start being regional — let's not isolate Marin," Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said. "Why can't one of those six units be transferred over to Marin?"

Board chairman John F. McInnis, whom Arrigoni called "the father of regional government," replied, "You shouldn't have askedthat question. The regional comprehensive health planning council may become a regional government that may replace us all."

McInnis warned that in terms of medical facilities, Marin is "rich. . . By population count and medical attention count we don't merit many of the things we have," compared to other Bay Area counties.

What's the council going to do — tell us we can't have many of the things we do have? There are too many questions regarding the regional approach that don't have any answers," McInnis said.

"Each and every month you're losing more options and authority," Campanella added.

TOO COSTLY REPORT

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin adopted on Nov. 18 its report that a dialysis center would be too costly in terms of equipment and staff, in light of availability of such centers in San Francisco. The report said Marin needed an emergency kidney machine for use in acute kidney failures, but that chronic treatment should be handled through San Francisco. The report required board action yesterday, Campanella told the supervisors.

Families of kidney patients in Marin have been urging creation of a Marin treatment center, and have been collecting Betty Crocker premium coupons to obtain a small machine.

Tiburon Appeal On Sewage Idea

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has called for formation of a citizens committee to help the district build a tertiary sewage treatment plant which would produce clear water effluent.

President Robert A. Sterling said the board called Monday for interested persons, especially members of conservation groups, to assist in planning and building the plant, which he said would be the first of its kind in California.

The $1.25 million plant would be built with a government grant, for which the district is applying. It would use an activated carbon filtering process to produce clear water.

Persons interested in serving on the citizens committee may submit their names to Sterling at the district's plant at 2001 Paradise Drive, Tiburon.

Bicycle Path DueDiscussion

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the city hall, will discuss the status of city bicycle path proposals.

The commission will consider striping Doherty Drive to provide a four-foot wide bicycle easement, discuss negotiations with the Tiscornia estate on acquiring an easement for a bicycle path from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road and the integration of Corte Madera's planned bike paths with Larkspur's.

The commission also will consider setting criteria on the amount of land subdivision developers will be required to donate to public use and setting a timetable for master planning of city parks.

Legless YouthHas A Spirited Outlook

By BONNIE BARD

Danny Stankalis waited nervously in his wheelchair yesterday for a confrontation with the man accused of injuring him, but it wasn't to be.

The scheduled preliminary hearing was waived by Lewis Edward Meyers, 59, charged with felony drunken driving in the accident that cut off both of Stankalis's legs. Meyers will appear for arraignment in Sonoma County Superior Court next Tuesday at 9 a.m.

Stankalis, 17, chain-smoked cigarettes in the solarium at Hillcrest Hospital and joked to relieve the tense atmosphere as the first meeting with Meyers was anticipated.

When word was received from Judge Alexander J. McMahon that the hearing had been canceled, the youth said, "Boy, I'm glad of that," packed his belongings and was released from the hospital a few hours later.

Stankalis was injured on Nov. 17 when a car Petaluma police said was driven by Meyers struck him as he was bending over the motor of hiw own car making repairs. The impact of the bumpers acted as scissors on his legs.

His eyes bright and full of life, Stankalis wheeled around the hospital with youthful energy. His parents, Roger and Velma Vlastos, were obviously proud of his rapid adjustment to being an amputee and seemed to gain strength from his high spirits.

Stankalis said he hoped to be fitted with artificial limbs as soon as possible and to get back to full mobility.

With an attitude of hope and plans for the future, Stankalis hopes to collect enough money to build a future.

"All I want is money," he said. "I want to have bed sheets made out of $100 bills."

The family has attorneys preparing insurance claims, but his mother quickly reminded him. "It's going to be a long, drawn out process."

Mounds of cards and letters of concern from Petalumans have brightened the spirits of Stankalis and his family. "Everyone has been so kind, we certainly could never thank all of them personally," his mother said.

While in the solarium, Stankalis took a call from Paul Zell of Zell Furniture Designs of Petaluma offering him a job.

"He (Zell) says he's got a job I can do from my wheel chair," he said, beaming with assurance that he can still be useful.

With an eye to the distant future, Stankalis said he is thinking of working with the military in a medical program so that he can use his experience as an amputee to help men maimed in the war.

Chrysler Next

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers today turned its attention to Chrysler Corp., the last of the automotive Big Three without a national contract agreement with the union.

Ratification of its contract with Ford Motor Co. began today as the union's 166,000 members at Ford began voting on a tentative agreement.

TWA Scoffs At Collapse Rumor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Trans World Airlines (TWA) says it will lose up to $65 million on operations this year, but assured major financial backers rumors the carrier faced collapse "are completely unfounded."

Charles C. Tillinghast Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said in a formal statement after a 90-minute closed meeting that profits were expected for the airline in 1972 and 1973, with marginal results for 1971.

Tillinghast told newsmen the meeting had been scheduled for next month.

Economist Sees Joblessness Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Nathanial Goldfinger, the AFL-CIO's top economist, says unemployment will rise from the present 5.8 per cent to 6.5 per cent or more by next fall unless President Nixon initiates a "very decisive and very massive stimulus to the economy."

Goldfinger said an increase to 6.5 per cent would mean 5.5 million jobless and "it may be even higher because the whole trend in the economy today is one, unfortunately, of stagnation."

Bruce, Gardiner Reach A Truce In Juvenile Cases

A truce has been reached between County Administrator Alan Bruce and Judge Samuel W. Gardiner over the placement of juvenile court wards in institutions.

Judge Gardiner had threatened to hold Bruce and his assistant, Thomas F. Campanella, in contempt of court for interfering in such proceedings by refusing to approve the payment of county funds in some cases.

Concerned over the expense of placing youngsters in such institutions as Sunny Hills, where costs often run several hundred dollars a month, the board of supervisors had ordered Bruce to intercede.

Yesterday, Bruce, Judge Gardiner and County Probation Officer John W. Brewer agreed to work out a plan where the costs will be discussed before placements are made by the court.

Furthermore, Judge Gardiner agreed that it is reasonable that the county place a maximum amount on the funds that can be used for such placements, but not to make decisions on individual cases.

It is also planned that the county revenue officer will investigate the possibility of the families of the youngsters bearing a part of the costs, and if it is deemed they can, he will set up a payment schedule.

It is also planned that before such placements are made, a representative of the Community Mental Health Services will review each case to decide if there is a community agency that could be used instead of a private institution.

Bolinas PUD Panel Sets Closed Talks

Directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District will meet in closed session today at 7 p.m. to discuss hiring of a maintenance foreman. The district's foreman Edward H. Genazzi, died last week.

The board's regular meeting will follow the personnel session, according to clerk Jane Boyer.

Brazil, largest country in South America, is the fifth largest in the world.

Ice Age Fossil Discovery In Labrea Tar Pits Hailed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The discovery of prehistoric fossils of seeds, insects, twigs and leaves from the Ice Age was reported Tuesday and described by an archaeologist as "the equivalent of the discovery of King Tut's tomb"

Scientists digging in the Labrea tar pits adjacent to the county art museum here announced the find.

Project director George Miller said the discovery was unusual in that seeds, sod, leaves, branches and stems hardly ever remain fossilized. Also found were bones from an arctic musk ox.

Miller said a seed from a cypress tree which does not now grow in California and twigs from a now extinct juniper indicated that the climate in Southern California was much cooler 10,000 to 40,000 years ago than it is today.

Nixon Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will hold a nationally televised news conference at 7 p.m. Thursday, his first formal news conference since July 30.

City Votes Ban On Phosphates

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Detergents sold here after June 30, 1972, must be phosphate-free.

The City Council voted Tuesday to ban the sale of detergents containing phosphates after that date and, as an interim measure, ordered detergents to be labeled with their phosphate content no later than Feb. 1.

The ordinance contains a maximum penalty for the first offense of a six-month jail sentence and $300 fine.

Panel Backs Boise Park Land Offer

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended that the city accept the offer of Boise Cascade Building Co. to donate park land at its Oliva Ranch property, west of the city.

The firm plans to construct 215 townhouses at a 59-acre site and has offered the city 20 acres for park land between Novato Boulevard and Novato Creek.

At a recent city council hearing on the townhouse plan, neighboring residents protested that a city park in the area would create traffic and policing problems.

Parks and Recreation Dir. Edward W. Adams reported that the commission voted Monday night that the city should accept dedication of the land.

Commissioners also felt that the park preference survey taken by the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce wasn't representative because only 1,271 persons responded.

The Jaycee survey showed opposition to the commission's position that a major park should be developed at the 67-acre O'Hair property at Novato Boulevard and Sutro Avenue.

Sixty per cent of the persons who responded to the survey preferred major park development at the 425-acre site west of San Marin High School offered for sale for a city park by G. J. Garlick and Associates of Salt Lake City.

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission also:

PIONEER PARK — Accepted the design plan for Phase II development at Pioneer Memorial Park, including a children's play area, restrooms, tennis courts and restoration of the cemetery area.

CITATION — Nominated the Novato Rotary Club for a citation by the California Parks and Recreation Society for its work in developing the Joyce Street lot and its work on youth employment.

ATTENDANCE — Received a report that attendance last month was 23,700, up 4,500 from November of last year.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 4 at the Novato Community House.

Probation Given In Drug Case

Eugene Breiskin Weiss, 26-year-old San Geronimo man now serving time in federal prison in Southern California for sale of LSD, yesterday was given straight probation for a drug charge in Marin by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court.

The judge first indicated he intended to give Weiss, who was being sentenced in absentia, jail time to run concurrently with the federal sentence. He was then pursuaded to impose only probation so that Weiss can attend college in a prison work furlough program.

Weiss had earlier pleaded guilty in absentia to a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana at his home on Oct. 29, 1969, when agents arrested him on the federal charge.

Wife Shot By Pillow Gun

HOUSTON (UPI) —Sherry Thrift, 53, was shot and killed in her sleep Tuesday by a pistol her husband kept under his pillow.

Thomas M. Thrift, 61, said the gun went off as he climbed out of bed and didn't realize the bullet had struck his wife until he returned to the bedroom from the kitchen after brewing their morning coffee.

Police charged Thrift with murder.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NOVATO:

1. That is has come to the attention of the City Council of the City of Novato, and this Council finds, that it would be for the best interests of said City and of the residents of the contiguous area herein described to alter the boundaries of said City by annexing thereto and incorporating therein as a part thereof under the provisions of the annexation of Uninhabited Territory Act of 1939, as amended, certain property situated in the County of Marin, State of California, hereby designated "Novato Blvd. Annexation No. 1," and described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof.

2. The reasons why the City of Novato desires said annexation are as follows:

(a) Said territory because of its location and other features should be governed in its development by the same zoning and planning regulations which govern territory within the City of Novato.

Thereafter, the Local Agency Annexaton Commission of Marin County after public hearing did approve said proposed annexation.

4. That Tuesday, January 12, 1971, at the hour of 8:00 o'clock P.M., in the Council Chambers, Novato Community House, in the City of Novato, County of Marin, California, is hereby fixed as the time and place when and where any person owning real property within the uninhabited territory above described and proposed to be annexed to the City of Novato, and having any objections to the proposed annexation may appear before the Council of the City of Novato and show cause why such uninhabited territory should not be so annexed to the City of Novato. The protest must be in writing, may be filed at any time before the hour set for hearing objections to the proposed annexation, and shall state the name or names of the owner or owners of property affected and the description and area of such property, in general terms.

Library Expansion At Present Site Backed

The San Rafael Public Library should be expanded on its present site to offer all library facilities needed in the city, members of the library board agreed last night at a session with consultants.

A report from Ellis Kaplan, architect associated with the Consulting Organization of San Francisco, said the library is 8,500 square feet short of present needs and will be short 18,000 square feet by 1985, based on current population projections.

However, James Skelton, head librarian of University of California at Berkeley, urged that the board adopt a program of needed facilities and plan to provide space for them, rather than base planning on rule-of-thumb square footage. Board members endorsed this idea in instructions for Donald R. Hegstrom of the Consulting Organization, which is preparing a library expansion plan for the city.

Hegstrom proposed a survey for locations of "store-front branches" to carry the library to some who may not be familiar with it. However, James H. Mayer was backed by fellow board members in urging that this be put aside pending planning for complete facilities at the present Fifth Avenue and E Street location.

Additional parking poses the principal problem, members and consultants agreed, Mayer suggested parking might be provided under a second-story addition to the library.

A more complete report by the consultants is scheduled for the Jan. 11 meeting.

Board member Ella May Minneman was absent last night.

Switchboard Calls For Space

Switchboard of Marin needs money and quarters to resume operation, one of its directors said yesterday.

Reg Nedbal said the volunteer service's belongings are in storage at Marin Open House, until it can reopen. He asked that anyone who can help with either funds or office space send word throughPost Office Box 1346, San Rafael.

He said as soon as quarters are located he will obtain the necessary use permit from the San Rafael Planning Commission, and the switchboard will reopen with its old telephone number.

Other directors of the switchboard are Janice Betchauser and Alan Walzan, he said.

Victim Of Accident To See Own Doctor

A 15-year-old San Rafael girl was to see her own doctor for neck pains received in a two-car accident at 3:41 p.m. yesterday at Freitas Parkway and Northgate Drive.

She was Anne Violet Hunstock of 100 De La Guerra Road, a passenger in the car driven by her mother Mary Mae Hunstock, 47, westbound on Freitas Parkway. It collided with one driven north on Northgate by Marie Louise Davis, 26, of 10 La Brea Way, Apt. 23, San Rafael, according to police.

High Court Upsets Pot Case Ruling

The state Court of Appeal has overturned a 1969 decision by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior which freed two men charged with possessing 330 pounds of marijuana in Sausalito house almost two years ago.

Due to re-face the charges are Rodney John Shimmon, 37, of San Francisco, and Jeffrey Scott Meeler, 22, of Sausalito. Another man arrested during the Dec. 3, 1968, raid on the house at 43 Cable Roadway, Joel Anderson, 27, of Mendocino, is also still in the case but is only charged with possessing one pot cigarette.

The higher court ruled that Judge Wilson erred in ruling that the search of the house had been illegal. The judges said that police, who had gone to the house because of a suspected burglary, had the right to go inside when they saw a man run out the back.

They also had the right to return later, the higher court said, because they had seen large quantities of marijuana in plain view.

The officers said they also had found equipment for making methamphetamine.

Anderson and Shimmon had been arrested at separate times when they returned to the house. Anderson said that he was a former tenant and had come to pick up plants he had left there.

Both he and Shimmon had suspected pot cigarettes with them when they came to the house.

No date has been set for the case to be returned to the court calendar.

Innocent Pleas To Burglary

Susan Ellis, 24, and Linda Sue Burns, 22, both of 705-A Scott Street, Novato, have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglarizing an unoccupied Novato house on Nov. 22.

A preliminary hearing is set for tomorrow.

The women were arrested after reportedly taking books from an unoccupied house at 716 Lamont Avenue.

Bull Session Called On Courthouse Lot

Courthouse Square and how it could revitalize downtown San Rafael will be discussed at a public meeting of businessmen and property owners at 9 a.m. Friday in the council chambers at San Rafael City Hall.

The meeting has been called by the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce to see if any group of businessmen is willing to purchase the old courthouse from Marin County, said T. Robert Nelson, chamber manager.

An option on the property taken last February by Robert A. Roumiguiere, Wishard A. Brown and Ernest N. Kettenhofen expired Nov. 10. Since then, there has been no purchase offer. The county wants $767,000 for it.

Roumiguiere, a real estate dealer, will preside at the meeting at which he hopes to find out what type of development the merchants and property owners favor for the square.

"If some persons would rather see the courthouse saved as a historical monument or used as an ecological center, I hope they present their ideas at the meeting," he said.

Roumiguiere said that he hoped the meeting would produce a proposal for the property.

"Downtown San Rafael is too important to allow it to go downhill and the Courthouse Square could be the key to revitalizing it," he said.

He said that downtown San Rafael does not compete with Northgate or Corte Madera but gives San Rafael residents a place to shop.

He said that if a group of businessmen get some plans going, he feels certain that the City of San Rafael will help with traffic and Marin County will cooperate in the sale of the property.

Pan Am Asks To Drop Flight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pan American World Airways, stating it has lost $3 million since the service started in 1967, has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) for permission to suspend flights from the U.S. mainland to Hilo, Hawaii for two years.

"What we have is a situation that is bleak, indeed, and one that cries for corrective action," Pan Am said in its brief to the CAB Tuesday. The airline already has suspended its San Francisco-Hilo run and has added a Honolulu stop to its Los Angeles-Hilo schedule.

A CAB ruling raised the number of U.S. carriers serving Hilo from three to eight and Pan Am said this was one of the major causes of its economic problems.

There usually are three to six racoons in a litter.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NOVATO:

1. That is has come to the attention of the City Council of the City of Novato, and this Council finds, that it would be for the best interests of said City and of the residents of the contiguous area herein described to alter the boundaries of said City by annexing thereto and incorporating therein as a part thereof under the provisions of the annexation of Uninhabited Territory Act of 1939, as amended, certain property situated in the County of Marin, State of California, hereby designated "Novato Blvd. Annexation No. 1," and described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof.

2. The reasons why the City of Novato desires said annexation are as follows:

(a) Said territory because of its location and other features should be governed in its development by the same zoning and planning regulations which govern territory within the City of Novato.

(b) Because of its location, said territory will receive the benefit of and should therefore participate in supporting the municipal services of said city.

3. The City of Novato has heretofore filed with the Local Agency Annexation Commission of Marin County, a notice of intention to annex the territory more particularly described in Exhibit "A." Said notice contained the specific boundaries of the territory proposed to be annexed. The description of said territory was submitted to the Marin County Boundary Commission, and the attached description is in accordance with the report of said Commission. Thereafter, the Local Agency Annexaton Commission of Marin County after public hearing did approve said proposed annexation.

4. That Tuesday, January 12, 1971, at the hour of 8:00 o'clock P.M., in the Council Chambers, Novato Community House, in the City of Novato, County of Marin, California, is hereby fixed as the time and place when and where any person owning real property within the uninhabited territory above described and proposed to be annexed to the City of Novato, and having any objections to the proposed annexation may appear before the Council of the City of Novato and show cause why such uninhabited territory should not be so annexed to the City of Novato. The protest must be in writing, may be filed at any time before the hour set for hearing objections to the proposed annexation, and shall state the name or names of the owner or owners of property affected and the description and area of such property, in general terms.

5. The City Clerk of the City of Novato is hereby authorized and directed to cause a copy of this resolution to be published at least twice, but not oftener than once a week in the Novato Advance, a newspaper of general circulation in said City of Novato and in the Independent Journal, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Marin, said publication to be complete at least twenty (20) days prior to the date set for hearing.

6. The City Clerk is directed to cause written notice to be given to such other persons as may be legally entitled thereto, in the manner required by law.

Library Expansion At Present Site Backed

The San Rafael Public Library should be expanded on its present site to offer all library facilities needed in the city, members of the library board agreed last night at a session with consultants.

A report from Ellis Kaplan, architect associated with the Consulting Organization of San Francisco, said the library is 8,500 square feet short of present needs and will be short 18,000 square feet by 1985, based on current population projections.

However, James Skelton, head librarian of University of California at Berkeley, urged that the board adopt a program of needed facilities and plan to provide space for them, rather than base planning on rule-of-thumb square footage. Board members endorsed this idea in instructions for Donald R. Hegstrom of the Consulting Organization, which is preparing a library expansion plan for the city.

Hegstrom proposed a survey for locations of "store-front branches" to carry the library to some who may not be familiar with it. However, James H. Mayer was backed by fellow board members in urging that this be put aside pending planning for complete facilities at the present Fifth Avenue and E Street location.

Additional parking poses the principal problem, members and consultants agreed, Mayer suggested parking might be provided under a second-story addition to the library.

A more complete report by the consultants is scheduled for the Jan. 11 meeting.

Board member Ella May Minneman was absent last night.

Protection To New Strains

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House has voted to give patent protection to developers of novel varieties of sexually reproduced crops, such as corn, wheat, cotton, barley, oats and rice.

The measure, which now returns to the Senate which has approved a similar bill, would allow developers of new strains of plants to get 17-year patents. Developers of new varieties of plants produced asexually through grafting or budding — such as roses and fruit trees — now get patent protection, but developers of new sexual varieties, have no patent protection.

The bill specifically exempts from patent protection development of new varieties of okra, celery, peppers, tomatoes, carrots and cucumbers.

It cost $100 million to build the Suez Canal.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Record Shop Visit Reveals Networks' Generation Gap

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—I went down to my friendly neighborhood record shop Tuesday for my weekly visit and checkup on what is being sidestepped on commercial television.

The networks, as you may have heard, say they are after the young audience. But you begin to think that maybe no one at a network ever sent anyone to a friendly neighborhood record shop to see firsthand some of the things the young audience is buying

Occasionally we do get some of the hot contemporary groups or singles on television, but the proportion of time allotted them is usually relatively small so that they make little impact on the audience video says it wants.

I mean, it's very thrilling that ABC-TV is giving a series next summer to British singer Val Doonican (who he?). But where are Joe Cocker and Richie Havens and Judy Collins and James Taylor and the Grateful Dead?

Look, Dean Martin is a gas. But where are Steve Sills and Ten Years After and Led Zeppelin and Paul Kantner and Jefferson Airplane and Cream and Elton John and Sky?

It's true that Arlo Guthrie and Bob Dylan and Randy Newman have done numbers on commercial television, as have other pop artists. But why don't they get a lot more air time? Why aren't conditions made attractive to them so that they will want to appear on the home screen?

And where are Laura Nyro and Santana and Chicago and Canned Heat and The Who and Tim Buckley and Phil Ochs and Sly and the Family Stone?

It is really a very odd thing that television, in its commercial quest for the rich young market, should give relatively limited attention to the art form that most often and most readily separates youth from its money—pop music records.

Occasionally, a network tries a series geared to such records —as with ABC-TV's "Music Scene," which failed in the ratings. The trouble has been that the right showcasing has yet to be found—one that will convince the desired audience of a program's commitment and integrity.

It is difficult to do this—to fit such a show into a network schedule admittedly made up primarily for the middleaged-to-older audience, which video has locked up.

But it would be a pity if the networks just give up on trying to find the right format and approach for the influential music of today.

Johnny Cash is part of the way there with his series. Whoever goes the rest of the way, with genuineness and know how, will not only strike a bonanza, but will score a major breakthrough.

The Channel Swim: ABC-TV's final Monday night pro football game of the season pits Los Angeles against Detroit next week ... Same network's "Wide World of Sports" this Saturday offers the Cassius Clay-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight in a replay . . . William F. Buckley Jr. is the guest on NBC-TV's "Laugh-In" Dec. 28.

John Wayne's recent NBC-TV show, "Swing Out, Sweet Land," got the highest rating of any program this season . . Last Sunday's Bill Cosby-Dick Van Dyke special on the same network earned a smash overnight rating . . . Sen. J. William Fulbright discusses his book, "The Pentagon Propaganda Machine," on NBC-TV's "Today" show Thursday . . . Silent screen stars Gloria Swanson, Lillian Gish, Chester Conklin, Ken Maynard and Laura LaPlante appear on Merv Griffin's CBS-TV series next Wednesday.

Switchboard Calls For Space

Switchboard of Marin needs money and quarters to resume operation, one of its directors said yesterday.

Reg Nedbal said the volunteer service's belongings are in storage at Marin Open House, until it can reopen. He asked that anyone who can help with either funds or office space send word throughPost Office Box 1346, San Rafael.

He said as soon as quarters are located he will obtain the necessary use permit from the San Rafael Planning Commission, and the switchboard will reopen with its old telephone number.

Other directors of the switchboard are Janice Betchauser and Alan Walzan, he said.

Victim Of Accident To See Own Doctor

A 15-year-old San Rafael girl was to see her own doctor for neck pains received in a two-car accident at 3:41 p.m. yesterday at Freitas Parkway and Northgate Drive.

She was Anne Violet Hunstock of 100 De La Guerra Road, a passenger in the car driven by her mother Mary Mae Hunstock, 47, westbound on Freitas Parkway. It collided with one driven north on Northgate by Marie Louise Davis, 26, of 10 La Brea Way, Apt. 23, San Rafael, according to police.

High Court Upsets Pot Case Ruling

The state Court of Appeal has overturned a 1969 decision by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior which freed two men charged with possessing 330 pounds of marijuana in Sausalito house almost two years ago.

Due to re-face the charges are Rodney John Shimmon, 37, of San Francisco, and Jeffrey Scott Meeler, 22, of Sausalito. Another man arrested during the Dec. 3, 1968, raid on the house at 43 Cable Roadway, Joel Anderson, 27, of Mendocino, is also still in the case but is only charged with possessing one pot cigarette.

The higher court ruled that Judge Wilson erred in ruling that the search of the house had been illegal. The judges said that police, who had gone to the house because of a suspected burglary, had the right to go inside when they saw a man run out the back.

They also had the right to return later, the higher court said, because they had seen large quantities of marijuana in plain view.

The officers said they also had found equipment for making methamphetamine.

Anderson and Shimmon had been arrested at separate times when they returned to the house. Anderson said that he was a former tenant and had come to pick up plants he had left there.

Both he and Shimmon had suspected pot cigarettes with them when they came to the house.

No date has been set for the case to be returned to the court calendar.

Innocent Pleas To Burglary

Susan Ellis, 24, and Linda Sue Burns, 22, both of 705-A Scott Street, Novato, have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglarizing an unoccupied Novato house on Nov. 22.

A preliminary hearing is set for tomorrow.

The women were arrested after reportedly taking books from an unoccupied house at 716 Lamont Avenue.

Bull Session Called On Courthouse Lot

Courthouse Square and how it could revitalize downtown San Rafael will be discussed at a public meeting of businessmen and property owners at 9 a.m. Friday in the council chambers at San Rafael City Hall.

The meeting has been called by the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce to see if any group of businessmen is willing to purchase the old courthouse from Marin County, said T. Robert Nelson, chamber manager.

An option on the property taken last February by Robert A. Roumiguiere, Wishard A. Brown and Ernest N. Kettenhofen expired Nov. 10. Since then, there has been no purchase offer. The county wants $767,000 for it.

Roumiguiere, a real estate dealer, will preside at the meeting at which he hopes to find out what type of development the merchants and property owners favor for the square.

"If some persons would rather see the courthouse saved as a historical monument or used as an ecological center, I hope they present their ideas at the meeting," he said.

Roumiguiere said that he hoped the meeting would produce a proposal for the property.

"Downtown San Rafael is too important to allow it to go downhill and the Courthouse Square could be the key to revitalizing it," he said.

He said that downtown San Rafael does not compete with Northgate or Corte Madera but gives San Rafael residents a place to shop.

He said that if a group of businessmen get some plans going, he feels certain that the City of San Rafael will help with traffic and Marin County will cooperate in the sale of the property.

Pan Am Asks To Drop Flight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pan American World Airways, stating it has lost $3 million since the service started in 1967, has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) for permission to suspend flights from the U.S. mainland to Hilo, Hawaii for two years.

"What we have is a situation that is bleak, indeed, and one that cries for corrective action," Pan Am said in its brief to the CAB Tuesday. The airline already has suspended its San Francisco-Hilo run and has added a Honolulu stop to its Los Angeles-Hilo schedule.

A CAB ruling raised the number of U.S. carriers serving Hilo from three to eight and Pan Am said this was one of the major causes of its economic problems.

There usually are three to six racoons in a litter.

Protection To New Strains

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House has voted to give patent protection to developers of novel varieties of sexually reproduced crops, such as corn, wheat, cotton, barley, oats and rice.

The measure, which now returns to the Senate which has approved a similar bill, would allow developers of new strains of plants to get 17-year patents. Developers of new varieties of plants produced asexually through grafting or budding — such as roses and fruit trees — now get patent protection, but developers of new sexual varieties, have no patent protection.

The bill specifically exempts from patent protection development of new varieties of okra, celery, peppers, tomatoes, carrots and cucumbers.

It cost $100 million to build the Suez Canal.

Record Shop Visit Reveals Networks' Generation Gap

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—I went down to my friendly neighborhood record shop Tuesday for my weekly visit and checkup on what is being sidestepped on commercial television.

The networks, as you may have heard, say they are after the young audience. But you begin to think that maybe no one at a network ever sent anyone to a friendly neighborhood record shop to see firsthand some of the things the young audience is buying

Occasionally we do get some of the hot contemporary groups or singles on television, but the proportion of time allotted them is usually relatively small so that they make little impact on the audience video says it wants.

I mean, it's very thrilling that ABC-TV is giving a series next summer to British singer Val Doonican (who he?). But where are Joe Cocker and Richie Havens and Judy Collins and James Taylor and the Grateful Dead?

Look, Dean Martin is a gas. But where are Steve Sills and Ten Years After and Led Zeppelin and Paul Kantner and Jefferson Airplane and Cream and Elton John and Sky?

It's true that Arlo Guthrie and Bob Dylan and Randy Newman have done numbers on commercial television, as have other pop artists. But why don't they get a lot more air time? Why aren't conditions made attractive to them so that they will want to appear on the home screen?

And where are Laura Nyro and Santana and Chicago and Canned Heat and The Who and Tim Buckley and Phil Ochs and Sly and the Family Stone?

It is really a very odd thing that television, in its commercial quest for the rich young market, should give relatively limited attention to the art form that most often and most readily separates youth from its money—pop music records.

Occasionally, a network tries a series geared to such records —as with ABC-TV's "Music Scene," which failed in the ratings. The trouble has been that the right showcasing has yet to be found—one that will convince the desired audience of a program's commitment and integrity.

It is difficult to do this—to fit such a show into a network schedule admittedly made up primarily for the middleaged-to-older audience, which video has locked up.

But it would be a pity if the networks just give up on trying to find the right format and approach for the influential music of today.

Johnny Cash is part of the way there with his series. Whoever goes the rest of the way, with genuineness and know how, will not only strike a bonanza, but will score a major breakthrough.

The Channel Swim: ABC-TV's final Monday night pro football game of the season pits Los Angeles against Detroit next week ... Same network's "Wide World of Sports" this Saturday offers the Cassius Clay-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight in a replay . . William F. Buckley Jr. is the guest on NBC-TV's "Laugh-In" Dec. 28.

John Wayne's recent NBC-TV show, "Swing Out, Sweet Land," got the highest rating of any program this season . . Last Sunday's Bill Cosby-Dick Van Dyke special on the same network earned a smash overnight rating . . . Sen. J. William Fulbright discusses his book, "The Pentagon Propaganda Machine," on NBC-TV's "Today" show Thursday . . . Silent screen stars Gloria Swanson, Lillian Gish, Chester Conklin, Ken Maynard and Laura LaPlante appear on Merv Griffin's CBS-TV series next Wednesday.

I'll Need 6 Weeks, Says Clay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay, his previously unmarked face still showing signs of his 15-round technical knockout over Oscar Bonavena, says he will be ready for a title showdown with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in six weeks.

"I could be ready for Frazier in six weeks," said the 28-year-old Clay, a bruise and a slight swelling showing by his right eye. "I don't care where or when the fight is after that."

A bidding war for the bout, the richest plum in sports history, has developed between New York's Madison Square Garden and Houston's Astrodome, but the most commonly discussed date is Feb. 17.

The fighters have already agreed to the terms of the bout, an even split of the $10-million receipts with 35 per cent going to each man. The Garden could be scaled for more than $1-million live gate with a top ticket price of $250.

At the present time, the Garden would seem to have the inside track in landing the bout since Clay does not have a license to fight in Texas and might have trouble getting one.

"The fight has not been signed with anyone or anywhere," said Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, "and anybody who says it has is lying. I can say it definitely will not go to Philadelphia, Boston or Chicago. I just want the best deal and so does Clay."

Frazier, who became champion after Clay was stripped of the title and banned from boxing in 1967 for refusing to go into the Army, has predicted a sixth-round knockout in the bout, but Clay says he is not making any prediction.

"I'm not going to make any prediction this time," explained Clay. "It's too dangerous."

Cassius, or Muahhmmad Ali, tried so hard to make his prediction of a ninth round knockout over Bonavena come true that he almost got knocked out himself as he barged in recklessly.

However, by finally stopping Bonavena with three knockdowns in the 15th round, Clay succeeded where Frazier had failed twice. Frazier won two decisions from Bonavena in going a total of 25 rounds, and Bonavena knocked down Frazier twice in their first meeting.

"I'm satisfied with my fight for three reasons," Clay said. "I'm satisfied because I proved I had the stamina to go 15 hard rounds against the toughest man I ever fought. Second, I'm satisfied because I proved to everyone I can take a punch by taking more punches in one fight than I have in all my others. Third, I proved I could punch by stopping a man, putting him down, who had never been stopped before."

Prep Teams In Christmas Tournaments This Week

Marin County Athletic League high school basketball teams, which lately have been tearing up non-league competition in preseason action, play this week and next in annual Christmas season tournaments throughout Northern California.

In our own back yard, the Drake Pirates of San Anselmo host their sixth annual tournament tonight through Saturday. Besides Drake, San Marin, Terra Linda and San Rafael will represent the MCAL; Petaluma, Napa, Balboa of San Francisco and Montgomery of Santa Rosa complete the field.

In other events this week, Tamalpais and Novato journey to Healdsburg for the Redwood Empire Tournament tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, Marin Catholic plays in the St. Elizabeth tourney in Oakland tonight through Saturday, and Redwood travels South for the McClane Invitational in Fresno Friday and Saturday.

Without question the toughest of these events is that last one.

IJ Sports

Included in the field at Fresno will be three teams—Verbum Dei of Los Angeles, Berkeley, and San Joaquin Memorial — which have been listed among the top 25 high school teams in the country.

Redwood finished third in the tourney last year, and went on to a 24-3 season. This year so far, however, the Giants of Larkspur are 1-2, and could be over their heads at Fresno. Redwood meets Fresno in the first game of the tourney at 4 p.m.

The only MCAL team favored to win a tourney this week is San Marin. The Mustangs of Novato tuned up for the Drake affair by walloping Soquel of Santa Cruz County, 95-61 last Saturday night, with 6-foot-8 center Dana La Ferriere supplying 32 points and grabbing off 16 rebounds.

San Marin meets Drake tonight in a first round game at 6:30, after Petaluma and San Rafael clash in the opener at 5. Tomorrow the first round will be completed as Balboa and Montgomery square off at 5 p.m., and Terra Linda faces Napa at 6:30.

Tamalpais, which ranks slightly above San Marin as the preseason choice to win the MCAL title, would be favored to win their tournament in Healdsburg but for the presence of their first round foe, North Delta of British Colombia, Canada. The Huskies, who like the Indians of Mill Valley have impressive size and speed, are led by forward Dave Coutu, who averaged 23 points a game last season.

If Tam can get by the Northerners, the Indians should have little trouble running through the rest of the competition, although Novato has shown strength recently (an upset win over Petaluma last week), and could give them trouble.

Novato goes against Oakland Tech at 6:30 p.m. in a first round game that immediately precedes the Tam-North Delta confrontation at 8.

Family Togetherness Key To Place Kicking

Because of family togetherness, Bobby Cooper of Novato High School had the best field goal kicking percentage in the Marin County Athletic League this past season, making 80 per cent of his three-point attempts.

That's because Bob's family helped him in practice. His dad would serve as center, his mom would hold the ball and his sister shagged the ball.

"It just goes to show," said place-kicker advocate Gordon Tovani of San Rafael, "the family that kicks together, sticks together."

Tovani, who has sponsored high school kicking clinics in Marin for the past few years, proudly noted that the MCAL made 93.2 per cent of its point-after-touchdown placements this season "which is better than the NCAA average."

And in field goal attempts, "our kids made 71 per cent as compared to the present professional league level of 67 per cent," he added.

San Rafael's John Morehouse, it was recalled by Tovani, made 18 consecutive PATs this season, an MCAL record, although he didn't attend any of Tovani's clinics. "I worked out with him during the summer, though," modestly added Gordon the Toe.

San Marin High's Urbano Boucsiequez booted three field goals in one game for a new California Interscholastic Federation record, and the 43-yard field goals by Urbano B. and Tam's Terry Rutledge this year were the longest in MCAL history, Tovani said.

Yep, they're really putting the foot back into football. Maybe we will produce a great one like New Orleans' Tom Dempsey who has rooted 63 and several 50-plus yarders this season. You'll see Dempsey on TV Sunday against the 49ers.

SAN RAFAEL HIGH can claim some of the strongest students in the county. Ray DeLeon, Dave Gottlieb and Oscar Guitterez, all SRHS students, were medal winners in the recent Junior Olympic Weightlifting Championships at Pacific. DeLeon took a first and Gottlieb and Guitterez seconds.

They eat their spinach.

WHEN COACH Charles Sava was inducted into the Swimming Hall of Fame at the Amateur Athletic Union in San Francisco Saturday, on hand to pay tribute to him were Beth Kaufman of Greenbrae and Ann Curtis Cuneo of San Rafael.

Both ladies are members of the Hall of Fame, Mrs. Kaufman for her great contributions to the sport as founder of the immensely successful Age-Group competitive program; and Mrs. Cuneo for her Olympic, national and world records back in the 1940s. Sava was Mrs. Cuneo's coach, by the way.

IT LOOKS like the great northwest will be loaded with football talen in the future. Of the six winners in the annual Pass, Punt and Kick Contest staged at Kezar Stadium Sunday, four of the youngsters were from the state of Washington and the other two from Oregon.

Slumping Warriors Move On

DETROIT (UPI) — The slumping San Francisco Warriors could use a day to regroup forces, but aren't getting it.

They play their third game on the road in as many nights tonight at tough Detroit, now 18-10.

The Warriors are riding a four-game losing streak and would be at an even .500 with a loss tonight. They lost 98-87 at Chicago Tuesday night.

Jeff Mullins, unable to play because of a cheek fracture, won't battle the Pistons either, but he thinks he'll be able to go Friday in Philadelphia.

San Francisco was 42.1 per cent from the floor at Chicago, but had 21 turnovers.

The game was closer than the score indicates as a final Bull burst widened the margin. Bob Love celebrated his 28th birthday by hooping 30 points for the winner.

Two 49ers 'Doubtful' For Saints

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Linebacker Skip Vanderbundt, who suffered a knee sprain against Atlanta, and halfback Doug Cunningham, who has a hamstring pull, are doubtful for Sunday's San Francisco 49er invasion of New Orleans.

The 49ers are 8-3-1 and battling Los Angeles and a trio of four-time losers for playoff spots while New Orleans is 2-9-1. But it was the Saints who tied the 49ers in one of the Prospectors' worst shows of the campaign.

Coach Dick Nolan explained Tuesday that the usual tradition of announcing the Len Eshmont Award winner at the final home game was abandoned last Sunday because the team has at least two more games. The award goes to the most inspirational player as voted by his teammates and will be announced the week before the Raider game.

The management also announced happily that more than 8,000 people had paid $10 deposits to establish priority for season tickets next year at Candlestick Park. Since this program did not involve the current 25,000 or so season ticket holders, it signifies a pickup of fan interest.

Nobody would speculate whether this represents support for a winning club or the shift to the more comfortable Candlestick Park.

Rec Basketball

Lincoln Market beat Lawson and Dyer, 68-50, and the San Rafael Teachers edged Cal's Steakhouse, 60-57 last night in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league games.

Water Polo Leader

Terra Linda High School remained undefeated atop the Marin County Athletic League water polo standings yesterday by defeating San Marin of Novato, 18-7. Bruce Fromberg paced the Trojans with five goals.

Supervisors 4-1 Against TV Blackout

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday followed the lead of San Francisco and San Mateo County supervisors, in asking the Oakland Raiders to allow Bay Area telecasting of the Dec. 20 Raider-49er clash.

But John F. McInnis, chairman of Marin's board, kept the vote from being unanimous. "I think there is no more place on our agenda for this than there is for a peace referendum. How did it get there?" he demanded.

His fellow supervisors — obviously football fans all — reassured him that San Mateo County had asked for the resolution, and said they favored the idea because every seat in the Oakland Coliseum is sold out for the game.

McInnis was not mollified. "What would happen if we asked the (baseball) Giants to end their blackout?" he wanted to know.

It's not the same, argued the other supervisors. Besides, the New York Jets and New York Giants lifted their local TV blackout for their Nov. 1 football game. And the 49ers have agreed to televising the Dec. 20 game.

The vote was still only 4-1.

Santa Anita's Bronze Tribute To Shoemaker

ARCADIA, Calif (UPI) — A bust of jockey William Shoemaker has been commissioned by Santa Anita Park according to track president Robert F. Strub.

Joseph Portanova of Pacific Palisades, Calif., was given the task of creating a bronze bust of the all-time winningest rider. Strub said the bust will be a companion to the one of retired jockey Johnny Longden.

Both will stand in the paddock gardens at Santa Anita

FASHIONABLY FROZEN

Broadway Joe Namath, wrapped in a full-length fur coat and matching hat, watched from the sidelines as his New York Jets lost to the Oakland Raiders Sunday at Shea Stadium, 14-13. The star quarterback is out for the season with a broken bone in his right wrist.

Closed Door Practice For Secretive Chiefs

STANFORD (UPI) — The Kansas City Chiefs started workouts for Saturday's titanic tussle at Oakland with drills in Stanford Stadium - apparently.

Nobody but coach Hank Stram and his troops can say what happened for sure Tuesday because the practive was closed to absolutely everybody else.

"This game Saturday could mean everything to us," quarterback Len Dawson said. "The loser might not make the playoffs. It's similar to last year when we were playing for the championship."

Dawson noted that the Raiders had been going without tackle Tom Keating, who should be back Saturday.

"He's a heck of a defensive lineman; one of Oakland's keys," he said.

The Chiefs and Raiders are tied with 7-3-2 records and one of the two ties for both squads was the hysterical 17-17 tie they played earlier.

In that game, lest anyone forget, Dawson bootlegged for 20 yards to apparently ice a 17-14 Kansas City win. Ben Davidson roughly piled on Dawson and Otis Taylor of the Chiefs piled on Davidson. A fight started and the ensuing off setting penalties negated the play.

The Raiders got the ball back and George Blanda began the weekly sequence of last-gasp Oakland heroics with a 48-yard field goal in the last three seconds for the tie.

Dawson maintains there's no grudge held by the Kansas City team against Davidson, although he can't be sure of his team's fans. "Ben's just trying to do his job," Dawson said - following the old pro football quarterback's maxim of never riling up a defensive lineman.

In addition to Keating, the Raiders also listed Carleton Oats, the other starting tackle, as probable for the Chiefs battle. Running back Larry Todd was called questionable for the game.

Offensive tackle Harry Schuh called the Chiefs "a great defensive team." Contrary to the publicity, they really don't operate much differently from other teams, he said, "but they have that great personnel."

More Surgery For Johnson; This Time It's His Knee

HOUSTON (UPI)—Quarterback Charley Johnson of the Houston Oilers will undergo surgery Thursday to repair torn cartilage on his right knee, an Oiler spokesman said today.

The knee was injured initially in an exhibition game against the New Orleans Saints Aug. 15. He has had a metal brace taped to it in order to play, but it gets bruised in almost every game.

He suffered another such bruise in the first period against the Cleveland Browns Monday night and finally left the game in the fourth quarter.

It will be Johnson's second operation this season. He suffered a broken collarbone two months ago and had it pinned together surgically so he could resume competition.

Jerry Rhome, formerly of the Browns and Dallas Cowboys, will start for the Oilers against the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

Marin Tars Host Tourney

The surprising College of Marin Tars, having established their worth with four victories in their first five games, assume a co-favorite role in their own annual basketball tournament which begins tomorrow afternoon at Kentfield.

Junior College teams entered in the three-day tourney include two besides Marin from the Camino Norte Conference, Santa Rosa and Solano; Ohlone of the Coast Conference; Reedley of the Central Conference; and Sierra, Yuba and Napa of the Golden Valley Conference.

Ohlone of Fremont, undefeated in five games, ranks with Marin as a favorite.

The Tars, without a single returning letterman this year, have been outstanding so far. They racked up four straight wins before losing to Los Angeles City College, 67-59 in the finale of the Fresno Invitational tournament last Saturday night.

And most of the Tars' victories have come easily. They opened up with a 90-75 conquest of San Mateo, then beat Diablo Valley and Napa by 12 and 11 points before the trip to Fresno.

In that tournament, Marin disposed of Fresno City College, 57-49 and College of Sequoias, 75-64 before bowing to LACC.

One of the biggest reasons, figuratively and literally, for the Tars' success has been 6-foot-6 center Roosevelt Green. A transfer from San Francisco who did not play college ball last year, Green leads the team in both scoring and rebounding.

Close behind Roosevelt's average of 18 points a game is another San Francisco product, guard Joe Smith from Poly High School, who is averaging 15 points. Smith and Ron Small from Tamalpais anchor the backcourt and make Marin's fast break an explosive weapon.

The Tars' forwards are both 6-4 local products. Ed Herrnberger comes from Novato High School, Mike Peden from Terra Linda.

The only other team besides Ohlone that looks like a contender in this tournament is Santa Rosa, with a 3-1 mark so far. Those teams collide in the second game of the first round tomorrow at 5 p.m. Solano of Vallejo (1-3), plays Yuba of Marysville (2-2) in the opener at 3. In first round games tomorrow night, Reedley (1-3) takes on Sierra of Rocklin (0-4), at 7 o'clock, and Marin goes against Napa at 9.

Seals Entertain Canucks Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — Vancouver skates into the Oakland Coliseum tonight fresh from a 4-1 pasting of the tough New York Rangers.

The California GoldenSealsare having no such triumphs. They're sliding along on a two-game losing string and still may be going without defenseman Harry Howell, hurt last weekend, and winger Norm Ferguson, out since Oct. 17.

Both have worked out this week but may not be ready for tonight's fray. Howell meets with doctors today to decide when he'll return to action.

The Seals lost 2-1 to Vancouver Canucks in their first meeting Oct. 20, but coach Fred Glover says "we didn't play as well as we could and didn't give Charlie (Vancouver goalie Hodge) a lot of hard shots to handle. He didn't have to move most of the time."

Towns' 75 Gives Him Lead At Pebble Beach

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI) — Ken Towns of Tracy ignored rains and wild winds to shoot 75 over the famed Pebble Beach course and take the second round lead in the $5,000 54-hole Northern California PGA Medal Play championship Tuesday.

Towns has 145 and a four stroke lead over three players, including first day leader Charles Leider of Crystal Springs who skied to an 81.

The Legend Of Notre Dame

In his scholarly work, "Notre Dame, Its People And Its Legends," the author, a legend himself, Francis Wallace, reports that, in 1928, a New York sportswriter, W.O. McGeehan, wrote that he had made a trip to South Bend "to investigate the rumor a university was located there."

HIS SKEPTICISM was understandable. Just as Germany was understood to be a country not run by an army but occupeid by it, just as some big businesses set up dummy corporations, or tanker fleets ship under Panamanian registry, Notre Dame was thought to be just a brand name for a traveling football team. It didn't own the team, the team owned it. Notre Dame was just a kind of complicated ventriloquism act.

THE CYNICAL legend went that Notre Dame had been founded in 1844 by Father Sorin but discovered in 1924 by Grantland Rice. It successfully fought off Indians, drought, fires, flood, cholera, prejudice and bigotry only to be captured by a football team.

It was a school to which the king of France (Louis Phillippe) once gave $700 — and the wags commented he just wanted to be sure of a season ticket. Or they say that like all institutions, it had small beginnings — they just put up the goal posts and went from there. Everyone on campus either wore a cassock — or cleats. It was always easy to tell a Notre Dame student: even if you couldn't see his number, you could tell by his gold helmet. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was a flop because people thought it was a football movie.

IT WAS the place where Rockne invented the forward pass, not where Julius Nieuwald invented synthetic rubber. It was a place where Math I was "Hike, hike, hike!" and where the verdigrised statues around campus were described as members of the punt-return team. "Abnormal Psychology" was a study in methods of getting a team to be 14-point underdogs. To Northwestern.

ACTUALLY, NOTRE Dame's greatest team never played in Yankee Stadium. Its goal was not the Cotton Bowl. George Gipp couldn't have coached it. It didn't have any Johnny "One Play" O'Briens. It was a 14-point underdog in every game on its schedule. It never went around shaking its finger at the sky and shouting "We're No. 1!" Its Victory Song was "Ava Maria" not "Cheer, Cheer For Old Notre Dame."

NOTRE DAME'S first national champions were a doughty bunch of French priests who hewed a university out of the wilderness. Its first Heisman Trophy candidate was their leader, Father Edward Sorin. All had become priests or brothes despite the ravages of anti-clericalism raised in the French Revolution and encouraged by Bonaparte.

They crossed the ocean in 39 days in steerage, barged down the Erie Canal like any other cargo. They played an 11-game schedule with the rules made up by the other guys.

SORIN RAN his team like any other top quarterback. He was dismayed to find that Indiana, where he founded his "university," was not really part of any French Northwest Territory (despite the presence of towns named "Napoleon," "Terry Haute," "La Porte," and "Vincennes") and that he not only had to learn a new land but a new language.

He was a man of fortitude, gratitude and rectitude. He fought with the authority of the state, the city and his own church to erect his citadel of Catholic learnning. Amusingly enough his most exasperation was caused by the Irish whom he found pugnacious, disobedient and intractable, not given to authority, and once even went so far as to ban the wearing of the green on St. Patrick's Day.

BUT HE learned to live with his fighting Irish, little dreaming that one day, along would come a brokennosed, bald-headed, stammering Norwegian Lutheran named Rockne and a graceful, gifted but disdainful son of a Congregationalist minister named Gipp who would make his institution internationally famous — but for none of the reasons the French abbe in Le Mans foresaw when he gave Pere Sorin and his band of clerics 3,000 francs for passage to America to build a fount of Catholicism in the New World.

Succeeding heads of Notre Dame alternately have been embarrassed by, or awed by, the enormous incubus of football with the scholastic image outweighed by the athletic — and have sought periodically to stuff the full grown tiger back into the shoe box it came in.

BUT FATHER Ted Hesburgh and Edmund Joyce must do as Father Sorin would have done: accept the revenue, give thanks to God, rejoice in the diversion of the alumni and build a greater university. An ideal which can survive real Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death and can survive the Four Horsemen as well.

Rancho Cotate Cagers Triumph

Center Ron Seiler tallied 19 points and pulled down 20 rebounds to lead the Rancho Cotate High School Cougars past the Hogan High School Spartans, 62-47 in a non-league basketball game in Vallejo yesterday.

The win was the first of the year for the Rohnert Park team after three losses, and came at the expense of an unusually weak Hogan squad. Steve Wlodarczyk backed up Seiler with 15 points.

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The California Bears, boosted by a 13-point streak midway through the first half, roared to a 90-55 basketball victory Tuesday night over San Jose State.

North Squad Named For Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — A 29-member North squad headed by quarterbacks Lynn Dickey of Kansas State and Dan Pastorini of Santa Clara was named Tuesday for the 22nd Senior Bowl Jan. 9.

The South squad for the nationally televised game at Ladd Stadium will be named later, according to Senior Bowl President Theodore K. Jackson.

Jackson said players will begin arriving Jan. 2 and drills will start two days later.

Dickey, who played despite rib injuries part of the season, amassed 2,136 yards to boost his career total to 6,208. Pastorini passed for almost 4,000 yards.

The two aerial artists will have a corps of fast, talented receivers in J. D. Hill of Arizona State, Henry Hawthorne of Kansas State, Sam Dickerson of Southern California and Herman Eban of Oklahoma State.

The North team's ground attack will be headed by Big Eight rushing champion John Riggins of Kansas, who netted 1,131 yards in 1970; Jim Harrison, a 238-pounder from Missouri who compiled 702 yards; and Boston College's Fred Willis, who had 1,007 yards in nine games.

The offensive line consists of tight end Doug Dieken of Illinois, centers Tom Beard of Michigan State and Leo Dillon of Dayton, and interior linemen Dennis Havig of Colorado, Larron Jackson of Missouri, Marv Montgomery of Southern California and Bob Newton of Nebraska.

The defensive unit features linebackers Dale Farley of West Virginia, Oscar Gibson of Kansas State and Phil Villapiano of Bowling Green.

Defensive backs are Tom Duncan of Toledo, Chris Farasopoulas of Brigham Young, Clarence Scott of Kansas State and Norman Thompson of Utah. On the line are Bob Bell of Cincinnati, Layne McDowell of Iowa, Tom Oesterling of UCLA, Jay Wallace of Missouri and Dave Walline of Nebraska.

Rounding out the squad is place kicker Tom Duncan of Toledo. Pastorini also is a place kicker and will handle punting chores.

BOATING

Safe And Sure Winter Ideas

Millions of boats are in winter storage all across the country. Luckier boat owners in the south are just thinking about it. But everywhere, this week is a good time to take a second look for possible hazards at the spot where you are winter-storing your boat.

A spot near a chimney or close to a backyard incinerator is not good for obvious reasons. Sparks could set the boat on fire, burn its cover, or fill it with fly ash or half-burned junk.

ALSO, IF the area is treeless and exposed to high winds, give some thought to staking or weighting down the boat. On the other hand, don't park a boat too close to a building. It could be damaged by a snow slide or falling icicles.

If your boat is under a tree, consider the possibility of an ice storm or a heavy fall of wet snow. A boat could be wrecked by a heavy branch falling at such times. In general, small supple trees which bend instead of breaking under a snow load make a safer and often more effective windbreak.

MAKE SURE the boat sits so that rain and melting snow will drain off its cover. If your boat sits on a trailer, remove the trailer wheels for the winter. The wheels and hubs should come off anyway to check and lubricate the bearings. Coat the exposed axles with grease and take the wheels indoors for the winter. After tending to the bearings, store the wheel assemblies in cardboard boxes with about 10 pounds of air in the tires. Rest the trailer axle on concrete blocks for the winter to keep it from sinking into the ground during thaws.

There are many problems to winter storage as some of the questions we have been asked indicate:

Q. Should I clean all the marine growth off the bottom of my boat now that I have it stored in the backyard, or is it easier in the spring?

A. It will be 10 times as hard to get the mess off in the spring. Do it now! The longer marine growth is left on the bottom of a boat, the dryer, harder and more stubborn it gets.

Q. I have a couple of gas tanks, a battery box, a few life preservers and all our boating gear stored in the boat for the winter. A friend tells me that this is bad. Is it?

A. Yes, it's bad for two reasons. First, unless the boat is adequately supported, all this weight in it could conceivably ruin its shape so that it will not run properly next summer, Secondly, some of this "stuff" could mark the interior of the boat indelibly with rust, stains and discolored spots. Also, it is not good for life preservers or other fabric materials to be left in a boat all winter. Take them inside where it is warm and dry.

Q. Is an old unheated, well ventilated building (a barn) a good place to store my big wooden boat?

A. This is the best possible place. When wooden boats are stored in heated buildings, they tend to dry out excessively. The only thing you should be sure to watch is that the boat has good support. Make certain the keel is blocked up in many places, so that the hull won't change shape from its own weight.

Q. My friend says that I should cover my bright red fiber glass boat to protect it from the winter sun. Will it fade?

A. If it doesn't fade, it is almost sure to change color in some way under the actinic rays of the sun. If you don't want to cover it, be sure to store it so that each side gets the same amount of sunlihgt. Then, if it fades, at least it will change color evenly and you probably won't notice it.

Q. Is it all right to leave the outboard motor on the transom of my boat? I am storing the craft on its trailer behind the garage.

A. Yes, this is all right as long as you service the outboard motor (winterize it) and cover it. Be sure to put a block under the skeg of the motor so that it takes all the weight off the transom of the boat.

Q. I have no garage to store my wooden boat. Can I leave it outside with a canvas over it?

A. There's a danger with canvas that it will tend to keep water in contact with the wood. Tar paper or thin plastic sheeting may be better. Canvas or tarpaulin is best if you build a light frame. Then, keep the boat under a sort of tent constructed from either of these materials.

Q. Do I need to do anything to the fittings and deck hardware?

A. Not usually. Most hardware is either brass, chrome plated brass or stainless steel and even a Minnesota winter can't do much damage to these metals.

Q. What do you consider the most important thing to watch for in storing a fiber glass boat?

A. There's no question about it, the most important thing is support. The resins in the fiber glass boat are really viscous liquids and they change shape when pressure is applied to a few places for a long time. Metal will usually spring back into shape, but any "set" imparted to a plastic or wooden boat is apt to be permanent. Any distortion, of course, will cause the boat to run poorly next summer.

LOVE, CHICAGO STYLE — Chicago's Bob Love (10), took a rebound away from Bob Portman of San Francisco (33), in the first half last night in Chicago, while Jim Fox of the Bulls (31), and the warriors' Nate Thurmond looked on. Chicago dumped the team from "The City," 98-87.

Family Togetherness Key To Place Kicking

Because of family togetherness, Bobby Cooper of Novato High School had the best field goal kicking percentage in the Marin County Athletic League this past season, making 80 per cent of his three-point attempts.

That's because Bob's family helped him in practice. His dad would serve as center, his mom would hold the ball and his sister shagged the ball.

"It just goes to show," said place-kicker advocate Gordon Tovani of San Rafael, "the family that kicks together, sticks together."

Tovani, who has sponsored high school kicking clinics in Marin for the past few years, proudly noted that the MCAL made 93.2 per cent of its point-after-touchdown placements this season "which is better than the NCAA average."

And in field goal attempts, "our kids made 71 per cent as compared to the present professional league level of 67 per cent," he added.

San Rafael's John Morehouse, it was recalled by Tovani, made 18 consecutive PATs this season, an MCAL record, although he didn't attend any of Tovani's clinics. "I worked out with him during the summer, though," modestly added Gordon the Toe.

San Marin High's Urbano Boucsiequez booted three field goals in one game for a new California Interscholastic Federation record, and the 43-yard field goals by Urbano B. and Tam's Terry Rutledge this year were the longest in MCAL history, Tovani said.

Yep, they're really putting the foot back into football. Maybe we will produce a great one like New Orleans' Tom Dempsey who has rooted 63 and several 50-plus yarders this season. You'll see Dempsey on TV Sunday against the 49ers.

SAN RAFAEL HIGH can claim some of the strongest students in the county. Ray DeLeon, Dave Gottlieb and Oscar Guitterez, all SRHS students, were medal winners in the recent Junior Olympic Weightlifting Championships at Pacific. DeLeon took a first and Gottlieb and Guitterez seconds.

They eat their spinach.

WHEN COACH Charles Sava was inducted into the Swimming Hall of Fame at the Amateur Athletic Union in San Francisco Saturday, on hand to pay tribute to him were Beth Kaufman of Greenbrae and Ann Curtis Cuneo of San Rafael.

Both ladies are members of the Hall of Fame, Mrs. Kaufman for her great contributions to the sport as founder of the immensely successful Age-Group competitive program; and Mrs. Cuneo for her Olympic, national and world records back in the 1940s. Sava was Mrs. Cuneo's coach, by the way.

IT LOOKS like the great northwest will be loaded with football talen in the future. Of the six winners in the annual Pass, Punt and Kick Contest staged at Kezar Stadium Sunday, four of the youngsters were from the state of Washington and the other two from Oregon.

Terra Linda High School remained undefeated atop the Marin County Athletic League water polo standings yesterday by defeating San Marin of Novato, 18-7. Bruce Fromberg paced the Trojans with five goals.

Slumping Warriors Move On

DETROIT (UPI) — The slumping San Francisco Warriors could use a day to regroup forces, but aren't getting it.

They play their third game on the road in as many nights tonight at tough Detroit, now 18-10.

The Warriors are riding a four-game losing streak and would be at an even .500 with a loss tonight. They lost 98-87 at Chicago Tuesday night.

Jeff Mullins, unable to play because of a cheek fracture, won't battle the Pistons either, but he thinks he'll be able to go Friday in Philadelphia.

San Francisco was 42.1 per cent from the floor at Chicago, but had 21 turnovers.

The game was closer than the score indicates as a final Bull burst widened the margin. Bob Love celebrated his 28th birthday by hooping 30 points for the winner.

Two 49ers 'Doubtful' For Saints

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Linebacker Skip Vanderbundt, who suffered a knee sprain against Atlanta, and halfback Doug Cunningham, who has a hamstring pull, are doubtful for Sunday's San Francisco 49er invasion of New Orleans.

The 49ers are 8-3-1 and battling Los Angeles and a trio of four-time losers for playoff spots while New Orleans is 2-9-1. But it was the Saints who tied the 49ers in one of the Prospectors' worst shows of the campaign.

Coach Dick Nolan explained Tuesday that the usual tradition of announcing the Len Eshmont Award winner at the final home game was abandoned last Sunday because the team has at least two more games. The award goes to the most inspirational player as voted by his teammates and will be announced the week before the Raider game.

The management also announced happily that more than 8,000 people had paid $10 deposits to establish priority for season tickets next year at Candlestick Park. Since this program did not involve the current 25,000 or so season ticket holders, it signifies a pickup of fan interest.

Nobody would speculate whether this represents support for a winning club or the shift to the more comfortable Candlestick Park

I'll Need 6 Weeks, Says Clay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay, his previously unmarked face still showing signs of his 15-round technical knockout over Oscar Bonavena, says he will be ready for a title showdown with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in six weeks.

"I could be ready for Frazier in six weeks," said the 28-year-old Clay, a bruise and a slight swelling showing by his right eye. "I don't care where or when the fight is after that."

A bidding war for the bout, the richest plum in sports history, has developed between New York's Madison Square Garden and Houston's Astrodome, but the most commonly discussed date is Feb. 17.

The fighters have already agreed to the terms of the bout, an even split of the $10-million receipts with 35 per cent going to each man. The Garden could be scaled for more than $1-million live gate with a top ticket price of $250.

At the present time, the Garden would seem to have the inside track in landing the bout since Clay does not have a license to fight in Texas and might have trouble getting one.

"The fight has not been signed with anyone or anywhere," said Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, "and anybody who says it has is lying. I can say it definitely will not go to Philadelphia, Boston or Chicago. I just want the best deal and so does Clay."

Frazier, who became champion after Clay was stripped of the title and banned from boxing in 1967 for refusing to go into the Army, has predicted a sixth-round knockout in the bout, but Clay says he is not making any prediction.

"I'm not going to make any prediction this time," explained Clay. "It's too dangerous."

Cassius, or Muahmmad Ali, tried so hard to make his prediction of a ninth round knockout over Bonavena come true that he almost got knocked out himself as he barged in recklessly.

However, by finally stopping Bonavena with three knockdowns in the 15th round, Clay succeeded where Frazier had failed twice. Frazier won two decisions from Bonavena in going a total of 25 rounds, and Bonavena knocked down Frazier twice in their first meeting.

"I'm satisfied with my fight for three reasons," Clay said. "I'm satisfied because I proved I had the stamina to go 15 hard rounds against the toughest man I ever fought. Second, I'm satisfied because I proved to everyone I can take a punch by taking more punches in one fight than I have in all my others. Third, I proved I could punch by stopping a man, putting him down, who had never been stopped before."

Supervisors 4-1 Against TV Blackout

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday followed the lead of San Francisco and San Mateo County supervisors, in asking the Oakland Raiders to allow Bay Area telecasting of the Dec. 20 Raider-49er clash.

But John F. McInnis, chairman of Marin's board, kept the vote from being unanimous. "I think there is no more place on our agenda for this than there is for a peace referendum. How did it get there?" he demanded.

His fellow supervisors — obviously football fans all — reassured him that San Mateo County had asked for the resolution, and said they favored the idea because every seat in the Oakland Coliseum is sold out for the game.

McInnis was not mollified. "What would happen if we asked the (baseball) Giants to end their blackout?" he wanted to know.

It's not the same, argued the other supervisors. Besides, the New York Jets and New York Giants lifted their local TV blackout for their Nov. 1 football game. And the 49ers have agreed to televising the Dec. 20 game.

The vote was still only 4-1.

Santa Anita's Bronze Tribute To Shoemaker

ARCADIA, Calif (UPI) — A bust of jockey William Shoemaker has been commissioned by Santa Anita Park according to track president Robert F. Strub.

Joseph Portanova of Pacific Palisades, Calif., was given the task of creating a bronze bust of the all-time winningest rider. Strub said the bust will be a companion to the one of retired jockey Johnny Longden.

Both will stand in the paddock gardens at Santa Anita

Prep Teams In Christmas Tournaments This Week

Marin County Athletic League high school basketball teams, which lately have been tearing up non-league competition in preseason action, play this week and next in annual Christmas season tournaments throughout Northern California.

In our own back yard, the Drake Pirates of San Anselmo host their sixth annual tournament tonight through Saturday. Besides Drake, San Marin, Terra Linda and San Rafael will represent the MCAL; Petaluma, Napa, Balboa of San Francisco and Montgomery of Santa Rosa complete the field.

In other events this week, Tamalpais and Novato journey to Healdsburg for the Redwood Empire Tournament tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, Marin Catholic plays in the St. Elizabeth tourney in Oakland tonight through Saturday, and Redwood travels South for the McClane Invitational in Fresno Friday and Saturday.

Without question the toughest of these events is that last one. Included in the field at Fresno will be three teams—Verbum Dei of Los Angeles, Berkeley, and San Joaquin Memorial — which have been listed among the top 25 high school teams in the country.

Redwood finished third in the tourney last year, and went on to a 24-3 season. This year so far, however, the Giants of Larkspur are 1-2, and could be over their heads at Fresno. Redwood meets Fresno in the first game of the tourney at 4 p.m.

The only MCAL team favored to win a tourney this week is San Marin. The Mustangs of Novato tuned up for the Drake affair by walloping Soquel of Santa Cruz County, 95-61 last Saturday night, with 6-foot-8 center Dana La Ferriere supplying 32 points and grabbing off 16 rebounds.

San Marin meets Drake tonight in a first round game at 6:30, after Petaluma and San Rafael clash in the opener at 5. Tomorrow the first round will be completed as Balboa and Montgomery square off at 5 p.m., and Terra Linda faces Napa at 6:30.

Tamalpais, which ranks slightly above San Marin as the preseason choice to win the MCAL title, would be favored to win their tournament in Healdsburg but for the presence of their first round foe, North Delta of British Colombia, Canada. The Huskies, who like the Indians of Mill Valley have impressive size and speed, are led by forward Dave Coutu, who averaged 23 points a game last season.

If Tam can get by the Northerners, the Indians should have little trouble running through the rest of the competition, although Novato has shown strength recently (an upset win over Petaluma last week), and could give them trouble.

Novato goes against Oakland Tech at 6:30 p.m. in a first round game that immediately precedes the Tam-North Delta confrontation at 8.

FASHIONABLY FROZEN

Closed Door Practice For Secretive Chiefs

STANFORD (UPI) — The Kansas City Chiefs started workouts for Saturday's titanic tussle at Oakland with drills in Stanford Stadium - apparently.

Nobody but coach Hank Stram and his troops can say what happened for sure Tuesday because the practive was closed to absolutely everybody else.

"This game Saturday could mean everything to us," quarterback Len Dawson said. "The loser might not make the playoffs. It's similar to last year when we were playing for the championship."

Dawson noted that the Raiders had been going without tackle Tom Keating, who should be back Saturday.

"He's a heck of a defensive lineman; one of Oakland's keys," he said.

The Chiefs and Raiders are tied with 7-3-2 records and one of the two ties for both squads was the hysterical 17-17 tie they played earlier.

In that game, lest anyone forget, Dawson bootlegged for 20 yards to apparently ice a 17-14 Kansas City win. Ben Davidson roughly piled on Dawson and Otis Taylor of the Chiefs piled on Davidson. A fight started and the ensuing off setting penalties negated the play.

The Raiders got the ball back and George Blanda began the weekly sequence of last-gasp Oakland heroics with a 48-yard field goal in the last three seconds for the tie.

Dawson maintains there's no grudge held by the Kansas City team against Davidson, although he can't be sure of his team's fans. "Ben's just trying to do his job," Dawson said - following the old pro football quarterback's maxim of never riling up a defensive lineman.

In addition to Keating, the Raiders also listed Carleton Oats, the other starting tackle, as probable for the Chiefs battle. Running back Larry Todd was called questionable for the game.

Offensive tackle Harry Schuh called the Chiefs "a great defensive team." Contrary to the publicity, they really don't operate much differently from other teams, he said, "but they have that great personnel."

More Surgery For Johnson; This Time It's His Knee

HOUSTON (UPI)—Quarterback Charley Johnson of the Houston Oilers will undergo surgery Thursday to repair torn cartilage on his right knee, an Oiler spokesman said today.

The knee was injured initially in an exhibition game against the New Orleans Saints Aug. 15. He has had a metal brace taped to it in order to play, but it gets bruised in almost every game.

He suffered another such bruise in the first period against the Cleveland Browns Monday night and finally left the game in the fourth quarter.

It will be Johnson's second operation this season. He suffered a broken collarbone two months ago and had it pinned together surgically so he could resume competition.

Jerry Rhome, formerly of the Browns and Dallas Cowboys, will start for the Oilers against the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

Marin Tars Host Tourney

The surprising College of Marin Tars, having established their worth with four victories in their first five games, assume a co-favorite role in their own annual basketball tournament which begins tomorrow afternoon at Kentfield.

Junior College teams entered in the three-day tourney include two besides Marin from the Camino Norte Conference, Santa Rosa and Solano; Ohlone of the Coast Conference; Reedley of the Central Conference; and Sierra, Yuba and Napa of the Golden Valley Conference.

Ohlone of Fremont, undefeated in five games, ranks with Marin as a favorite.

The Tars, without a single returning letterman this year, have been outstanding so far. They racked up four straight wins before losing to Los Angeles City College, 67-59 in the finale of the Fresno Invitational tournament last Saturday night.

And most of the Tars' victories have come easily. They opened up with a 90-75 conquest of San Mateo, then beat Diablo Valley and Napa by 12 and 11 points before the trip to Fresno.

In that tournament, Marin disposed of Fresno City College, 57-49 and College of Sequoias, 75-64 before bowing to LACC.

One of the biggest reasons, figuratively and literally, for the Tars' success has been 6-foot-6 center Roosevelt Green. A transfer from San Francisco who did not play college ball last year, Green leads the team in both scoring and rebounding.

Close behind Roosevelt's average of 18 points a game is another San Francisco product, guard Joe Smith from Poly High School, who is averaging 15 points. Smith and Ron Small from Tamalpais anchor the backcourt and make Marin's fast break an explosive weapon.

The Tars' forwards are both 6-4 local products. Ed Herrnberger comes from Novato High School, Mike Peden from Terra Linda.

The only other team besides Ohlone that looks like a contender in this tournament is Santa Rosa, with a 3-1 mark so far. Those teams collide in the second game of the first round tomorrow at 5 p.m. Solano of Vallejo (1-3), plays Yuba of Marysville (2-2) in the opener at 3. In first round games tomorrow night, Reedley (1-3) takes on Sierra of Rocklin (0-4), at 7 o'clock, and Marin goes against Napa at 9.

Seals Entertain Canucks Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — Vancouver skates into the Oakland Coliseum tonight fresh from a 4-1 pasting of the tough New York Rangers.

The California GoldenSealsare having no such triumphs. They're sliding along on a two-game losing string and still may be going without defenseman Harry Howell, hurt last weekend, and winger Norm Ferguson, out since Oct. 17.

Both have worked out this week but may not be ready for tonight's fray. Howell meets with doctors today to decide when he'll return to action.

The Seals lost 2-1 to Vancouver Canucks in their first meeting Oct. 20, but coach Fred Glover says "we didn't play as well as we could and didn't give Charlie (Vancouver goalie Hodge) a lot of hard shots to handle. He didn't have to move most of the time."

Towns' 75 Gives Him Lead At Pebble Beach

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI) — Ken Towns of Tracy ignored rains and wild winds to shoot 75 over the famed Pebble Beach course and take the second round lead in the $5,000 54-hole Northern California PGA Medal Play championship Tuesday.

Towns has 145 and a four stroke lead over three players, including first day leader Charles Leider of Crystal Springs who skied to an 81.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Itek's Potential Very Interesting

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like your opinion on Itek Corp. — D.M.

A. Although definitely not for "widows and orphans," volatile Itek has good long-term rebound possibilities. Between 1962 and 1967 these shares appeared to know no upside limits, reaching a record level of 172½ while sales and earnings soared. At the 1967 peak, shares were trading at a multiple of 47, compared with the present level of 24x estimated 1970 net of $1.25 a share. This appraisal, although sharply reduced, is still generous — in terms of actual earnings performance in recent quarters — reflecting the glamor that investors attribute to Itek in particular and the fields of high technology in general. In the first nine months of this year, sales fell 11+ in direct proportion to the decline in Government contracts.

A $4.8 million Air Force radar contract received in July helped stem the ebb in backlog. However, finances are good, working capital increased 25 per cent to $43.9 million in the twelve months through Sept. 30 and long-term debt is well below $9 million.

Q. I am thinking of investing $10,000 in a high-rated bond with short maturity. In addition I would like your opinion on my purchasing 100 shares of Outboard Marine, Pacific Gas & Electric or one of the Standard Oils. My salary is not sufficient to support my daughter and myself. — B.G.

A. In view of your evident need for additional income, bonds, supplemented by a high yield common stock, would be suitable. There are a number of high-rated bonds maturing in five to seven years, which meet your portfolio requirements. Two qualifying issues are: Appalachian Power 8⅝s of 1976, selling at a premium to yield 7.4 per cent to maturity, and American Telephone 7¾s of 1977, yielding 6.9 per cent to maturity.

Your broker may suggest another equally suitable bond, since these issues come to market frequently. Of the stocks which you mentioned, I would favor Standard Oil of New Jersey for its 5.2 per cent dividend return as well as its above-average growth potential.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Republic Steel Corp. has said the recent General Motors strike will have a severe adverse effect on its fourth quarter earnings but that the impact on third quarter profit was minor.

The company also said it expects to reduce capital spending in fiscal 1971. Capital outlays for the nine months ended Sept. 30 were only $72.7 million against $166 million for all of calendar 1969.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Waltham Industries Corp. Will cease manufacturing operations at the Malleable Iron Foundry of MIF Industries, Ltd., at Brantford, Ont., on Dec. 23 because of losses.

Gas-To-Pulp Process Told

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Crown Zellerbach has developed an experimental process for converting ethylene gas into synthetic wood pulp which can be manufactured into paper on conventional paper making equipment.

Ernest A. Mitchell, executive vice president, said, "Our principal objective has been to produce a synthetic fiber within sound economic parameters which was suitable for paper manufacturing."

In Tokyo this week, Crown Zellerbach and Mitsui Petrochemical Industries Ltd. announced an agreement to negotiate on a possible joint venture to manufacture synthetic woodpulp for the Japanese home market.

Original Waterbed Maker Opening Outlay in San Rafael

A new opening in San Rafael is Innerspace Environments, Inc., a manufacturer of waterbeds, at 580 Irwin Street.

The company has leased 3,600 square feet on the ground floor through John J. Hourihan of Grubb and Ellis Co. William Shirley still maintains some space in the rear of this building for his printing operations, and the Department of Human Resources Development is taking over the second floor, also leased by Hourihan.

Innerspace's initial production will be about 300 units a week at this manufacturing plant which will maintain a staff of 10 persons, headed by Bruce E. Harlow of Muir Beach, vice president in charge of production.

The company was formed two years ago and has its main office at San Francisco and also a plant in Chicago. Main retail outlet for the waterbeds, which are said to have been invented by Innerspace, will be through the Slumberland Mattress Co. chain. The latter has about 400 stores in the United States.

SIERRA NATIONAL BANK has received permission from the Regional Administrator of National Banks to relocate its Corte Madera office from 5587 Paradise Drive to 56 Corte Madera Shopping Center.

This is presently an office of Household Finance Corp. whose regional headquarters in San Mateo reports that the Corte Madera office will be closed and have its operations merged with the San Rafael office at 887 Fourth Street.

Remodeling work will have to be done before Sierra National relocates in the center. An opening is not anticipated much before the end of January.

THERE IS A NEW NAME for the Mam'Selle Beauty Bazaar in the Corte Madera Shopping Center — now called Generation Gap..

Teamed with Diane Mehl in the new operation are Ronald McAllister, former owner of Maison d'Or Coiffures, and Rey Richardson, who owned Chez Les Girls, both located in San Rafael.

The salon has been extensively remodeled and redecorated and has a new men's section — where men can have their hair styled while wives are being serviced in another section by one of the five stylists. A grand opening is now being held, featuring a one-time introductory offer through Dec. 31.

RICHARD S. ISAACS of Belvedere has been named manager of the San Francisco office of J. Walter Thompson Co. For the past two years he has been a vice president and director of client services. He succeeds Harry Lee, who has been appointed to the new post of manager of business development.

ROBERT M. VILAS of Nicasio is observing his 25th anniversary with Bank of America. He has been manager of the Point Reyes branch since 1965 following four years at the Mill Valley office. He has spent his entire career with the bank in Marin County and has served at many of the local offices.

The Legend Of Notre Dame

In his scholarly work, "Notre Dame, Its People And Its Legends," the author, a legend himself, Francis Wallace, reports that, in 1928, a New York sportswriter, W.O. McGeehan, wrote that he had made a trip to South Bend "to investigate the rumor a university was located there."

HIS SKEPTICISM was understandable. Just as Germany was understood to be a country not run by an army but occupeid by it, just as some big businesses set up dummy corporations, or tanker fleets ship under Panamanian registry, Notre Dame was thought to be just a brand name for a traveling football team. It didn't own the team, the team owned it. Notre Dame was just a kind of complicated ventriloquism act.

THE CYNICAL legend went that Notre Dame had been founded in 1844 by Father Sorin but discovered in 1924 by Grantland Rice. It successfully fought off Indians, drought, fires, flood, cholera, prejudice and bigotry only to be captured by a football team.

It was a school to which the king of France (Louis Phillippe) once gave $700 — and the wags commented he just wanted to be sure of a season ticket. Or they say that like all institutions, it had small beginnings — they just put up the goal posts and went from there. Everyone on campus either wore a cassock — or cleats. It was always easy to tell a Notre Dame student: even if you couldn't see his number, you could tell by his gold helmet. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was a flop because people thought it was a football movie.

IT WAS the place where Rockne invented the forward pass, not where Julius Nieuwald invented synthetic rubber. It was a place where Math I was "Hike, hike, hike!" and where the verdigrised statues around campus were described as members of the punt-return team. "Abnormal Psychology" was a study in methods of getting a team to be 14-point underdogs. To Northwestern.

ACTUALLY, NOTRE Dame's greatest team never played in Yankee Stadium. Its goal was not the Cotton Bowl. George Gipp couldn't have coached it. It didn't have any Johnny "One Play" O'Briens. It was a 14-point underdog in every game on its schedule. It never went around shaking its finger at the sky and shouting "We're No. 1!" Its Victory Song was "Ava Maria" not "Cheer, Cheer For Old Notre Dame."

NOTRE DAME'S first national champions were a doughty bunch of French priests who hewed a university out of the wilderness. Its first Heisman Trophy candidate was their leader, Father Edward Sorin. All had become priests or brothes despite the ravages of anti-clericalism raised in the French Revolution and encouraged by Bonaparte.

They crossed the ocean in 39 days in steerage, barged down the Erie Canal like any other cargo. They played an 11-game schedule with the rules made up by the other guys.

SORIN RAN his team like any other top quarterback. He was dismayed to find that Indiana, where he founded his "university," was not really part of any French Northwest Territory (despite the presence of towns named "Napoleon," "Terry Haute," "La Porte," and "Vincen. :s") and that he not only had to learn a new land but a new language.

He was a man of fortitude, gratitude and rectitude. He fought with the authority of the state, the city and his own church to erect his citadel of Catholic learnning. Amusingly enough his most exasperation was caused by the Irish whom he found pugnacious, disobedient and intractable, not given to authority, and once even went so far as to ban the wearing of the green on St. Patrick's Day.

BUT HE learned to live with his fighting Irish, little dreaming that one day, along would come a brokennosed, bald-headed, stammering Norwegian Lutheran named Rockne and a graceful, gifted but disdainful son of a Congregationalist minister named Gipp who would make his institution internationally famous — but for none of the reasons the French abbe in Le Mans foresaw when he gave Pere Sorin and his band of clerics 3,000 francs for passage to America to build a fount of Catholicism in the New World.

Succeeding heads of Notre Dame alternately have been embarrassed by, or awed by, the enormous incubus of football with the scholastic image outweighed by the athletic — and have sought periodically to stuff the full grown tiger back into the shoe box it came in.

BUT FATHER Ted Hesburgh and Edmund Joyce must do as Father Sorin would have done: accept the revenue, give thanks to God, rejoice in the diversion of the alumni and build a greater university. An ideal which can survive real Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death and can survive the Four Horsemen as well.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The $5.6 million suit Lance Alworth brought against the San Diego Chargers may take from three to five years to settle, said his attorney, Donald Augustine, Tuesday.

The lawyer said "all we want is that Lance gets what he is entitled to." But Chargers ow owner Eugene F. Klein retorted that the suit has "zero merit," saying "Lance doesn't know what he wants."

Alworth, the Chargers' all-star receiver, Monday charged breach of contract and violation of state anti-trust laws.

North Squad Named For Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — A 29-member North squad headed by quarterbacks Lynn Dickey of Kansas State and Dan Pastorini of Santa Clara was named Tuesday for the 22nd Senior Bowl Jan. 9.

The South squad for the nationally televised game at Ladd Stadium will be named later, according to Senior Bowl President Theodore K. Jackson.

Jackson said players will begin arriving Jan. 2 and drills will start two days later.

Dickey, who played despite rib injuries part of the season, amassed 2,136 yards to boost his career total to 6,208. Pastorini passed for almost 4,000 yards.

The two aerial artists will have a corps of fast, talented receivers in J. D. Hill of Arizona State, Henry Hawthorne of Kansas State, Sam Dickerson of Southern California and Herman Eban of Oklahoma State.

The North team's ground attack will be headed by Big Eight rushing champion John Riggins of Kansas, who netted 1,131 yards in 1970; Jim Harrison, a 238-pounder from Missouri who compiled 702 yards; and Boston College's Fred Willis, who had 1,007 yards in nine games.

The offensive line consists of tight end Doug Dieken of Illinois, centers Tom Beard of Michigan State and Leo Dillon of Dayton, and interior linemen Dennis Havig of Colorado, Larron Jackson of Missouri, Marv Montgomery of Southern California and Bob Newton of Nebraska.

The defensive unit features linebackers Dale Farley of West Virginia, Oscar Gibson of Kansas State and Phil Villapiano of Bowling Green.

Defensive backs are Tom Duncan of Toledo, Chris Farasopoulas of Brigham Young, Clarence Scott of Kansas State and Norman Thompson of Utah. On the line are Bob Bell of Cincinnati, Layne McDowell of Iowa, Tom Oesterling of UCLA, Jay Wallace of Missouri and Dave Walline of Nebraska.

Rounding out the squad is place kicker Tom Duncan of Toledo. Pastorini also is a place kicker and will handle punting chores.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Safe And Sure Winter Ideas

Millions of boats are in winter storage all across the country. Luckier boat owners in the south are just thinking about it. But everywhere, this week is a good time to take a second look for possible hazards at the spot where you are winter-storing your boat.

A spot near a chimney or close to a backyard incinerator is not good for obvious reasons. Sparks could set the boat on fire, burn its cover, or fill it with fly ash or half-burned junk.

ALSO, IF the area is treeless and exposed to high winds, give some thought to staking or weighting down the boat. On the other hand, don't park a boat too close to a building. It could be damaged by a snow slide or falling icicles.

If your boat is under a tree, consider the possibility of an ice storm or a heavy fall of wet snow. A boat could be wrecked by a heavy branch falling at such times. In general, small supple trees which bend instead of breaking under a snow load make a safer and often more effective windbreak.

MAKE SURE the boat sits so that rain and melting snow will drain off its cover. If your boat sits on a trailer, remove the trailer wheels for the winter. The wheels and hubs should come off anyway to check and lubricate the bearings. Coat the exposed axles with grease and take the wheels indoors for the winter. After tending to the bearings, store the wheel assemblies in cardboard boxes with about 10 pounds of air in the tires. Rest the trailer axle on concrete blocks for the winter to keep it from sinking into the ground during thaws.

There are many problems to winter storage as some of the questions we have been asked indicate:

Q. Should I clean all the marine growth off the bottom of my boat now that I have it stored in the backyard, or is it easier in the spring?

A. It will be 10 times as hard to get the mess off in the spring. Do it now! The longer marine growth is left on the bottom of a boat, the dryer, harder and more stubborn it gets.

Q. I have a couple of gas tanks, a battery box, a few life preservers and all our boating gear stored in the boat for the winter. A friend tells me that this is bad. Is it?

A. Yes, it's bad for two reasons. First, unless the boat is adequately supported, all this weight in it could conceivably ruin its shape so that it will not run properly next summer, Secondly, some of this "stuff" could mark the interior of the boat indelibly with rust, stains and discolored spots. Also, it is not good for life preservers or other fabric materials to be left in a boat all winter. Take them inside where it is warm and dry.

Q. Is an old unheated, well ventilated building (a barn) a good place to store my big wooden boat?

A. This is the best possible place. When wooden boats are stored in heated buildings, they tend to dry out excessively. The only thing you should be sure to watch is that the boat has good support. Make certain the keel is blocked up in many places, so that the hull won't change shape from its own weight.

Q. My friend says that I should cover my bright red fiber glass boat to protect it from the winter sun. Will it fade?

A. If it doesn't fade, it is almost sure to change color in some way under the actinic rays of the sun. If you don't want to cover it, be sure to store it so that each side gets the same amount of sunlihgt. Then, if it fades, at least it will change color evenly and you probably won't notice it.

Q. Is it all right to leave the outboard motor on the transom of my boat? I am storing the craft on its trailer behind the garage.

A. Yes, this is all right as long as you service the outboard motor (winterize it) and cover it. Be sure to put a block under the skeg of the motor so that it takes all the weight off the transom of the boat.

Q. I have no garage to store my wooden boat. Can I leave it outside with a canvas over it?

A. There's a danger with canvas that it will tend to keep water in contact with the wood. Tar paper or thin plastic sheeting may be better. Canvas or tarpaulin is best if you build a light frame. Then, keep the boat under a sort of tent constructed from either of these materials.

Q. Do I need to do anything to the fittings and deck hardware?

A. Not usually. Most hardware is either brass, chrome plated brass or stainless steel and even a Minnesota winter can't do much damage to these metals.

Q. What do you consider the most important thing to watch for in storing a fiber glass boat?

A. There's no question about it, the most important thing is support. The resins in the fiber glass boat are really viscous liquids and they change shape when pressure is applied to a few places for a long time. Metal will usually spring back into shape, but any "set" imparted to a plastic or wooden boat is apt to be permanent. Any distortion, of course, will cause the boat to run poorly next summer.

Cost of Murder Trial: 33 Cents on Tax Rate

What does it cost to try a murder case?

For the taxpayers of Lassen County, it will cost 33 cents on the tax rate this year — maybe more

What bothers the Lassen residents most is that the case already has been tried and paid for once

The trial that added 33 cents to the tax rate won't even be held in Lassen County. It will be in Eureka Humboldt County But Lassen taxpayers must pay for it

The case makes plain the little recognized cost impact of the legal process

IN AUGUST, 1967, Jesse Levoy DeForest and his wife Mary Jeanette were found slain in their ranch home outside of Susanville, the Lassen County seat, and Keith E. Utterback of Hoopa, Humboldt County was found murdered near Bogard in Lassen National Forest All three had been stabbed and shot. Sheriff's investigators concluded they were the work of the same killer or killers

About a month after the killings William Tidwell, then 21 and recently discharged from the Army, and his brother Robert then 19, were arrested in Redding. Possessions of the DeForests and Utterback were found in the Tidwells' home

The two Tidwells were tried separately before Judge Stanley Arnold in Lassen County Superior Court James Pardee, court-appointed attorney for William Tidwell, twice moved for a change of venue Twice it was denied by Judge Arnold

Both youths were convicted and sentenced to death They were received on San Quentin Prison's Death Row on Feb 5, 1968

ATTORNEY PARDEE appealed on the basis that a change of venue should have been granted to assure a fair trial He had 500 Lassen County citizens interviewed. All but five of them had heard the case discussed, he reported, all but 13 had heard or seen radio and television reports, all but 31 had discussed the case with friends And, he said, "the vast majority of the persons interviewed were of the opinion that they would be unable to set aside the views they held and try the case fairly on the basis of the evidence in court

This insisted attorney Pardee, proved the Tidwells could not have had fair trials in Lassen County

The California Supreme Court in August of this year agreed, by 6-to-2, and ordered the pair remanded for retrial in a different jurisdiction On Oct 29, the Tidwells were returned to the Lassen County Jail at Susanville to await the Eureka trial

THE CASE ILLUSTRATES two things The lengths to which the oft-berated "system" will go to assure fair trial for those accused of crime, and the cost this may impose on the taxpayers

In a large county, the cost of a murder trial is submerged among the many millions of county expense In a county the size of Lassen assessed valuation, $35.6 million) it is all too evident

The Lassen County Board of Supervisors added 33 cents to the tax rate to pay for the new trial — hoping that will be enough. It may not be Expenses may have to be cut elsewhere to assure the brothers Tidwell their second trial by a presumably less prejudiced jury in Eureka

Stellar And California Jays

The bird books tell us that the black-crested stellar jay prefers the tall coniferous forests where he can fly from tree-top to tree-top while calling in a crow-like voice, while the smooth-pated California jay favors the live oaks of the coastal region with their acorns to supplement his diet

In Marin and Sonoma and in most of the Northern California coast counties, we have the remains of both kinds of forests. And we have an abundance of both kinds of these highly adaptable, very vocal birds.

Apart from shouting at each other, they seem to get on all right together We often see them sharing seats on the same fence

For birds so willing to quarrel with any creature, this is an accomplishment

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Law Virtually Mandates State To Raise Its Employees' Pay

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The wisdom of "freezing" state salaries is open to question as the state goes forward on short rations for the approaching fiscal year

The state personnel board which in view of the delicate fiscal situation probably would have liked to skip recommending pay increases this year nevertheless was virtually forced to recommend more than $100 million for the 1971-72 fiscal year

Commenting on the recommendation, the board said

The board is aware of the current depressed economy of the state, increased unemployment, and revenue problems

Nonetheless the board has a legal obligation to report the facts concerning salaries and fringe-benefits as accurately and objectively as possible

And in the reporting, the board recommended that $60 million from the general fund and $43 million from special and other funds be appropriated for salary increases for state civil service employees next fiscal year

OF COURSE, the board's recommendation is not final Both the legislature and the governor may veto the recommendation but the board's guidelines will be given plenty of consideration, as well they might be, as the board spends many thousands of dollars maintaining statistical data to prove to the legislature it is carrying out the mandate in the law

This mandate requires that the salary raise "shall be based on the principle that like salaries shall be paid for comparable duties and responsibilities. In establishing or changing such ranges, consideration shall be given to the prevailing rates for comparable service in other public employment and in private business."

Thus, the state could not, even if it wanted to, avoid increasing taxes every year to pick up the tab for the state employees' pay increase.

So, because of a virtual "freeze" in the law, which comes close to requiring the state to increase salaries regardless of the economic situation, taxpayers are to be hard hit in a time of economic stress.

IN ADDITION, the personnel board expands on its recommendation for state employee benefits

The board, in addition to $100 million in salary raises, suggests that now is the time to add unemployment insurance benefits to the fringe benefits for state employees

More than 30 years have elapsed since this proposal was first advanced, and it has been only lately that it has been taken seriously Originally, the idea was that the state employees received sufficient holidays and other benefits to offset a demand for unemployment insurance.

But with the avid demands on government for more and more

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Source Of Illegal Apartment Figure

In recent letters to the editor, at recent city council meetings and in your editorial of Nov. 30, I have been quoted as having said that there are 150 to 200 illegal second units in single family zones in the City of San Anselmo. The public should be made aware that I did not make such a statement and that I have no idea how many illegal uses might exist in San Anselmo.

I believe that the misunderstanding is a result of your report of the meeting of the San Anselmo City Council of Sept. 8, 1970 which appeared in the Independent-Journal on Sept. 9. Your report stated, "Charles R. Leitzell, the city's public works director, told the council there are about 150 to 200 such illegal uses in the city and that they would be brought to the council's attention as the city discovered them."

What I actually said was in response to a question by Councilman (Woodrow V.) Capurro asking me how many non-conforming uses were in San Anselmo. I replied, " 100 to 200, I believe, and, of course, we show these as non-conforming uses, some are not, some are illegal uses the law, the zoning law, did allow the non-conforming uses to remain as long as they remained in continuous use."

Normally I would not request a correction but the I-J story has been so frequently quoted that I feel it is in the public interest to correct the reported statement.

If This Is Sport, Give Us Soap Opera

A bouquet to the I-J editor for his timely review of the ABC Monday night football game of Nov. 30 between the Miami Dolphins and the Atlanta Falcons.

The ABC executive responsible for this perpetration of calculated boredom should be presented the "Heidi" award for the year's biggest sports goof.

So compelling was the "drama" of this spectacular that I literally fell asleep somewhere during the first quarter about the time Chevrolet scored on Gillette. When a football addict can't handle a bummer like this one without therapy, pity the

Questions Raised About Our Schools

The following questions need to be considered and resolved:

1. When will our school board members awaken to the fact that the continuous failure of bond and tax elections is the only means left to irate citizens of expressing their disapproval of spineless board members, incompetent administrators, untrustworthy teachers, and unruly students?

2. When will the San Rafael board members dismiss some "undesirable characters" who are teaching at San Rafael High School and who will receive tenure unless gotten rid of now? And who recommended these "characters" in the first place?

3. Why haven't the San Rafael school board members insisted on rigid student and teacher discipline, and proper patrolling by deans, to put a stop to this endless bodily violence, making it unsafe for a girl to walk the halls and to the bathroom? . . .

4. When will the San Rafael board acknowledge its negligence in permitting this cancerous condition to develop beyond administrative control? . . .

5. Since when is it "wrong" for students to meet at noon voluntarily to share their faith with pot addicts and problem kids who have "hang-ups" which only Christian love and concern can solve, as expressed by the Christian kids on campus?

6. Why has the College of Marin Board committed racial discrimination in permitting a "Black Room" on campus, where white students, teachers, and even the police are not permitted, and are afraid to enter?

When these questions are satisfactorily resolved, confidence in our school system will be restored.

Another Side To Salary Issue

The Nov. 17 editorial in the Independent-Journal reflected your concern that public officials in the Dixie School District should keep their word to the electorate by not granting pay not been considered by your newspaper.

The Dixie Teachers Association has recently asked for an 11.8 per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1, 1970. This increase would bring the salary schedule up to the median standard for bay area school districts for last school year.

The teachers did not ask for a raise last April at the customary time for negotiating salary increases because the Dixie district was in financial trouble. We did not intend to ask for a raise unless additional state funds were allocated to the district. We were assured by Dr. Clifford Campbell, district superintendent, in a letter attached to our contracts, that should additional state money be allocated to the district salary increases would be considered.

Since that time, $379,000 in additional funds have been allocated to the district by the state. The board of trustees has budgeted the additional funds to strengthen reserves and reduce the tax rate. No funds have been allocated to increase teacher salaries.

When additional money became available from state sources beyond that needed to sustain the current operating budget, the tax rate was reduced, the reserve fund increased, but the Dixie teachers, who are paid less than most other Marin County teachers, were told to tighten their belts. The low priority given to teacher needs cannot help but affect our morale and effectiveness as teachers.

Bouquets To Three: Carrier To Editor

May I add three bouquets to your list?

1. To my faithful newsboy (who is only pint size) for bringing my I-J every night despite the driving rain and high winds which plagued him for six nights last week.

2. To the "Marin Poets' Corner" editor for giving us a poem by Lori Petri, a longtime favorite. We have another poet of major stature in the county — Elsa Gitlow of Mill Valley — maybe we can have a poem by her sometime.

3. To editor (Jack) Craemer for his column — a little time for football. I don't watch football, but I keep a book handy and read during commercials. I have just completed Speer's "Inside the Third Reich," 573 pp., all on commercial message time.

Nixon Moving To Save Economy — And His Own Political Career

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The upcoming 1972 election seems likely to save the United States from economic calamity.

President Nixon is substantially altering his anti-inflation game plan. Politics is one of the reasons.

He is moving decisively away from economic restraint to economic stimulus. His goal: full employment in 1972.

He is combining political necessity — for his own re-election — with economic good sense.

HIS ACTIONS come none too soon.

If President Nixon did not begin to move now to bring about an early reduction in unemployment, the economy would remain dangerously sluggish and the prospects of his re-election would be in peril — or worse.

Mr. Nixon has made no secret of the fact that the "economic drag" hurt his party more than anything else in the November elections. His intention is to turn this political liability into a political asset for 1972.

The most significant fact to emerge from his address to the National Association of Manufacturers last week is the extent to which liberal Democratic economic policy and conservative administration economic policy are coming together on what needs to be done.

The President is now beginning to do it.

THE NATION seems to have lost its bipartisan foreign policy, but it is acquiring a bipartisan economic policy.

Compare what the liberal economics, like Walter H. Heller of the University of Minnesota, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers under both Kennedy and Johnson, have been urging the administration to do with what Mr. Nixon now says he is going to do. The areas of agreement are large and the differences hardly visible.

They are agreed that the federal budget should be expansionist and therefore in deficit for a period. That is being done.

They are agreed that the federal budget should be planned to be in balance at "full employment." That is being done.

They are agreed that the money supply available to the economy should be increased. It is.

They are agreed that interest rates should come down. They are.

They are agreed that the President must take a tougher, more activist role to achieve wage-price restraints by both management and labor. His NAM speech showed he is doing that — call it jawboning or not.

TO UNDERLINE that he was speaking for both the administration and the Federal Reserve Board, the President put this significant statement in his NAM speech: "I have been assured by Dr. Burns (head of the Federal Reserve) that the Federal Reserve System will provide fully for the increasing monetary needs of the economy."

He added: "I am confident this commitment will be kept." Burns had been shown this paragraph and approved it.

Obviously the President is not openly saying that he is significantly changing his economic game plan at half-time. Presidents don't do it that way. When F.D.R. was preparing his reelection campaign in 1936, he asked his closest adviser, Judge Samuel Rosenman, how he could get around his 1932 statement that he would balance the federal budget by a 15 per cent cut in spending. After pondering for a week, Rosenman replied: "Deny you ever made it."

President Nixon is understandably putting it this way: "Even before the results of our anti-inflationary actions became fully apparent, our plan called for moving the economy up toward its full growth potential in a way that would not bring about a new round of inflation."

NO ONE CAN fairly say that this part of the game plan was never in the back of someone's mind in the White House, but it was not on the public record. No matter. A change is needed. The President is making it.

He is acting just in time both for the nation's economic recovery and his own political survival.

'System' Reform Falls Short When Good Will Lacking

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — We hoary upholders of "the System" looked pretty silly the other day after the House Rules Committee got through with the bill to create an independent consuemr protection agency. On the surface, it was the best / worst example in recent memory of what's wrong with the existing version of the democratic process.

The bill that was defeated, or some version of it, is urgently needed to give the consumer at large a voice in the federal government independent of the existing cabinet agencies and the ostensibly regulatory agencies. They have evolved into a cozy client relationship with the industries they are supposed to regulate.

But whether you are for it or against it, its passage clearly was the will of Congress. The Senate passed such a bill 74-4. The House Government Operations Committee cleared it 31-4. But when it reached the Rules Committee it hung up on a 7-7 tie vote; thus it will not reach the floor in this Congress.

Next year, its advocates will have to start all over.

THE FACT that such a thwarting of majority wishes is possible provokes another shriek for reform of the rules of Congress, particularly those of the House. This year, for the first time in 24 years, a few important legislative reforms were enacted — although none of them dealt with the death grip the Rules Committee still holds on lawmaking.

During the long, mostly cut-and-dried debate over House reforms, nobody ever held out serious hope that the seniority system of committee chairmanships would be affected, for example. Had it been changed, Rep. William Colmer, D-Miss., would still be chairman of the Rules Committee for the time being, but his reign would be limited.

Colmer, who does not list his birthdate in his biography in the Congressional Directory, is 80. The next two Democrats on Rules are 78 and 69 years old.

SINCE EFFORTS to legislate changes in the seniority rule fell through, caucuses on both sides of the House have moved toward party positions of moderate reform next time the issue arises.

The Republicans, who as the minority have nothing to lose in chairmanships any time soon, have agreed that election of House chairman should be subject to secret ballot on demand of any member. The Democrats have moved tentatively that way and made soft noises about putting an age limit of 70 on any incoming chairmen.

If either of these changes already had been in effect when the consumer agency bill reached the Rules Committee, the outcome likely would have been different.

In fact, however, the bill could have been cleared for the floor this year if the leaders of the House had exerted their muscle, despite Colmer's personal opposition.

NOT ONLY the conservative chairman but two other Democrats voted against clearing the bill. And another, who has aspired to the House speaker's chair, the majority leader position and the Rules chairmanship at various times, did not bother to break his vacation to come back to Washington to vote.

It was that strange refusal by Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo,, that was the key to the bill's defeat. Bolling was vacationing in the West Indies. When the head count in the committee came down to a likely tie, the bill's sponsors put out emergency calls to bring Bolling back. The Motorola Corp., one of the few big-business backers of the bill, offered to send its plane down to fly him to Washington. But he declined and the bill died.

What is proved by analyzing the consumer agency bill's defeat is that it was not "the System," archaic as it is, that buried a measure with such wide approval among the membership of both houses. It was the human element — lack of adequate leadership, lack of dedication by members in critical spots. Even a reformed congressional system cannot function in

Itek's Potential Very Interesting

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like your opinion on Itek Corp. — D.M.

A. Although definitely not for "widows and orphans," volatile Itek has good long-term rebound possibilities. Between 1962 and 1967 these shares appeared to know no upside limits, reaching a record level of 172½ while sales and earnings soared. At the 1967 peak, shares were trading at a multiple of 47, compared with the present level of 24x estimated 1970 net of $1.25 a share. This appraisal, although sharply reduced, is still generous — in terms of actual earnings performance in recent quarters — reflecting the glamor that investors attribute to Itek in particular and the fields of high technology in general. In the first nine months of this year, sales fell 11+ in direct proportion to the decline in Government contracts.

A $4.8 million Air Force radar contract received in July helped stem the ebb in backlog. However, finances are good, working capital increased 25 per cent to $43.9 million in the twelve months through Sept. 30 and long-term debt is well below $9 million.

Q. I am thinking of investing $10,000 in a high-rated bond with short maturity. In addition I would like your opinion on my purchasing 100 shares of Outboard Marine, Pacific Gas & Electric or one of the Standard Oils. My salary is not sufficient to support my daughter and myself. — B.G.

A. In view of your evident need for additional income, bonds, supplemented by a high yield common stock, would be suitable. There are a number of high-rated bonds maturing in five to seven years, which meet your portfolio requirements. Two qualifying issues are: Appalachian Power 8⅝s of 1976, selling at a premium to yield 7.4 per cent to maturity, and American Telephone 7¾s of 1977, yielding 6.9 per cent to maturity.

Your broker may suggest another equally suitable bond, since these issues come to market frequently. Of the stocks which you mentioned, I would favor Standard Oil of New Jersey for its 5.2 per cent dividend return as well as its above-average growth potential.

Gas-To-Pulp Process Told

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Crown Zellerbach has developed an experimental process for converting ethylene gas into synthetic wood pulp which can be manufactured into paper on conventional paper making equipment.

Ernest A. Mitchell, executive vice president, said, "Our principal objective has been to produce a synthetic fiber within sound economic parameters which was suitable for paper manufacturing."

In Tokyo this week, Crown Zellerbach and Mitsui Petrochemical Industries Ltd. announced an agreement to negotiate on a possible joint venture to manufacture synthetic woodpulp for the Japanese home market.

Original Waterbed Maker Opening Outlay in San Rafael

A new opening in San Rafael is Innerspace Environments, Inc., a manufacturer of waterbeds, at 580 Irwin Street.

The company has leased 3,600 square feet on the ground floor through John J. Hourihan of Grubb and Ellis Co. William Shirley still maintains some space in the rear of this building for his printing operations, and the Department of Human Resources Development is taking over the second floor, also leased by Hourihan.

Innerspace's initial production will be about 300 units a week at this manufacturing plant which will maintain a staff of 10 persons, headed by Bruce E. Harlow of Muir Beach, vice president in charge of production.

The company was formed two years ago and has its main office at San Francisco and also a plant in Chicago. Main retail outlet for the waterbeds, which are said to have been invented by Innerspace, will be through the Slumberland Mattress Co. chain. The latter has about 400 stores in the United States.

SIERRA NATIONAL BANK has received permission from the Regional Administrator of National Banks to relocate its Corte Madera office from 5587 Paradise Drive to 56 Corte Madera Shopping Center.

This is presently an office of Household Finance Corp. whose regional headquarters in San Mateo reports that the Corte Madera office will be closed and have its operations merged with the San Rafael office at 887 Fourth Street.

Remodeling work will have to be done before Sierra National relocates in the center. An opening is not anticipated much before the end of January.

THERE IS A NEW NAME for the Mam'Selle Beauty Bazaar in the Corte Madera Shopping Center — now called Generation Gap..

Teamed with Diane Mehl in the new operation are Ronald McAllister, former owner of Maison d'Or Coiffures, and Rey Richardson, who owned Chez Les Girls, both located in San Rafael.

The salon has been extensively remodeled and redecorated and has a new men's section — where men can have their hair styled while wives are being serviced in another section by one of the five stylists. A grand opening is now being held, featuring a one-time introductory offer through Dec. 31.

RICHARD S. ISAACS of Belvedere has been named manager of the San Francisco office of J. Walter Thompson Co. For the past two years he has been a vice president and director of client services. He succeeds Harry Lee, who has been appointed to the new post of manager of business development.

ROBERT M. VILAS of Nicasio is observing his 25th anniversary with Bank of America. He has been manager of the Point Reyes branch since 1965 following four years at the Mill Valley office. He has spent his entire career with the bank in Marin County and has served at many of the local offices.

A THRIFT HONOR AWARD has been presented to the Hamilton Air Force Base Federal Credit Union by the National Credit Union Administration for stimulating savings among small savers. The air base union attained a monthly growth rate of 3.9 per cent in accounts under $1,000, well above the average for federal credit unions of its size.

This credit union has been in existence since 1954 and on Oct. 31 has 4,117 members who had saved $2,351,389. Frank McGill is president. E. F. Pritchard is treasurer.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Early Snow Catches Ski-Buffs Without Their Pre-Conditioning

It's easy to believe predictions that Marin's in for a long, rough winter The late November storms were the kind that usually don't arrive until very late in December or more likely in Januray and February

For some strange reason, the motorists didn't seem psychologically ready for the early onslaught of winter Accidents and near-accidents soared

Even the ski buffs seemed to have been caught unprepared The really serious ones annually put themselves through a cumulative series of athletic tortures to get themselves in shape for the hazards of the slopes. On the theory, I guess, that they'll break fewer bones when they take a tumble

So now a bunch of snow addicts are suffering aches and pains from trying to speed up their conditioning too fast.

TURNING FROM the mountains to San Francisco Bay, it's possible the Marin Conservation League has some good points in its proposal to put a Central Marin ferry terminal at Point San Quentin rather than on Corte Madera Creek.

Neither Larkspur nor Corte Madera city fathers can be very happy over the idea, but the league points out that the state owns 500 acres of already filled or diked land there. If the terminal were on the point, ferryboats would not have to navigate nearly two miles of dreaded channel, with its fog hazards, nor would their wakes pound against neighboring marshlands

The boats could move faster — about 20 minutes per round trip, the league contends.

AND NOW LET US tell the inside tale of downtown Larkspur's wondrous health food store sign.

The sign glows in many colors on the store at 460 Magnolia Avenue where Chris Rosenfeld purveys his natural products. The same "Dickens" who created the glittering mural that adorns the city's building in the park at the foot of Madrone Avenue, painted the shop sign.

John W Appleton, superintendent of city planning and building, put the sign on the carpet at a meeting of the city planning commission the other night

Appleton said the original sign permit called for black lettering on a white sign. He shunned making a recommendation, merely passing among the commissioners a color photo that barely captured the sign's hues

Rosenfeld said his fellow downtown merchants think the sign "brightens up" the area

"Is it lighted?" asked Commissioner Joseph N. Picetti

"No, it glows in the dark," said chairman Robert H Lee, laughing.

"It's been suggested I put black light on it," said the serious, polite young Rosenfeld.

The commissioners thanked Rosenfeld for waiting patiently more than three hours for his hearing. Then they unanimously voted to let the sign remain

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

If Dismissals Are Purge, Hiring Practice Is Perfect

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The fat was in the fire this week at Fresno State College because 13 faculty members were denied tenure or new contracts and two administrators were demoted.

Two hundred and seventy of the college's faculty are teaching this year on probationary contracts Of these, 73 were up for tenure Once it is granted, the instructor has a lifetime job.

Of the 73, all but six were granted tenure Of the other 197 on probationary status, all but seven were offered contracts for next year

THIS SOUNDS as though Fresno State College has been doing a great job in picking faculty. Only 3.5 per cent of its probationary teachers not eligible for tenure have been found wanting Only 8.2 per cent of those eligible to receive tenure will be denied it

(It should be born in mind that at the state colleges and university, tenure does not come automatically but is determined by faculty committees and the administration. In California's junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools, it is automatic.)

In most fields, a personnel department would receive high praise if more than 90 per cent of its hirees proved good enough to keep permanently. It is different, however, in the education field Refusal to hire or give tenure to 13 faculty members at Fresno State has been branded a "political purge."

THERE HAD BEEN rumblings of such a purge when it was disclosed over a month ago that one dean and two instructors had been notified they would be rehired for a fifth year without being granted tenure (which customarily comes at that point), and that five others had been notified they would not be rehired. (These presumably are among the 13 announced this week.)

"I am part of a political purge that is ruthless in the sense that it is willing to sacrifice academic excellence for political goals," said dismissed Everett Frost, assistant professor of English, on Nov. 2

Ralph C Rea, acting dean of the college's school of humanities, said at that time that two philosophy teachers would be let go because of overstaffing in the department. To this, James Smith, department chairman, commented; "To our knowledge this is the first time anyone has been terminated because of overstaffing."

If Professor Smith is correct, it would seem the college not only does a remarkable job of hiring competent personnel, but an even more remarkable job of predicting class loads. With the rapid shifts in technology, in student interests and areas of emphasis, it appears little short of miraculous that no department ever got overstaffed until this year

This week, nothing was said about overstaffing. But four of the discharged (as of next June) faculty members joined in branding their dismissals "a political purge."

SUPPOSE THEY are correct.

Last May, Fresno State was wracked by rioting, during which a school official was held hostage in a college building by militants protesting the U.S. invasion of Cambodia. Faculty members — at least one of whom is among the 13 being "purged" — participated in the uprising.

After similar dismissals last academic year at San Francisco State College, there were the same cries of "political purge." An editorial in the Phoenix, student newspaper, at that time called attention that the protesting faculty members had been active in disrupting the campus, and commented:

"Those who live by politics can starve by politics.

"If you play the game, you have to be willing to accept the penalties involved. If you don't like the rules, don't play.

"The teachers involved seem to have a one-sided approach to the political chess tournament on this campus, a convoluted logic that makes it all right for them to attack, retreat, or distort, but when the opponent follows suit it becomes unfair."

Of course, if the 13 dismissals at Fresno State College are reprisals for politicizing the classrooms, it must follow that the college has a 100 per cent record of never hiring an incompetent teacher

Bales Selected President Of Peace Officers

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales yesterday was elected president of the Marin County Peace Officers Association, succeeding Mel L Morse, executive manager of the Marin County Humane Society

Lt. Maurice D. Lafferty of Novato police was elected first vice president, Sgt. Stanley Laffsa of San Quentin Prison second vice president, and Morse, treasurer. Arthur H. Fellows, retired San Rafael police sergeant, was re-elected secretary.

Thomas J. Cahill, chief of security for Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co and former San Francisco police chief, was speaker at the luncheon meeting at the San Rafael Elks Club

First Session On Joint Fire District

A study committee will meet tomorrow in Mill Valley to take the first steps in forming a consolidated Southern Marin fire district.

Attending the public session, to be held at 8 p.m. at city hall, will be representatives of the county of Marin, the cities of Mill Valley, Belvedere and Sausalito and the Alto-Richardson Bay, Tiburon and Tamalpais fire districts.

Carl O. Modell, member of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District board and chairman pro tem of the consolidation committee, said the group will discuss possible boundaries of the combined district — which agencies want to participate and which don't — and the difficulties involved.

These problems include combining various pension plans, pay scales, work weeks, bonded endebtedness and fringe benefits of the fire departments, the number and location of fire stations and establishing uniform protection for the district

Its benefits, Modell said, would be a large tax base (about $150 million), better service and greater ease in purchasing new equipment.

For example, he said taxpayers in the Tamalpais district would have to pay about 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation for a $60,000 fire truck, while the same vehicle could be purchased for only 2 cents per $100 in the combined district.

Once tentative boundaries have been drawn up, the plan would be submitted to the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The Southern Marin consolidation talks are being held despite a decision by the board of supervisors last Tuesday to consider at budget time next year whether to hire an outside consultant to study merger of all county fire districts. This move was suggested in October by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association.

County Administrator Alan Bruce said that possible county-wide consolidation resulting from the study is years off, and should not preclude a less ambitious merger in Southern Marin.

Chief Charles E. Masten of the Sausalito Fire Department said he hopes the committee will follow the county's lead and hire an outside consultant to make a study. He called the consolidation "enormously complicated."

The U.S. population in 1930 was 122,775,046.

Terminal Discussion On Dec. 15

The hot issue of where to put the Central Marin terminal for the Golden Gate Bridge District's $15.3 million ferry system will be considered by the district's transportation committee at 8 p.m. on Dec. 15 at San Rafael High School.

The combatants in the controversy are the municipalities of Larkspur and Corte Madera and the Marin Conservation League.

Each municipality wants the terminal in its jurisdiction — a facility that would enhance the value of adjacent lands and trigger other development.

The conservation organization, however, wants the terminal to go on San Quentin Point on the ground that this site would preserve valuable marshland at the mouth of Corte Madera creek.

Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, chairman of the committee, said the hearing was to permit all three to make full presentations of their arguments. The committee will not make a recommendation that night, he said.

THANKS TO OUR BORROWERS...

AND A LITTLE PRESENT, AS WELL.

During the recent unpleasant credit squeeze we had to work hard to get money to take care of your loans. We could not meet all loan requests. We had to raise interest rates, particularly on business loans, because the cost of our money was high. We tried to take care of everyone's real needs. We kept our rate increases as low as possible for consumers and home buyers.

We appreciate your patience and understanding during that period and are now in a position to reciprocate. We're doing it with lower rates which are now effective on business loans, consumer loans and real estate loans.

We now have money to lend.

Cost of Murder Trial: 33 Cents on Tax Rate

What does it cost to try a murder case?

For the taxpayers of Lassen County, it will cost 33 cents on the tax rate this year — maybe more

What bothers the Lassen residents most is that the case already has been tried and paid for once

The trial that added 33 cents to the tax rate won't even be held in Lassen County. It will be in Eureka Humboldt County But Lassen taxpayers must pay for it

The case makes plain the little recognized cost impact of the legal process

IN AUGUST, 1967, Jesse Levoy DeForest and his wife Mary Jeanette were found slain in their ranch home outside of Susanville, the Lassen County seat, and Keith E. Utterback of Hoopa, Humboldt County was found murdered near Bogard in Lassen National Forest All three had been stabbed and shot. Sheriff's investigators concluded they were the work of the same killer or killers

About a month after the killings William Tidwell, then 21 and recently discharged from the Army, and his brother Robert, then 19, were arrested in Redding. Possessions of the DeForests and Utterback were found in the Tidwells' home

The two Tidwells were tried separately before Judge Stanley Arnold in Lassen County Superior Court James Pardee, court-appointed attorney for William Tidwell, twice moved for a change of venue Twice it was denied by Judge Arnold

Both youths were convicted and sentenced to death They were received on San Quentin Prison's Death Row on Feb 5, 1968

ATTORNEY PARDEE appealed on the basis that a change of venue should have been granted to assure a fair trial He had 500 Lassen County citizens interviewed. All but five of them had heard the case discussed, he reported, all but 13 had heard or seen radio and television reports, all but 31 had discussed the case with friends And, he said, "the vast majority of the persons interviewed were of the opinion that they would be unable to set aside the views they held and try the case fairly on the basis of the evidence in court

This insisted attorney Pardee, proved the Tidwells could not have had fair trials in Lassen County

The California Supreme Court in August of this year agreed, by 6-to-2, and ordered the pair remanded for retrial in a different jurisdiction On Oct 29, the Tidwells were returned to the Lassen County Jail at Susanville to await the Eureka trial

THE CASE ILLUSTRATES two things The lengths to which the oft-berated "system" will go to assure fair trial for those accused of crime, and the cost this may impose on the taxpayers

In a large county, the cost of a murder trial is submerged among the many millions of county expense In a county the size of Lassen (assessed valuation, $35.6 million) it is all too evident

The Lassen County Board of Supervisors added 33 cents to the tax rate to pay for the new trial — hoping that will be enough. It may not be Expenses may have to be cut elsewhere to assure the brothers Tidwell their second trial by a presumably less prejudiced jury in Eureka

The bird books tell us that the black-crested stellar jay prefers the tall coniferous forests where he can fly from tree-top to tree-top while calling in a crow-like voice, while the smooth-pated California jay favors the live oaks of the coastal region with their acorns to supplement his diet

In Marin and Sonoma and in most of the Northern California coast counties, we have the remains of both kinds of forests. And we have an abundance of both kinds of these highly adaptable, very vocal birds.

Apart from shouting at each other, they seem to get on all right together We often see them sharing seats on the same fence

For birds so willing to quarrel with any creature, this is an accomplishment

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Law Virtually Mandates State To Raise Its Employees' Pay

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS — The wisdom of "freezing" state salaries is open to question as the state goes forward on short rations for the approaching fiscal year

The state personnel board which in view of the delicate fiscal situation probably would have liked to skip recommending pay increases this year nevertheless was virtually forced to recommend more than $100 million for the 1971-72 fiscal year

Commenting on the recommendation, the board said

The board is aware of the current depressed economy of the state, increased unemployment, and revenue problems

Nonetheless the board has a legal obligation to report the facts concerning salaries and fringe-benefits as accurately and objectively as possible

And in the reporting, the board recommended that $60 million from the general fund and $43 million from special and other funds be appropriated for salary increases for state civil service employees next fiscal year

OF COURSE, the board's recommendation is not final Both the legislature and the governor may veto the recommendation but the board's guidelines will be given plenty of consideration, as well they might be, as the board spends many thousands of dollars maintaining statistical data to prove to the legislature it is carrying out the mandate in the law

This mandate requires that the salary raise "shall be based on the principle that like salaries shall be paid for comparable duties and responsibilities. In establishing or changing such ranges, consideration shall be given to the prevailing rates for comparable service in other public employment and in private business."

Thus, the state could not, even if it wanted to, avoid increasing taxes every year to pick up the tab for the state employees' pay increase.

So, because of a virtual freeze" in the law, which comes close to requiring the state to increase salaries regardless of the economic situation, taxpayers are to be hard hit in a time of economic stress.

IN ADDITION, the personnel board expands on its recommendation for state employee benefits

The board, in addition to $100 million in salary raises, suggests that now is the time to add unemployment insurance benefits to the fringe benefits for state employees

More than 30 years have elapsed since this proposal was first advanced, and it has been only lately that it has been taken seriously Originally, the idea was that the state employees received sufficient holidays and other benefits to offset a demand for unemployment insurance.

But with the avid demands on government for more and more

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Source Of Illegal Apartment Figure

In recent letters to the editor, at recent city council meetings and in your editorial of Nov. 30, I have been quoted as having said that there are 150 to 200 illegal second units in single family zones in the City of San Anselmo. The public should be made aware that I did not make such a statement and that I have no idea how many illegal uses might exist in San Anselmo.

I believe that the misunderstanding is a result of your report of the meeting of the San Anselmo City Council of Sept. 8, 1970 which appeared in the Independent-Journal on Sept. 9. Your report stated, "Charles R. Leitzell, the city's public works director, told the council there are about 150 to 200 such illegal uses in the city and that they would be brought to the council's attention as the city discovered them."

What I actually said was in response to a question by Councilman (Woodrow V.) Capurro asking me how many non-conforming uses were in San Anselmo. I replied, " 100 to 200, I believe, and, of course, we show these as non-conforming uses, some are not, some are illegal uses the law, the zoning law, did allow the non-conforming uses to remain as long as they remained in continuous use."

Normally I would not request a correction but the I-J story has been so frequently quoted that I feel it is in the public interest to correct the reported statement.

If This Is Sport, Give Us Soap Opera

A bouquet to the I-J editor for his timely review of the ABC Monday night football game of Nov. 30 between the Miami Dolphins and the Atlanta Falcons.

The ABC executive responsible for this perpetration of calculated boredom should be presented the "Heidi" award for the year's biggest sports goof.

So compelling was the "drama" of this spectacular that I literally fell asleep somewhere during the first quarter about the time Chevrolet scored on Gillette. When a football addict can't handle a bummer like this one without therapy, pity the poor suffering females stuck with three hours of this agony.

I apologize to the ladies for all those nasty things said about soap operas. Bring back "Peyton Place"

Questions Raised About Our Schools

The following questions need to be considered and resolved:

1. When will our school board members awaken to the fact that the continuous failure of bond and tax elections is the only means left to irate citizens of expressing their disapproval of spineless board members, incompetent administrators, untrustworthy teachers, and unruly students?

2. When will the San Rafael board members dismiss some "undesirable characters" who are teaching at San Rafael High School and who will receive tenure unless gotten rid of now? And who recommended these "characters" in the first place? . . .

3. Why haven't the San Rafael school board members insisted on rigid student and teacher discipline, and proper patrolling by deans, to put a stop to this endless bodily violence, making it unsafe for a girl to walk the halls and to the bathroom? . . .

4. When will the San Rafael board acknowledge its negligence in permitting this cancerous condition to develop beyond administrative control? . . .

5. Since when is it "wrong" for students to meet at noon voluntarily to share their faith with pot addicts and problem kids who have "hang-ups" which only Christian love and concern can solve, as expressed by the Christian kids on campus?

6. Why has the College of Marin Board committed racial discrimination in permitting a "Black Room" on campus, where white students, teachers, and even the police are not permitted, and are afraid to enter?

When these questions are satisfactorily resolved, confidence in our school system will be restored.

Another Side To Salary Issue

The Nov. 17 editorial in the Independent-Journal reflected your concern that public officials in the Dixie School District should keep their word to the electorate by not granting pay not been considered by your newspaper.

The Dixie Teachers Association has recently asked for an 11.8 per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1, 1970. This increase would bring the salary schedule up to the median standard for bay area school districts for last school year.

The teachers did not ask for a raise last April at the customary time for negotiating salary increases because the Dixie district was in financial trouble. We did not intend to ask for a raise unless additional state funds were allocated to the district. We were assured by Dr. Clifford Campbell, district superintendent, in a letter attached to our contracts, that should additional state money be allocated to the district salary increases would be considered.

Since that time, $379,000 in additional funds have been allocated to the district by the state. The board of trustees has budgeted the additional funds to strengthen reserves and reduce the tax rate. No funds have been allocated to increase teacher salaries.

When additional money became available from state sources beyond that needed to sustain the current operating budget, the tax rate was reduced, the reserve fund increased, but the Dixie teachers, who are paid less than most other Marin County teachers, were told to tighten their belts. The low priority given to teacher needs cannot help but affect our morale and effectiveness as teachers.

2. To the "Marin Poets' Corner" editor for giving us a poem by Lori Petri, a longtime favorite. We have another poet of major stature in the county — Elsa Gitlow of Mill Valley — maybe we can have a poem by her sometime.

3. To editor (Jack) Craemer for his column — a little time for football. I don't watch football, but I keep a book handy and read during commercials. I have just completed Speer's "Inside the Third Reich," 573 pp., all on commercial message time.

THE DRUMMONDS

Nixon Moving To Save Economy — And His Own Political Career

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The upcoming 1972 election seems likely to save the United States from economic calamity.

President Nixon is substantially altering his anti-inflation game plan. Politics is one of the reasons.

He is moving decisively away from economic restraint to economic stimulus. His goal: full employment in 1972.

He is combining political necessity — for his own re-election — with economic good sense.

HIS ACTIONS come none too soon.

If President Nixon did not begin to move now to bring about an early reduction in unemployment, the economy would remain dangerously sluggish and the prospects of his re-election would be in peril — or worse.

Mr. Nixon has made no secret of the fact that the "economic drag" hurt his party more than anything else in the November elections. His intention is to turn this political liability into a political asset for 1972.

The most significant fact to emerge from his address to the National Association of Manufacturers last week is the extent to which liberal Democratic economic policy and conservative administration economic policy are coming together on what needs to be done.

The President is now beginning to do it.

THE NATION seems to have lost its bipartisan foreign policy, but it is acquiring a bipartisan economic policy.

Compare what the liberal economics, like Walter H. Heller of the University of Minnesota, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers under both Kennedy and Johnson, have been urging the administration to do with what Mr. Nixon now says he is going to do. The areas of agreement are large and the differences hardly visible.

They are agreed that the federal budget should be expansionist and therefore in deficit for a period. That is being done.

They are agreed that the federal budget should be planned to be in balance at "full employment." That is being done.

They are agreed that the money supply available to the economy should be increased. It is.

They are agreed that interest rates should come down. They are.

They are agreed that the President must take a tougher, more activist role to achieve wage-price restraints by both management and labor. His NAM speech showed he is doing that — call it jawboning or not.

TO UNDERLINE that he was speaking for both the administration and the Federal Reserve Board, the President put this significant statement in his NAM speech: "I have been assured by Dr. Burns (head of the Federal Reserve) that the Federal Reserve System will provide fully for the increasing monetary needs of the economy."

He added: "I am confident this commitment will be kept." Burns had been shown this paragraph and approved it.

Obviously the President is not openly saying that he is significantly changing his economic game plan at half-time. Presidents don't do it that way. When F.D.R. was preparing his reelection campaign in 1936, he asked his closest adviser, Judge Samuel Rosenman, how he could get around his 1932 statement that he would balance the federal budget by a 15 per cent cut in spending. After pondering for a week, Rosenman replied: "Deny you ever made it."

President Nixon is understandably putting it this way: "Even before the results of our anti-inflationary actions became fully apparent, our plan called for moving the economy up toward its full growth potential in a way that would not bring about a new round of inflation."

NO ONE CAN fairly say that this part of the game plan was never in the back of someone's mind in the White House, but it was not on the public record. No matter. A change is needed. The President is making it.

He is acting just in time both for the nation's economic recovery and his own political survival.

'System' Reform Falls Short When Good Will Lacking

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — We hoary upholders of "the System" looked pretty silly the other day after the House Rules Committee got through with the bill to create an independent consuemr protection agency. On the surface, it was the best / worst example in recent memory of what's wrong with the existing version of the democratic process.

The bill that was defeated, or some version of it, is urgently needed to give the consumer at large a voice in the federal government independent of the existing cabinet agencies and the ostensibly regulatory agencies. They have evolved into a cozy client relationship with the industries they are supposed to regulate.

But whether you are for it or against it, its passage clearly was the will of Congress. The Senate passed such a bill 74-4. The House Government Operations Committee cleared it 31-4. But when it reached the Rules Committee it hung up on a 7-7 tie vote; thus it will not reach the floor in this Congress.

Next year, its advocates will have to start all over.

THE FACT that such a thwarting of majority wishes is possible provokes another shriek for reform of the rules of Congress, particularly those of the House. This year, for the first time in 24 years, a few important legislative reforms were enacted — although none of them dealt with the death grip the Rules Committee still holds on lawmaking.

During the long, mostly cut-and-dried debate over House reforms, nobody ever held out serious hope that the seniority system of committee chairmanships would be affected, for example. Had it been changed, Rep. William Colmer, D-Miss., would still be chairman of the Rules Committee for the time being, but his reign would be limited.

Colmer, who does not list his birthdate in his biography in the Congressional Directory, is 80. The next two Democrats on Rules are 78 and 69 years old.

SINCE EFFORTS to legislate changes in the seniority rule fell through, caucuses on both sides of the House have moved toward party positions of moderate reform next time the issue arises.

The Republicans, who as the minority have nothing to lose in chairmanships any time soon, have agreed that election of House chairman should be subject to secret ballot on demand of any member. The Democrats have moved tentatively that way and made soft noises about putting an age limit of 70 on any incoming chairmen.

If either of these changes already had been in effect when the consumer agency bill reached the Rules Committee, the outcome likely would have been different.

In fact, however, the bill could have been cleared for the floor this year if the leaders of the House had exerted their muscle, despite Colmer's personal opposition.

NOT ONLY the conservative chairman but two other Democrats voted against clearing the bill. And another, who has aspired to the House speaker's chair, the majority leader position and the Rules chairmanship at various times, did not bother to break his vacation to come back to Washington to vote.

It was that strange refusal by Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo,, that was the key to the bill's defeat. Bolling was vacationing in the West Indies. When the head count in the committee came down to a likely tie, the bill's sponsors put out emergency calls to bring Bolling back. The Motorola Corp., one of the few big-business backers of the bill, offered to send its plane down to fly him to Washington. But he declined and the bill died.

What is proved by analyzing the consumer agency bill's defeat is that it was not "the System," archaic as it is, that buried a measure with such wide approval among the membership of both houses. It was the human element — lack of adequate leadership, lack of dedication by members in critical spots. Even a reformed congressional system cannot function in

IN THE DUMMY

Declarer took the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts and drew two rounds of trumps, discovering that West couldn't follow suit South continued with two more rounds of trumps, and West discarded clubs

Now South had to give up three diamonds to set up his last diamond. When South gave up the first diamond, the opponents returned a heart, forcing declarer to use up his fifth trump. When South gave up the second diamond, the defenders led another heart, forcing South to use up his last trump.

South had reached the end of his rope. When he gave up the third diamond, South could not stop West from taking the setting trick with a heart.

NOTHING TO PROTECT

The point of drawing trumps is to protect your side winners from a ruff by an opponent Since declarer had no side winners to protect he had no reason to draw trumps so early in the play

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, declarer should immediately give up a diamond. Back comes a heart, and South ruffs.

FORCES A RUFF

South gives up a second diamond and is forced to ruff a third round of hearts. But then South gives up a third diamond and is safe against a heart continuation because dummy is out of hearts and can ruff. It is for just this reason that the trumps are left in dummy

South is enabled to keep four of his trumps and can therefore draw trumps no matter what West returns. He can then cash his side winners in safety

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By JEFF GREER

Early Snow Catches Ski-Buffs Without Their Pre-Conditioning

It's easy to believe predictions that Marin's in for a long, rough winter The late November storms were the kind that usually don't arrive until very late in December or more likely in Januray and February

For some strange reason, the motorists didn't seem psychologically ready for the early onslaught of winter Accidents and near-accidents soared

Even the ski buffs seemed to have been caught unprepared The really serious ones annually put themselves through a cumulative series of athletic tortures to get themselves in shape for the hazards of the slopes. On the theory, I guess, that they'll break fewer bones when they take a tumble

So now a bunch of snow addicts are suffering aches and pains from trying to speed up their conditioning too fast.

TURNING FROM the mountains to San Francisco Bay, it's possible the Marin Conservation League has some good points in its proposal to put a Central Marin ferry terminal at Point San Quentin rather than on Corte Madera Creek.

Neither Larkspur nor Corte Madera city fathers can be very happy over the idea, but the league points out that the state owns 500 acres of already filled or diked land there. If the terminal were on the point, ferryboats would not have to navigate nearly two miles of dreaded channel, with its fog hazards, nor would their wakes pound against neighboring marshlands

The boats could move faster — about 20 minutes per round trip, the league contends.

AND NOW LET US tell the inside tale of downtown Larkspur's wondrous health food store sign.

The sign glows in many colors on the store at 460 Magnolia Avenue where Chris Rosenfeld purveys his natural products. The same "Dickens" who created the glittering mural that adorns the city's building in the park at the foot of Madrone Avenue, painted the shop sign.

John W Appleton, superintendent of city planning and building, put the sign on the carpet at a meeting of the city planning commission the other night

Appleton said the original sign permit called for black lettering on a white sign. He shunned making a recommendation, merely passing among the commissioners a color photo that barely captured the sign's hues

Rosenfeld said his fellow downtown merchants think the sign "brightens up" the area

"Is it lighted?" asked Commissioner Joseph N. Picetti

"No, it glows in the dark," said chairman Robert H Lee, laughing.

"It's been suggested I put black light on it," said the serious, polite young Rosenfeld.

The commissioners thanked Rosenfeld for waiting patiently more than three hours for his hearing. Then they unanimously voted to let the sign remain

First Session On Joint Fire District

A study committee will meet tomorrow in Mill Valley to take the first steps in forming a consolidated Southern Marin fire district.

Attending the public session, to be held at 8 p.m. at city hall, will be representatives of the county of Marin, the cities of Mill Valley, Belvedere and Sausalito and the Alto-Richardson Bay, Tiburon and Tamalpais fire districts.

Carl O. Modell, member of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District board and chairman pro tem of the consolidation committee, said the group will discuss possible boundaries of the combined district — which agencies want to participate and which don't — and the difficulties involved.

These problems include combining various pension plans, pay scales, work weeks, bonded endebtedness and fringe benefits of the fire departments, the number and location of fire stations and establishing uniform protection for the district

Its benefits, Modell said, would be a large tax base (about $150 million), better service and greater ease in purchasing new equipment.

For example, he said taxpayers in the Tamalpais district would have to pay about 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation for a $60,000 fire truck, while the same vehicle could be purchased for only 2 cents per $100 in the combined district.

Once tentative boundaries have been drawn up, the plan would be submitted to the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The Southern Marin consolidation talks are being held despite a decision by the board of supervisors last Tuesday to consider at budget time next year whether to hire an outside consultant to study merger of all county fire districts. This move was suggested in October by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association.

County Administrator Alan Bruce said that possible countywide consolidation resulting from the study is years off, and should not preclude a less ambitious merger in Southern Marin.

Chief Charles E. Masten of the Sausalito Fire Department said he hopes the committee will follow the county's lead and hire an outside consultant to make a study. He called the consolidation "enormously complicated."

The U.S. population in 1930 was 122,775,046.

Terminal Discussion On Dec. 15

The hot issue of where to put the Central Marin terminal for the Golden Gate Bridge District's $15.3 million ferry system will be considered by the district's transportation committee at 8 p.m. on Dec. 15 at San Rafael High School.

The combatants in the controversy are the municipalities of Larkspur and Corte Madera and the Marin Conservation League.

Each municipality wants the terminal in its jurisdiction — a facility that would enhance the value of adjacent lands and trigger other development.

The conservation organization, however, wants the terminal to go on San Quentin Point on the ground that this site would preserve valuable marshland at the mouth of Corte Madera creek.

Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, chairman of the committee, said the hearing was to permit all three to make full presentations of their arguments. The committee will not make a recommendation that night, he said.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

If Dismissals Are Purge, Hiring Practice Is Perfect

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The fat was in the fire this week at Fresno State College because 13 faculty members were denied tenure or new contracts and two administrators were demoted.

Two hundred and seventy of the college's faculty are teaching this year on probationary contracts Of these, 73 were up for tenure Once it is granted, the instructor has a lifetime job.

Of the 73, all but six were granted tenure Of the other 197 on probationary status, all but seven were offered contracts for next year

THIS SOUNDS as though Fresno State College has been doing a great job in picking faculty. Only 3.5 per cent of its probationary teachers not eligible for tenure have been found wanting Only 8.2 per cent of those eligible to receive tenure will be denied it

(It should be born in mind that at the state colleges and university, tenure does not come automatically but is determined by faculty committees and the administration. In California's junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools, it is automatic.)

In most fields, a personnel department would receive high praise if more than 90 per cent of its hirees proved good enough to keep permanently. It is different, however, in the education field Refusal to hire or give tenure to 13 faculty members at Fresno State has been branded a "political purge."

THERE HAD BEEN rumblings of such a purge when it was disclosed over a month ago that one dean and two instructors had been notified they would be rehired for a fifth year without being granted tenure (which customarily comes at that point), and that five others had been notified they would not be rehired. (These presumably are among the 13 announced this week.)

"I am part of a political purge that is ruthless in the sense that it is willing to sacrifice academic excellence for political goals," said dismissed Everett Frost, assistant professor of English, on Nov. 2

Ralph C Rea, acting dean of the college's school of humanities, said at that time that two philosophy teachers would be let go because of overstaffing in the department. To this, James Smith, department chairman, commented; "To our knowledge this is the first time anyone has been terminated because of overstaffing."

If Professor Smith is correct, it would seem the college not only does a remarkable job of hiring competent personnel, but an even more remarkable job of predicting class loads. With the student interests and areas of emphasis, it appears little short of miraculous that no department ever got overstaffed until this year

This week, nothing was said about overstaffing. But four of the discharged (as of next June) faculty members joined in branding their dismissals "a political purge."

SUPPOSE THEY are correct.

Last May, Fresno State was wracked by rioting, during which a school official was held hostage in a college building by militants protesting the U.S. invasion of Cambodia. Faculty members — at least one of whom is among the 13 being "purged" — participated in the uprising.

After similar dismissals last academic year at San Francisco State College, there were the same cries of "political purge." An editorial in the Phoenix, student newspaper, at that time called attention that the protesting faculty members had been active in disrupting the campus, and commented:

"Those who live by politics can starve by politics.

"If you play the game, you have to be willing to accept the penalties involved. If you don't like the rules, don't play.

"The teachers involved seem to have a one-sided approach to the political chess tournament on this campus, a convoluted logic that makes it all right for them to attack, retreat, or distort, but when the opponent follows suit it becomes unfair."

Of course, if the 13 dismissals at Fresno State College are reprisals for politicizing the classrooms, it must follow that the college has a 100 per cent record of never hiring an incompetent teacher

AND A LITTLE PRESENT, AS WELL.

During the recent unpleasant credit squeeze we had to work hard to get money to take care of your loans. We could not meet all loan requests. We had to raise interest rates, particularly on business loans, because the cost of our money was high. We tried to take care of everyone's real needs. We kept our rate increases as low as possible for consumers and home buyers.

We appreciate your patience and understanding during that period and are now in a position to reciprocate. We're doing it with lower rates which are now effective on business loans, consumer loans and real estate loans.

We now have money to lend.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Very Few Take The Trouble To Look Ahead During Game

In some bridge hands you can plan ahead very easily You know exactly which tricks you must lose and you also know exactly what the opponents are going to do whenever they gain the lead. Nevertheless, few bridge players will take the trouble to look ahead Perhaps most of us would rather not know what is going to happen to us

Opening lead — K

IN THE DUMMY

Declarer took the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts and drew two rounds of trumps, discovering that West couldn't follow suit South continued with two more rounds of trumps, and West discarded clubs.

Now South had to give up three diamonds to set up his last diamond. When South gave up the first diamond, the opponents returned a heart, forcing declarer to use up his fifth trump. When South gave up the second diamond, the defenders led another heart, forcing South to use up his last trump.

South had reached the end of his rope. When he gave up the third diamond, South could not stop West from taking the setting trick with a heart.

NOTHING TO PROTECT

The point of drawing trumps is to protect your side winners from a ruff by an opponent Since declarer had no side winners to protect he had no reason to draw trumps so early in the play

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, declarer should immediately give up a diamond. Back comes a heart, and South ruffs.

FORCES A RUFF

South gives up a second diamond and is forced to ruff a third round of hearts. But then South gives up a third diamond and is safe against a heart continuation because dummy is out of hearts and can ruff It is for just this reason that the trumps are left in dummy

South is enabled to keep four of his trumps and can therefore draw trumps no matter what West returns. He can then cash his side winners in safety

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

The conservative course is to pass, but you will seldom get into much trouble when you raise partner's major suit with four-card trump support.

Youthful Burglary Rings Hit

By MARY LEYDECKER

Love of intrigue and a desire to feel important were apparently the motives for two teen-age burglary gangs responsible for innumerable burglaries in the Terra Linda and Santa Venetia areas, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

The first group, involving mostly 13 and 14-year-old girls, has been operating during school hours near Terra Linda High School, sheriff's deputy Jeanette Prandi said.

The second group involves boys from Santa Venetia, who have primarily stolen guns, her husband, Inspector Charles Prandi explained.

Seven youngsters have already been cited to juvenile probation officers and more citations are expected, the officers said.

Those named as involved in the Terra Linda group are Karen Silvestri, 14, of 81 Esmeyer Drive, San Rafael; Deborah Talamantez, 15, of 905 Adrian Way, Santa Venetia; Toni Deem, 13, of 814 Hacienda Way, Santa Venetia; Debbie Takahashi, 14, of 613 Montecillo Road, Terra Linda, and Ronald Dunford, 17, of 35 Drakewood Lane, Novato.

Cited in connection with the Santa Venetia burglaries were John Grupe, 13, of 7 Adrian Way, and John Nelson, 14, of 615 Rosal Way. At least one other boy is believed involved with them.

Another youth, Charles Rooney, 17, of 303 Las Flores Avenue, Rafael Meadows, was cited for concealing stolen property after he was found wearing a stolen gun.

The investigation started about three weeks ago, officers said, when young Grupe sold 11 guns to a family in Santa Venetia. Although the weapons were worth about $100 each, Prandi said, the boy sold the lot for $65.

Then came a report from a fellow student that Grupe was wearing a gun in his belt when he arrived at San Rafael High School.

Grupe, along with Nelson and at least one other youth, have been linked now to two burglaries in Santa Venetia, one at Grupe's own home where he took 10 guns, and one in the San Rafael area, the officers said.

Except for the guns, other stolen property including cameras and jewelry has been recovered, Prandi said.

After two girls attempted to burglarize the Grupe home and were recognized, the officers began to learn of the Terra Linda High group, they said.

Mrs. Prandi said that one of the girl burglars also attempted to make a deal with the daughter of another victim and return stolen property to her.

These girls along with the Novato youth had been cutting school and also going out at lunch hour to burglarize homes

New York Hearing On Angela Plea

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — Extradition to Marin County of black militant leader Angela Y. Davis has been postponed until a full hearing tomorrow before the five-man Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court.

(The supreme court in New York is comparable to a California superior court.)

State Supreme Court Judge Arthur Markewich agreed yesterday to the full hearing requested by Miss Davis's attorney, John J. Abt.

Abt is seeking a permanent extradition stay until Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's extraditional approval can be challenged in the courts.

The hearing tomorrow is expected to last possibly two or more days, and if the five judges do not approve extradition after the hearing but grant additional appeal time, the extradition could be delayed until next spring.

Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said today that New York officials told him that it could be next May before Miss Davis is returned to Marin.

Since Bales's withdrawal yesterday from the case because of his friendship with slain Judge Joseph J. Haley and wounded Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, the prosecution will be handled by the California Attorney General's office.)

Miss Davis's lawyer claims that the 26-year-old former University of California at Los Angeles instructor is being denied her constitutional rights by the indictment which has charged her with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy.

The indictment accuses Miss Davis of having furnished the guns for the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Hall of Justice as well as conspiring to commit the crime. The indictment also places her at the Hall of Justice the day before the shoot-out.

House Acts To Bar U.S. Rail Walkout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Commerce Committee swiftly approved today emergency legislation to bar a railway strike at midnight which an administration spokesman warned would create a "state of national emergency."

The bill, cleared by the House group by a 19-14 vote, would prohibit any strike until March 1. The committee also voted down a proposal by rail union leaders that a retroactive temporary pay increase be included in the measure.

The bill, which union leaders have said they would defy, was slated for immediate House action later in the day. The Senate Labor Committee opened hearings on the legislation even as the House group acted.

Enactment of the antistrike proposal urged by President Nixon would not avert the prospect of a strike. Leaders have asserted that members of the four rail unions involved would leave their jobs at midnight tonight even if it meant punitive action.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said: "A strike would have a devasting effect on the economy and the transporting of goods throughout the country. "Our interest and I assume the interest of Congress is to take steps to assure there will not be a rail strike."

A member of the House committee predicted the legislation would fail to head off a crippling strike.

Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., told newsmen: "I think we have voted for a strike. They're just giving everything to management. They're not going to negotiate."

The move to give the 500,000 railworkers a temporary 13.5 per cent pay hike because of the enforced strike delay was defeated in the House committee, 16 to 14.

Committee Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., said he would sponsor the pay increase amendment when the bill comes up on the floor.

"Without any compensation, any recognition, we're taking rights away from the working man and that is just not right," he commented.

In another move, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird told newsmen that the military was prepared to run the railroads if need be. He said emergency contingency plans had been made "but we won't come to that."

Servicemen, reservists and national guardsmen were used last spring during the strike of government postal workers.

The warning of the paralyzing impact of a strike came from Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson who told the Senate committee:

"Further time is needed. Such a strike, during the height of the present holiday season, would so disrupt the nation's mails and transportation of

EMBARGO ON CERTAIN MAIL IS SET

An embargo on all second, third and fourth class mail, effective 4 p.m. today has been ordered by the U.S. Post Office in preparation for the threatened nationwide railroad strike.

San Rafael Postmaster Hugh Cassidy said that the embargo will apply to all such mail addressed for delivery beyond the third parcel post zone, roughly 300 miles.

Second class includes newspapers, third includes advertising and printed matter, and fourth is parcel post — packages, most of them Christmas gifts at this time of year.

A Reversal: Jones Wants Sonoma Job

Acting Sonoma State College President Earl W. Jones has reversed himself and said he would like to be considered for the post of permanent president.

On Sept. 21, after only a few months as acting president, Jones said he would not be a candidate and cited personal and professional reasons.

"On Nov. 2, I informed the chancellor (Glenn S. Dumke) that I had reassessed the Sept. 21 statement . . . and if he and the trustees hadn't found someone they like better, I was willing to be reconsidered . . .," Jones said today.

Jones said he has become more comfortable in the presidency in the past few months, but that the final decision took great consideration.

It is expected that the state College Board of Trustees will consider Jones and other candidates for the appointment at its meeting next month.

A campus presidential selection committee and a committee established by Chancellor Dumke have submitted recommendations to trustees.

Committee Votes For SSS Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Finance Committee voted today to boost Social Security taxes by $2.5 billion next year and by additional billions in future years to pay for one of the biggest increases in benefits in history.

Then by a 12-5 vote the committee submitted to the Senate for debate next week a catchall bill which also would impose trade restrictions, change the nation's welfare laws, and introduce a new government health insurance program for people facing "catastrophic" medical expenses.

Novato Sewer Bond Proposal Is Passed

Overwhelming Majority On $5.5 Million Issue

Novato Sanitary District voters yesterday passed a $5.5 million bond measure to finance sewer improvements by a wide margin: a 72.4 per cent favorable vote.

The unofficial count was 2,371 yes votes and 905 no votes, beyond the required two-thirds margin.

There was a 25.4 per cent turnout of the district's 12,899 registered voters, and the measure received the needed two-thirds or better majority in eight of the 11 polling places.

The district is under orders from the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board to improve its system plans to finance the improvements from bond sales.

The bond funds will finance improvements to the Novato and Ignacio treatment plants and construction of a trunk line with an outfall into San Pablo Bay, estimated to cost $3,625,000.

They also will finance an improvement of the upstream system over a 10-year period, estimated to cost $1,425,000.

The favorable vote made the district eligible for state and federal funds, which, if granted, could cut the district's outlay to $2.6 million.

Before the election district directors pledged they would sell only the amount of bonds needed to finance planned improvements.

Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph viewed the favorable vote as "an expression of people's concern about environmental problems and shows they place this high on the priority list."

Engineering work for the treatment plant and disposal system is expected to be completed in mid-March and contracts expected to be awarded in Aguust, he said.

The regional board has set a deadline of October, 1972, for completion of these improvements.

The vote count by polling places was Olive School, 144 yes to 58 no; Novato Community House, 153 to 83; Marion School, 245 to 109; All Saints Church, 283 to 83; Pleasant Valley School 203 to 73; Sinaloa Junior High School, 158 to 58; Hill Junior High School, 183 to 79; Novato High School 297 to 95 Lynwood School, 179 to 94; Pacheco School, 145 to 101 and Church in Ignacio, 336 to 64.

Jury Sentences Thurber To Life

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A superior court jury, after five minutes deliberation today, sentenced Frank J. Thurber to life imprisonment.

The prosecution had sought the death penalty.

The jury of eight women and four men last Thursday found Thurber guilty of first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly.

Thurber's attorney, Nathan Cohn, today presented six witnesses; two to continue his unsuccessful contention that Thurber was innocent, two to testify to Thurber's character of prosecution witnesses.

In addition to the murder conviction, Thurber, 45-year-old member of San Francisco-Oakland Mailers Union, was found guilty Thursday of conspiracy, first degree robbery and first degree burglary.

His union is an affiliate of San Francisco Typographical Union 21 which struck the I-J Jan. 7.

Daly, an I-J computer specialist, was shot in his San Francisco home when two young men invaded it July 4 and demanded money. He died 12 days later.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Pierre F. V. Merle contended that Thurber had recruited the youths to attack Daly, provided them with the .45 caliber murder weapon and took them to and from Daly's home July 4.

In asking for the death penalty today, Merle told the jury that Daly's death was not the product "of simple human fraility or uncontrolled emotion."

It was not, he said, committed "in the heat of passion or with provocation."

"Allan Daly was killed in cold blood," Merle said. "Allan Daly was killed as a result of a conspiracy."

He described the conspiracy as "well calculated, well conceived and well planned."

Although Thurber was not in Daly's home at the time of the shooting, Merle said, "his guilt is not only legally the same as the person who pulled the trigger, but his guilt is morally greater."

Cohn today warned the jurors they would have to live with their penalty decision as he asked them to sentence Thurber to life imprisonment rather than death.

He said the jury had made its guilty verdict on the story of only

Span Transit Plan Ripped As Lure To The Suburbs

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — The Golden Gate Bridge District's long-range plan for rapid transit came under strong fire last night as a magnet that would speed the exodus of San Francisco's white middle class.

Emory Curtis of San Francisco, a member of the citizens panel advising the district on the transit plan, said that the result of the exodus would be "the problems of the city would be out of sight and out of mind" to those who left it. Curtis, a black, envisioned a city that thus would be increasingly poor and black.

His criticism was repeated by several others who spoke at the City Hall hearing on the $690,00 transit plan.

Despite widespread publicity and clear weather, only 37 persons attended the hearing. Fewer than 30 were still present by the end of the two-and-half-hour hearing, the first held in San Francisco on the plan.

The plan, drawn by district consultants, proposed five possible systems, with varying combinations of an underwater tube to Sausalito, a second deck on the bridge for transit and a new bridge extend rail rapid transit from Richmond to San Rafael and Novato.

The price tags varied from $495 million for bus rapid transit to $987 million for rail rapid transit.

Two Riot Counts Are Dismissed

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — Judge William E. Jensen yesterday dismissed two of the misdemeanor charges lodged against two of the seven defendants in the Valentine's Day riot trial.

The judge's action came one day after the defense openedits case in Solano County Superior Court.

The judge, after hearing arguments from both prosecution and defense, threw out a charge of participating in a riot against Nimmes H. Shelton, 41, of San Francisco and of failure to disperse against Alvis D. Bailey, 43, also of San Francisco.

Both Bailey and Shelton, however, are still accused of a variety of charges. Bailey is accused of felony assault of a police officer, participating in an unlawful assembly, remaining at the place of a riot, delaying and obstructing an officer and possession of a blackjack. Shelton remains charged with participating in an unlawful assembly and carrying a blackjack and slingshot.

Judge Jensen ruled the prosecution presented no evidence that Shelton took part in the riotous events of Feb. 14 outside the Independent-Journal, and he said he had concluded Bailey was arrested prior to police orders to a chanting crowd of demonstrators on Julia Street to disperse.

The seven were arrested outside the newspaper during daylong violence which grew out of a rally in support of San Francisco Typographical Union 21. The local has struck the I-J since Jan. 7.

Resumption of testimony in the seven-weeks-old trial was delayed today when attorneys argued in Judge Jensen's chambers over the prosecution's attempts to view potential defense evidence and to obtain names and addresses of prospective defense witnesses.

House Balks On Senate SST Stop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, on a 213 to 174 vote, refused to go along with the Senate's SST ban Tuesday, but left the supersonic transport's fate up to its conferees.

Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., House manager for the $2.6 billion money bill from which the Senate had cut the SST funds said the House-Senate conference would have a difficult time resolving the differences.

The administration has been urging Congress to restore the SST funds, claiming failure to continue development of the 300-passenger, faster-than-sound plane would eventually cost the United States 150,000 jobs.

An administration report was released Tuesday — shortly after the House voted not to go along with the Senate. The report largely supported the Transportation Department's view that while the jet would have problems, the solutions could best be determined by continued research and development.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Teacher Suspended

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—The Broward County School Board has suspended a teacher who believes "there just isn't liberty and justice for all in this country" and therefore refuses to pledge allegiance to the flag.

Students at Henry Perry Junior High noticed that instructor Leroy Bates usually was out of the classroom when the pledge was recited each morning. The students notified their parents. The parents went to the school board, which started an investigation culminating in the teacher's suspension.

Benjamin Willis, chairman of the school board, recommended that Bates be permanetly dismissed for insubordination.

"I resent being coerced into reciting the pledge because I feel very strongly that the words are not true," Bates said Tuesday. "We are not an indivisible country."

Pollution Threat

HONOLULU (UPI)—The famous waters of Waikiki are in danger of becoming so polluted beachgoers could not use them a tourist industry official has warned. "This is the most critical problem Hawaii has faced in years," Robert Rinker, executive vice president of the Hawaii Hotel Association, said Tuesday.

Rinker noted that scientists have found evidence of bacterial pollution along the beach and that signs warning of polluted waters are posted at Keehi Lagoon, one and one-half miles from Waikiki.

Rinker said the pollution warnings at Keehi Lagoon, which is bordered by Honolulu International Airport and an industrial area, bring the Waikiki problem into critical focus.

Student Rebels

MANILA (UPI) —A student strike in 1957 at the University of the Philippines is believed the first of its kind in Asia. It was staged to protest the delay in appointing a president for the government-operated university.

Vietnam Rioting

QUI NHON, Vietnam (UPI)—All Americans from infantrymen to military police were ordered off the streets of this coastal city today in an effort to prevent further rioting by civilians protesting the death of a schoolboy shot by a U.S. soldier.

More than 2,000 civilians, mostly students, marched through the streets Tuesday, stoning Americans and overturning cars and trucks. Two Americans were hospitalized with minor injuries and one vehicle was burned, national police said.

The protests followed the shooting Monday of Nguyen Van Minh, 12, by a GI. Military sources said the soldier had fired a warning shot from his M16 rifle when a group of youngsters tried to steal supplies from a truck.

Socialist Coalition

RAWALPINDI (UPI)—Nearly complete returns from Pakistan's first general election indicated today prospects for a coalition government between two victorious Socialist parties in the world's biggest Moslem nation.

Former Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's People's party in West Pakistan and Sheikh Mujibur Rehman's Awami League in East Pakistan won easy victories in their respective areas for 291 seats in the national assembly.

The assembly will write a new constitution governing both East and West Pakistan, separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory.

Model Farm Plan

MANILA (UPI) —The Philippine and Japanese governments have started a joint farming project in two agricultural areas in the Philippines. It involves establishment of a model farm featuring the Japanese method of farm production, and use of modern equipment and facilities for drying, storage and processing of newly harvested rice crops.

Ransom Note Found

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—A five-page document found in a church poorbox may be the ransom demands for the release of Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher, kidnaped Monday while on his way to the office.

Police kept an official silence on the matter. The Swiss embassy said they were waitifg for police to show them the document, written in French, in the hopes it was done by Bucher himself.

Any demands are expected to be for the release of prisoners, as have been the case with four previous political kidnapings in Brazil.

LSD Charged To Los Siete

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Police Department crime laboratory declared Tuesday that LSD was in 19 capsules found in the possession of two men who had been acquitted of murdering policeman Joseph Brodnik.

Police said Jose Rios, 19, and Nelson Rodriguez, 20, looked suspicious when he arrested them Monday and found marijuana and the capsules in their automobile.

Rios and Rodriguez declared they were "framed" on the drug charges.

The youths were among six Latin-Americans acquitted of shooting to death Brodnik on a San Francisco street.

State To Sell Extra Parcel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state attorney general's office has asked the Sacramento Superior Court to allow the state to sell 230 acres of surplus California Exposition land, even though the deal is tied up in a legal hassle

The petition was filed Monday at the request of the state Department of General Services.

Recently the land was advertised for bid by the state, with the Kaiser-Aetna Corp. submitting the high bid of $7.3 million.

Last Calley Witness Tells Of Refusing Order To Shoot

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—The huge man with the thick black hair, mustache and the very mod double-breasted light tan Victorian suit sat facing the five-foot-three lieutenant with a pinkish face, uptilted snub nose and brown hair balding at the temples.

At issue was the disobeyance of an order on the battlefield.

The big man said the little man ordered him to shoot on a field bereft of battle. The soldiers had closed with the enemy at an earthen ditch three or four feet wide and deep. The time was two years, eight months, three weeks and two days ago.

"Lieutenant Calley ordered you to fire?" asked the prosecutor.

"Yes," said the big man. His name was James Joseph Dursi, 23, an unmarried, electrical manufacturing tool supply keeper from Brooklyn. He sat in the witness chair.

Lt. William Laws Calley Jr., 27, stared at Dursi from the defense counsel table at his murder court-martial, his right hand holding a pencil and resting on a ruled yellow pad.

"Why didn't you go through with it?" continued Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, the prosecutor.

"I couldn't go through with it —these defenseless women and kids," replied Dursi.

JAMES DURSI
Refused to shoot

He said the enemy he was asked to shoot was a screaming, crying group of "at least 15, mostly old men, women and children ranging from babies carried by mothers to 5 or 6-year-olds."

"They were diving on top of each other—some of the mothers trying to protect their children."

"That's all," said Daniel.

It was the close of the government's case—and the Army's trying one of its own—against Calley. A military court could give him death or life imprisonment if it found him guilty of the premeditated murder of 102 civilians in the Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai 4.

The government contends they died of rifle fire by Calley or at the hands of his platoon members at his order. Dursi was the 35th prosecution witness in 12 days of testimony.

Arrives Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year's White House Christmas tree, a 20-foot white spruce from Merrillan, Wis., was to arrive at the executive mansion today.

Nicholas Breakspear, Pope Adrian IV, who served from 1154 to 1159, was the only Englishman to hold this office.

Reds Attack Siem Reap In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian Command said today Viet Cong and North Vietnamese gunners bombarded Siem Reap near the ruins of Angkor Wat in a mortar attack that wounded two Cambodian soldiers.

The town remains in Cambodian hands. The Reds control the 10th Century ruins.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said five Americans were wounded Tuesday when a booby trap exploded in Quang Nam.

President Nguyen Van Thieu said today the Saigon government and the United States are considering the possibility of proposing to the Communists a month-long holiday cease-fire.

Mt. Vesuvius, the only active volcano in Europe, last erupted in 1944.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Some Major Changes In Reporting of Farm Income

Here are some more of the changes that may affect your tax return this year. This listing is continued from Monday's column.

The farmer has a new election. He can treat income from insurance proceeds for damage or destruction of his crops as income in the year after the destruction, for tax years ending after Dec 30, 1969.

The cost of developing citrus groves for years beginning since 1969 must be capitalized.

An even exchange of male for female livestock is now taxable.

Conservation or land clearance farm expenses deducted after 1969 are recaptured in full or part as ordinary income when the land is sold if held less than 10 years. Farm losses after 1969 which were used to reduce non-farm income will be recaptured as ordinary income on sale of the farm in some cases.

CAPITAL GAINS

Capital gain tax - the maximum rate will be 25 per cent, but only on the first $50,000 of long term capital gains, the excess over $50,000 will be taxed at 29½ per cent for 1970, 32½ per cent for 1971 and while there will be no maximum tax after 1971 because of the 50 per cent of capital gains being taxed at a 70 per cent rate, there will be an effective maximum tax of 35 per cent.

Only 50 per cent of long term capital losses can be used to offset ordinary income.

The $1,000 maximum long term capital loss deduction has been reduced to $500 for married persons filing separate returns, effective for 1970.

After May 27, 1969, on an installment sale, payments collected include any regularly marketable securities issued by the purchaser.

If you elected to change from the accrual to the installment method you can now revoke the change within three years after the return for the year of the election was filed. This applies to pre-1970 years if the three year assessment period was open on Dec. 31, 1969.

If you sell qualified low income housing after October 9, 1969, and replace that with low income housing either by purchase or building within one year after the first year in which part of the gain was realized, you can defer tax on the gain.

HORSES, CATTLE

Horses and cattle purchased after 1969 and held for draft, breeding, dairy or sporting purposes are considered 1231 property only if you hold them for at least two years.

A lump sum distribution for 1970 or later, out of employee benefits plans, which was accrued in plan years beginning after Jan. 1, 1970, are capital gain only to the extent that the taxable portion exceeds the employer contributions. If the distribution was employer stock a special rule applies.

After July 25, 1969, the sale of letters, memorandums or similar property by the creator or for one for whom they were prepared or created is considered ordinary income.

Starting Jan. 1, 1970, the transfer of a franchise trade mark or trade name is treated as ordinary income if the seller retains any significant power, right or continuing interest.

PROPERTY THEFTS

Starting Jan. 1, 1970 gains and losses from casualty or theft of business property or capital assets held for more than six months are treated as Section 1231 if a net gain results and ordinary if a net loss results.

If you had an involuntary conversion you now have two years after the year in which part of the gain on conversion was realized in order to replace your property.

Insurance you receive to reimburse you for extraordinary living expenses because of a casualty to your residence, if received after 1968 is not taxable.

Uninsured casualty losses of personal assets are treated as Section 1231 property (reported on Schedule D, Part VII, form 1040).

This listing will be continued in Friday's column.

Campus Planner To Be Discussed

The Marin Junior College District board tomorrow will consider selection procedures for a Novato campus planner who may ultimately become campus president.

Meeting at 7 p.m. at the campus testing office, the board will also continue discussions on selection of a new computer system for the Kentfield campus. The Independent-Journal erred Friday in reporting the board would meet at 8 p.m.

Homes Sought For Foreign Students

Families living in the Redwood High School area have a chance to acquire a daughter from either Ecuador or Paraguay, or a son from Brazil.

Homes are sought for the three by the Redwood International Student Exchange, said Mrs. Ronald Hurt of 9 Skylark Drive, Larkspur, chairman of the home-finding committee.

So far, two prospective families have offered to take the girls, but no one has volunteered to take the boy, she said. These homes may not meet the committee's standards, she said. Other volunteer homes are welcome, she said.

The boy is Carlos Jose De Mattos, 16, of Salvador, Bahia, Brazil, a junior. The girls are Liliane LeBrown, 16, of Asuncion, Paraguay and Maria deLourdes Amador Izquierdo, 27, of Guyaquil, Guyas, Ecuador, a senior.

They are among 6,500 students coming from South America for the spring semester. They go directly to Ann Arbor, Mich. for two days of training and then to their prospective homes throughout the nation she said.

The girls will arrive in January and the boy in February, she said.

The students' travel is paid for in their countries. The local family must provide food, lodging and "tender loving care," she said.

Guilty Verdict In Beating Case

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court has found Stephen Orlando Marez, 30, of San Francisco, guilty of feloniously beating his wife last year in Novato.

The judge made his decision after the case was submitted on the basis of the transcript of the preliminary hearing.

Marez was arrested in June on a year-old warrant charging that he had given his wife such a severe beating and kicking that she was hospitalized for two weeks.

San Anselmo Votes To Seek 701 Grant

The San Anselmo City Council last night voted 3-2 to apply for a 701 planning grant and hire a city planner required for the grant.

The grant was opposed by Councilmen Warren R. Perry and Woodrow V Capurro who complained about government strings attached to planning money.

Though favoring planning, the two argued that the cost of employing a planner would be difficult to finance. The council, however, decided to hire one anyway at $944 to $1151 per month.

The majority also decided to retain Williams and Mocine as the consultant planners for the $30,690 study, two-thirds of which will be financed by federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The rest is to come from the city in cash and services if the application is approved by the state Council on Intergovernmental Relations.

Three citizens charged the city had sold the plan as a solution to drainage problems, which are not in the plan.

Mayor James F. Reed said the storm drain work must be financed from a 702 grant, not the 701 funds.

With the applied-for funds, the city would make a study of residential areas and the efficiency of city government. Work must be completed by May 15.

Judy Emis, secretary of the San Anselmo Civic Action Committee of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin, read a letter to the Council of Intergovernmental Relations claiming "A large segment of the San Anselmo voters" oppose the project. She demanded a city-wide vote on the issue.

goods and people as to add measurably to a state of national emergency."

His appearance touched off a sharp exchange between Chairman Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who introduced the strike-ban legislation for the White House.

In an opening statement, Yarborough blamed the threatened walkout on the Nixon administration—a charge that Jacis vigorously denied.

"We are here this morning because the President of the United States has not pursued free collective bargaining in this railroad-employees case," Yarborough said

Javits, conceding he might have acted differently had he been President, said that nonetheless Nixon believes he has pursued the right policy. "I do not believe the President of the United States is party to any partisanship, partiality, or conspiracy with management or anybody else," Javits said.

Hodgson indicated that even a two-week rail strike would force unemployment to at least 8.4 per cent and that the rate would soar to 22.1 per cent should the walkout last eight weeks.

A Labor Department assessment of the impact indicated it would have "a spreading or cumulative effect that could quickly spread to all areas of the economy—stalling or halting delivery of nearly all goods ranging from groceries to military hardware."

Earlier, union officials said Congress could stave off a strike by granting workers a temporary pay increase—the key issue blocking an agreement. Union leaders threatened to defy Congress and the courts and go to jail if necessary to uphold "our basic right to strike."

TRANSIT

plan was Marguerite Warren of the Sunset Improvement Clubs, who argued any Marin transit shoudl be handled by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. She also suggested that Marin and other northern counties served by transit pay an annexation fee to BART since they would benefit from a link to BART.

Mrs. Warren, a frequent critic of transportation systems in San Francisco, objected that transit to Marin would lose money, thus landing "on the taxpayer's back."

Concluding her 25-minute criticism of the plan, she insisted there "should be coordination among the systems rather than going off on your own."

one person, Richard A. Wamsley.

Wamsley had testified during Thurber's trial that he and Larry Rutherford — both 17, and like Thurber, of San Bruno — attacked Daly at Thurber's request.

"We're living in the era of believable young hoods," Cohn told the jury, as he was cut off by visiting Judge Edmund M. Moor when he attempted to compare the Thurber case to that of six San Francisco youths who were found innocent last month of killing a San Francisco policeman. Their trial was held in the same courtroom as Thurber's.

Pot Possession Charge Dismissed

A marijuana possessing charge against Neil George Cuzner, 18, of Novato, has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court because the contraband seized had not been analyzed by a chemist.

Cuzner was arrested Oct. 30 when officers found him asleep in a car.

OBITUARIES

Marvin C. Kline Dies At 55

Marvin C. Kline of Mill Valley died today after an illness which began five years ago. He was 55.

Kline was born in South Bend, Ind., and worked in that area as a contracting carpenter until 1961 when he moved to 17 Homestead Boulevard, Mill Valley.

A member of Peace Lutheran Church in Mill Valley, Kline supervised construction of the church's parsonage.

He also began construction of the Lutheran Shepherd of the Hills Church in San Francisco, but other contractors finished the job in 1965 when he underwent surgery for a brain tumor.

Too ill to continue as a contractor, he became landscape maintenance supervisor for a Lutheran housing development for the elderly in Napa.

He was a member of Carpenters Union Local 35 of San Rafael.

Surviving are his wife, Lois Kline, who works at Woolworth's in Corte Madera; three sons, Douglas Kline, a student at the University of California at Davis, Don Kline of Joliet, Ill., and Dale Kline of St. Louis, Mo., his mother Esther Kline of Bremen, Ind.; and two sisters Evelyn Barker of Salem, Ore. and Ruth Zechiel of Bremen. He was the grandfather of four.

Memorial service will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Godeau Funeral Home, 41 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco preceded by visiting hours beginning at 3 p.m.

Funeral will be in Bremen followed by burial in Woodland Cemetery, Woodland, Ind.

The family asked that memorial contributions be made to the Good Shepherd Home, Terra Bella, Tulare County, Lutheran Care for the Aging or the American Cancer Society.

near Terra Linda High, Mrs. Prandi said.

They are believed responsible for six burglaries within San Rafael city limits and eight in the county. The girls and their male accomplice were fairly sophisticated, Mrs. Prandi said, wearing gloves when they entered a house.

They knocked at doors of residences first to find out if any one was at home, she explained. If someone answered the door, they asked for a friend whom they knew lived elsewhere.

They usually entered homes by removing or cutting screens from side windows and then opening or breaking the windows.

Mrs. Prandi, who described the girls as "innocent looking," warned householders to call police if youngsters appear at their homes especially during school hours.

The teen-agers stole mainly cash, jewelry and guns, she said, which they sold for a fraction of their value, mainly to older teenagers.

The British Museum contains more than 6 million books.

MRS. HERDIN

Funeral for Beatrice K. Herdin, wife of Karl A. Herdin of San Anselmo, was held today in San Rafael.

Mrs. Herdin, who lived at 50 Rutherford Avenue, San Anselmo, died Saturday at her home following a long illness. She was 87.

A native of Norway, she moved to Minneapolis, Minn., in 1905 and to San Francisco in 1912. She had lived in Marin for about 12 years.

Besides her husband who is a retired painter and restaurant employee, Mrs. Herdin is survived by three sisters, Belle Harstad of Los Angeles, Anna Netland and Karen Wistrand, both of Minneapolis.

Burial was private.

JULIE KIENZLE

Julie D. Kienzle, 82, mother of Marjorie McCreal of San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in Owassa, Mich. and had lived there until moving to her daughter's at 16 Unionstone Drive, 16 days ago. She was a retired telephone operator.

She is also survived by a son, George of Covington, Ky., 11 grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren.

Reviews Mixed On Newsletter

The San Rafael School Reporter, the elementary and high school districts' maiden attempt at a newsletter for this year, got mixed reviews last night.

Eric Colby, publisher of the weekly Terra Linda News, said he felt the San Rafael Board of Education should instead use the "magnificent resources" available to it for reporting district activities in his newspaper, the Independent-Journal and the weekly Pacific Sun.

If the districts must have a newsletter, Colby suggested, the board should set up a panel of professional journalists as advisers. He argued a better solution would be to hire a public relations expert to "stimulate" communication from the board, teachers, students and the community, through the public press and by expanding the circulation of student newspapers off campus.

Board member Paul L. Jones said the board's problem is "to try to inform the public, not give them news — the man on the street knows little or nothing about the schools."

He stressed he felt there is a difference between informing the public and generating news stories.

Dist. Supt. John F. Plank said the newsletter, printed at a cost of $800, was designed to reach every home in the district.

Howard Council of the board's citizens advisory committee, said the newsletter was not meant to cut into the functions of the press, but that the districts needed continual communication with the public, rather than just before bond and tax elections.

One parent in the audience said she was "delighted" with the news-magazine style Reporter. "For the first time the schools were sending something out that wasn't a plea for funds," she said. Another woman disagreed, saying her friends felt "a huge chunk of money" was being spent. She said the board should make clear how much the publication cost.

Citizens committee member Lewis S. Pollock stressed that the schools must inform the public of "the meaning of such things as module scheduling, open campus and the like."

Colby agreed to confer further with the committee and district officials on the problem.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION — Awarded contract for replacing the Laurel Dell Primary School to Joseph DiGiorgio and Son of San Rafael, low among eight bidders, for $156,886. The bid was 5.5 per cent above district estimates, Plank said.

PLANS — Approved preliminary plans for a new, $95,000 music building containing a small auditorium at Davidson School and new shop facilities at Santa Venetia School.

HEARING — Set a special hearing for 7 p.m. Dec. 22 on the appeal of Terra Linda High School custodian Lewis Watkins from his firing Nov. 19.

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—San Francisco attorney Ira A. Brown Jr. was named by Gov. Ronald Reagan Tuesday to fill a newly created superior court judgeship in San Francisco County.

Prince Charles Embarrassed By President

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles says he was embarrassed by the attention President Nixon showed him during his visit to the White House last summer.

"There can be no greater show of generosity and goodwill on the part of the President towards Britain than to introduce my sister (Princess Anne) and me to his country from the White House," he told a Pilgrim Society dinner Tuesday night.

"While we were staying in the White House, I felt that an opportunity to talk to the President could not be missed, and Mr. Nixon very kindly gave up far too much of his valuable time to speak to me in his office.

"I thought that 20 minutes at the most would be the length of our conversation but to my amazed embarrassment it lasted an hour and a half."

Bicycle Path Due Discussion

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the city hall, will discuss the status of city bicycle path proposals.

The commission will consider striping Doherty Drive to provide a four-foot wide bicycle easement, discuss negotiations with the Tiscornia estate on acquiring an easement for a bicycle path from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road and the integration of Corte Madera's planned bike paths with Larkspur's.

The commission also will consider setting criteria on the amount of land subdivision developers will be required to donate to public use and setting a timetable for master planning of city parks.

Housewife Wins $860,000 Pool

LONDON (UPI)—An English housewife has won a world record pools dividend of approximately $840,000, Littlewoods Pools Company said today.

Littlewoods declined to name the winner, who said she wanted no publicity.

New Draft On Student Policy Given To Board

San Rafael Board of Education last night was handed a draft of district policy on student rights and responsibilities that was entirely different from the proposed policy that evoked a stormy hearing Oct. 5.

The new draft produced no controversy, but its adoption was postponed to the board's Dec. 22 meeting at the request of the board's two student members, David Plotkin and Charles Peden.

sPlotkin said he had been unable to get a full cross section of opinion on the policy from San Rafael High School students. Peden said Terra Linda High School students "want some kind of security" and felt "somewhat betrayed" that the policy Section 7400 did not spell out student rights.

"They've lost no rights" under the new policy draft, declared Herman L. Childress, board president.

The draft prevented in October by a citizens' policy review committee subcommittee headed by Mrs. Dale L. Brubaker listed 13 student rights and five student responsibilities. Parents declared the policy undermined parental authority and was "presumptuous."

The subcommittee studied scores of proposed revisions and heard community ideas Oct. 27.

It redrafted the rights portion of the policy in two paragraphs similar but not identical to that presented last night. Mrs. Brubaker was not present last night.

The latest version stated that, "The board believes that the rights guaranteed to all citizens within the law shall not be denied to any student . . . so long as student conduct does not impair the safety, health, well-being or rights of the individual or of others. The board extends to students those constitutional rights and corollary responsibilities which are consistent with orderly educational processes and goals of the San Rafael City Schools."

The rights section was only one part of a lengthy proposed policy governing students in terms of attendance and transfers, handling of school records, discipline, tutoring, student body activities, fund raising and other problems.

The policy proposal provided that "corporal punishment 'is discouraged' but if a teacher finds it necessary, "shall be allowed . . . with discretion, without anger and with no malicious intent."

Grooming was mentioned only in connection with athletics, where individual coaches were declared responsible for seeing that students' hair is "a length consistent with good practices of health, safety and performance."

Dodge Colt Goes On Sale Jan. 4

DETROIT (UPI)—The new Dodge Colt, Chrysler corporations entry in the minicar race, will have a price tag ranging from $1,924 to $2,225 when it goes on sale early next year.

The Dodge Division of Chrysler announced Tuesday the suggested retail price for the standard two-door coupe would be $1,924. A four-door sedan will sell for $1,995 while two and four-door hardtops will carry a pricetag of $2074. The station wagon will cost $2,225.

The subcompact will make its debut initially in the West starting Jan. 4, Chrysler said. It will join the American Motors Gremlin, Ford Pinto and Chevrolet Vega among American minicars.

Street Salting Violates Law

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—A check of the town's statutes has disclosed Pittsfield has been breaking the law every icy winter day for the past 25 years. City Solicitor Samuel Landa, in response to a resident's complaint on the amount of salt being used on city streets, checked Tuesday and found an ordinance passed in the late 1890s expressly prohibiting salting any public way.

It was established "for the protection of horses' hooves," Landa said. Technically, the city is liable for a $20 fine for every use since it began salting streets in 1945 as part of its ice control program.

Noon Religious Meetings Will Continue Pending Legal Advice

A group of students can continue to hold lunch period, voluntary religious meetings at San Rafael High School while the San Rafael Board of Education seeks legal advice on several questions, the board assured students and parents last night.

The board instructed Dist Supt. John F Plank to ask County Counsel Richard V Godino whether the students may invite nonstudent participants to their prayer and Bible reading sessions, and whether religious literature may be distributed during the meetings.

Plank said he would talk to Godino this morning.

Joyce Acosta, a sophomore who leads the student prayer group, said, "A lot us of have been on drugs," but the religious meetings "have gotten us off." She said the meetings have been held on campus for two years, with no problems until "I made the mistake of signing it up for a minicourse a couple of months ago. Dr. Ellsberg (Alan Ellsberg, San Rafael High principal) said it could not be."

The board members did not react to Miss Acosta s remark about drugs.

Several adults in the audience strongly endorsed the student prayer meetings.

Jane Levinsohn of San Rafael declared, "It has helped these kids and we have not helped these kids.

Marie Woelfl, former San Rafael schools employee, reminded the board that similar prayer meetings were held years ago "with Dr. Ellsberg's permission" and said religious programs are combating drug problems at Lowell High School in San Francisco.

"There are spiritual and moral needs no amount of psychology books can ever solve" for the teen-agers, she said.

Rev Kent A. Philpott, Miss Acosta s foster father, told the board, 'We're satisfied and happy with your liberal opinion" after board member Paul L. Jones suggested the meetings continue for students only, until the other legal questions are settled.

Hass, general practitioner and D. Jerome Hansen, state health program advisor for Medi-Cal and department specialist for nursing homes.

Questions phoned in will be answered during the morning broadcast. The program will be repeated by tape recording at 1:45 a.m. Sunday.

Steel Wire Fences To Go Up At Both Ends Of Civic Center

Steel wire fences will go up at both ends of the Marin Civic Center building to prevent intruders from clambering up the hillsides to gain access.

County Administrator Alan Bruce disclosed that the fences and iron grillwork along portions of the balconies are part of the physical security measures authorized by the Marin County Board of Supervisors immediately after the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom in the new Hall of Justice.

The proposed fencing and grillwork drew a blast from Lothar Salin, chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission. He charged that they "would only contribute to the police-state effect already in existence."

On Oct. 13, the supervisors approved an expenditure of up to $300,000 to add a new security force to guard all entrances and to seal up hillside accesses on the quarter-mile long structure which spans three hils.

The fences and grillwork are expected to cost between $40,000 and $50,000.

A steel wire fence will be built around the north end of the Hall of Justice where the County Jail and exercise yard for prisoners is located. Bruce said this will serve a double purpose — keep intruders from stepping from the hillside onto the balconies on the court level and to serve as an evacuation area for jail inmates in case the building must be cleared.

Another fence will be erected on the south end where the hillside leads into the fourth floor of the Administration Building where the county health department offices are located.

In addition, balconies that are within 10 feet drop to hillsides will be sealed off by steel grillwork identical in pattern and color to those installed when the buildings were first built.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

YOUTH COMMISSION — Appointed Sheila Moloney of 1 Melody Lane, Mill Valley, to fill a vacancy on the Marin County Youth Commission. She is a junior at San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow.

ROAD DIVISION — Approved formation of the Paradise Estates Permanent Road Division in the 350-acre Paradise Estates on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard a mile and a half south of Inverness. This will allow residents to tax themselves for road maintenance.

TREE — Authorized the county Department of Public Works to remove a large tree in a creek area off Manor in Greenbrae at a cost not to exceed $500. The tree, on county property, is in danger of collapsing.

OPEN AREA — Rezoned as open-area district a two-acre strip of land, formerly a railroad right-of-way, now owned by Marin Municipal Water District along Fern Canyon Road outside Mill Valley.

MAUCH SUBDIVISION — Unanimously denied landowner Oliver Mauch's appeal against the county planning commission's denial of Mauch's plans for an eight-lot subdivision on two acres adjoining Wild Horse Valley, west of Novato.

INSURANCE — Dropped the idea of self-insuring the county staff on workmen's compensation. The county administrator's office reported that the $11,000 annual savings on premiums would be more than offset by one incident such as the wounding of Deputy Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas in the Aug. 7 Marin Civic Center shoot-out. Were it possible to build reserves of more than $200,000, self-insurance might be feasible, but county finances make this unlikely, the board agreed.

FOOD INSPECTION — In response to bakery and restaurant owners' appeals to board members, directed the county staff to study revision of annual food establishment health inspection fees on a basis of the size of the business. A flat fee is now charged, regardless of the establishment's size.

AUDITORIUM — Accepted as complete except for agreed minor jobs, the work by contractors Wright and Wright and Oretsky on the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The contractors also will install the seating at a cost of $43,249.

ELECTION — Rescheduled an election on forming a Marin County Fire Protection District from March 2 to April 20 to coincide with school district elections, as an economy move.

CONVALESCENT HOSPITALS — Approved policy drafted by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin for regulation of future long term care facilities or expansion of present facilities.

AGRICULTURAL PRESERVES — Granted Planning Director Werner von Gundell extension of time for a report on agricultural preserves, to Jan. 5.

BOLINAS LIBRARY — Approved transfer of $300 from county library reserves to rent existing Bolinas branch library quarters through February.

HIRINGS — Approved appointment of Linda Jarvis as cashier in the treasurer-tax collector office at $510 per month; Marilyn Marklinger as switchboard operator, communications, at $510; Elsa H. Kellmann, municipal court deputy clerk III, $619 per month; Marilyn A. De Barrows, deputy sheriff I, building security, $700; Alan J Levine, deputy probation officer II, $828; Susette E. Westsmith, group counselor II, juvenile hall, $800; Daniel E. Lewis, group counselor II, juvenile hall, $838, and Philip G. MacDonald, library clerk, county library, $498.

DELEGATED CONTRACTS — Approved agreements by Bruce to obtain county workshop speakers, homemaker services and other items during November.

AMBULANCE — Retroactively approved transfer of county ambulance contract from Bay Cities Ambulance to United Ambulance Co. as of Nov. 15 rather than Nov 16.

UNDERGROUND — As recommended by the underground utilities committee, set a hearing on formation of an underground utilities district on Ridge Road, Muir Woods Park, for Dec 22.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the final subdivision map for Marinview Unit 3, in the Tamalpais Valley area.

RADIOS — Approved purchase of three solid state microwave radio relay units from the only bidder, Motorola Co., at a cost of $21,832.65.

WELFARE DEFICIT — Were told by Betty L. Presley, director of public social services, that the county faces a $100,000 deficit by June, largely as a result of an increase in the number of mothers receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Supervisors asked her to watch spending closely and asked the county administrator to see where funds could be found to meet the deficit.

GAS MONEY — Unanimously backed a charge by Supervisor Michael Wornum that the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau had "done a real disservice to Marin" by asking the Golden Gate Bridge District to divert money earmarked for ferries to improvement of approaches to the bridge. The board urged top priority to bus and ferry service.

Fingerprinting is not new; it was used in ancient China.

Insanity Plea Is Entered

Reginald Bruce Johnson, 22, of Novato, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to charges of twice burglarizing a Novato residence in August.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court appointed two psychiatrists to examined Johnson and asked for their reports to be given to the court on Dec. 28.

Johnson is accused of twice taking auto parts from a house at 1290 Lynwood Drive.

Shoot-Out Legislation To Be Asked In Bill Package

During the 1971 legislative session, Marin County will introduce 14 bills, including three that are directly related to the shoot-out and bombing at the new Hall of Justice.

Marin County Board of Supervisors agreed to the list and asked County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney to draw up the bills for introduction by Marin legislators.

The bills related to the Aug. 7 kidnap-shoot-out and the Oct. 8 courtroom bombing would:

1. Create some type of state insurance fund to provide building damage and liability insurance for public buildings. The insurance carrier on the Civic Center building is threatening a drastic increase in the deductible or a pullout because of the bomb damage.

2. Prohibit an insurance carrier from making unilateral changes in the insurance policy, or cancelling a policy without cause.

3. Amend the Ralph M. Brown Act to permit a city council or board of supervisors to meet in closed session to discuss protection of citizens or property from revolutionary or conspiratorial attack.

All three were approved without comment yesterday by the supervisors. The Marin Council for Civic Affairs submitted a letter of protest on the proposed amendment to the Brown Act, charging that the bill would give every local government a pretext for meeting in secret for the purpose of providing greater security for its citizens.

A bill suggested by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Michael Wornum won unanimous backing. This would give tax relief when homes are destroyed by fire or calamity and would include flood and slide insurance in the standard residential insurance coverage.

Arrigoni also wanted a bill to set a maximum five-cent tax ceiling in a sub-zone of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone. However, supervisors delayed action on this for a week because Maloney said a specific five-cent ceiling might be too restrictive for other subzones, which may want a 7 or an 8-cent tax.

Other county bills approved for introduction included these:

Define violations of building and sanitation codes as infractions rather than misdemeanors, triable by a judge without a jury, and punishable by fine only.

Provide full state reimbursement to counties for losses from the business inventory tax exemptions.

Amend the Welfare and Institutions Code to reduce administrative costs.

Establish parental responsibility for prenatal and medical costs of unwed mothers and fathers.

Establish state financial responsibility for basic living costs of unemployed paroles from state prisons who are participating in vocational rehabilitation.

Amend the state Penal Code to require partial repayment of public defense costs where defendant has ability to pay.

Require annual legislation to adjust salaries of municipal court attaches.

Provide uniform statewide standards to identify bicycle paths.

Authorize the county supervisors to designate a non-supervisor as its representative on the mental health advisory board.

CSD Proposal Due At Meeting

Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association will ask for permission to set up a Sleepy Hollow Community Services District at tonight's meeting of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission.

The commissinn will meet at 8 o'clock in the Ross Town Hall.

The Sleepy Hollow Community Services District, if formed, would absorb the existing Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District and provide other services such as recreation, large debris boxes for general community use, and possibly extra police protection if the voters in the district want it.

Operas At U.C. Are Called Off

The Opera Theater of Dominican College has canceled two operas which it had scheduled for Saturday at the University of California in Berkeley because it was impossible to reassemble all the musicians.

It had scheduled Ravel's "L'Enfant el les Sortileges" and Poulenc's "La Voic Humaine", said Sister Antoinnette.

You Are Invited to a Public Hearing

The Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District Is Holding a "Town Meeting" in San Rafael on Thursday, December 10

Under a mandate from the California State Legislature, the Golden Gate Bridge Highway and Transportation District is studying ways to meet future transportation needs in the District. As soon as the engineering and environmental reports—just completed by the District's consultants—have been reviewed by the public, the District's directors will prepare a recommendation for the State Legislature, centering on a single Transportation Facilities Plan.

To encourage the broadest possible public dialogue, the District directors are holding a series of 20 meetings throughout the District. At each meeting, the District management and its consultants will present reports on five different alternatives for a long-range plan. They will discuss routes, types of transit systems, costs, social and environmental factors, and the other aspects of their extensive studies. They will answer questions. They will welcome comments and suggestions, which will be weighed in the District's recommendation to the Legislature.

This is an important and interesting subject, one that can affect the future of the communities in the District's counties.

We look forward to the participation of all interested citizens. We hope you will plan to come.

In Marin County, the first meeting will be held as follows:

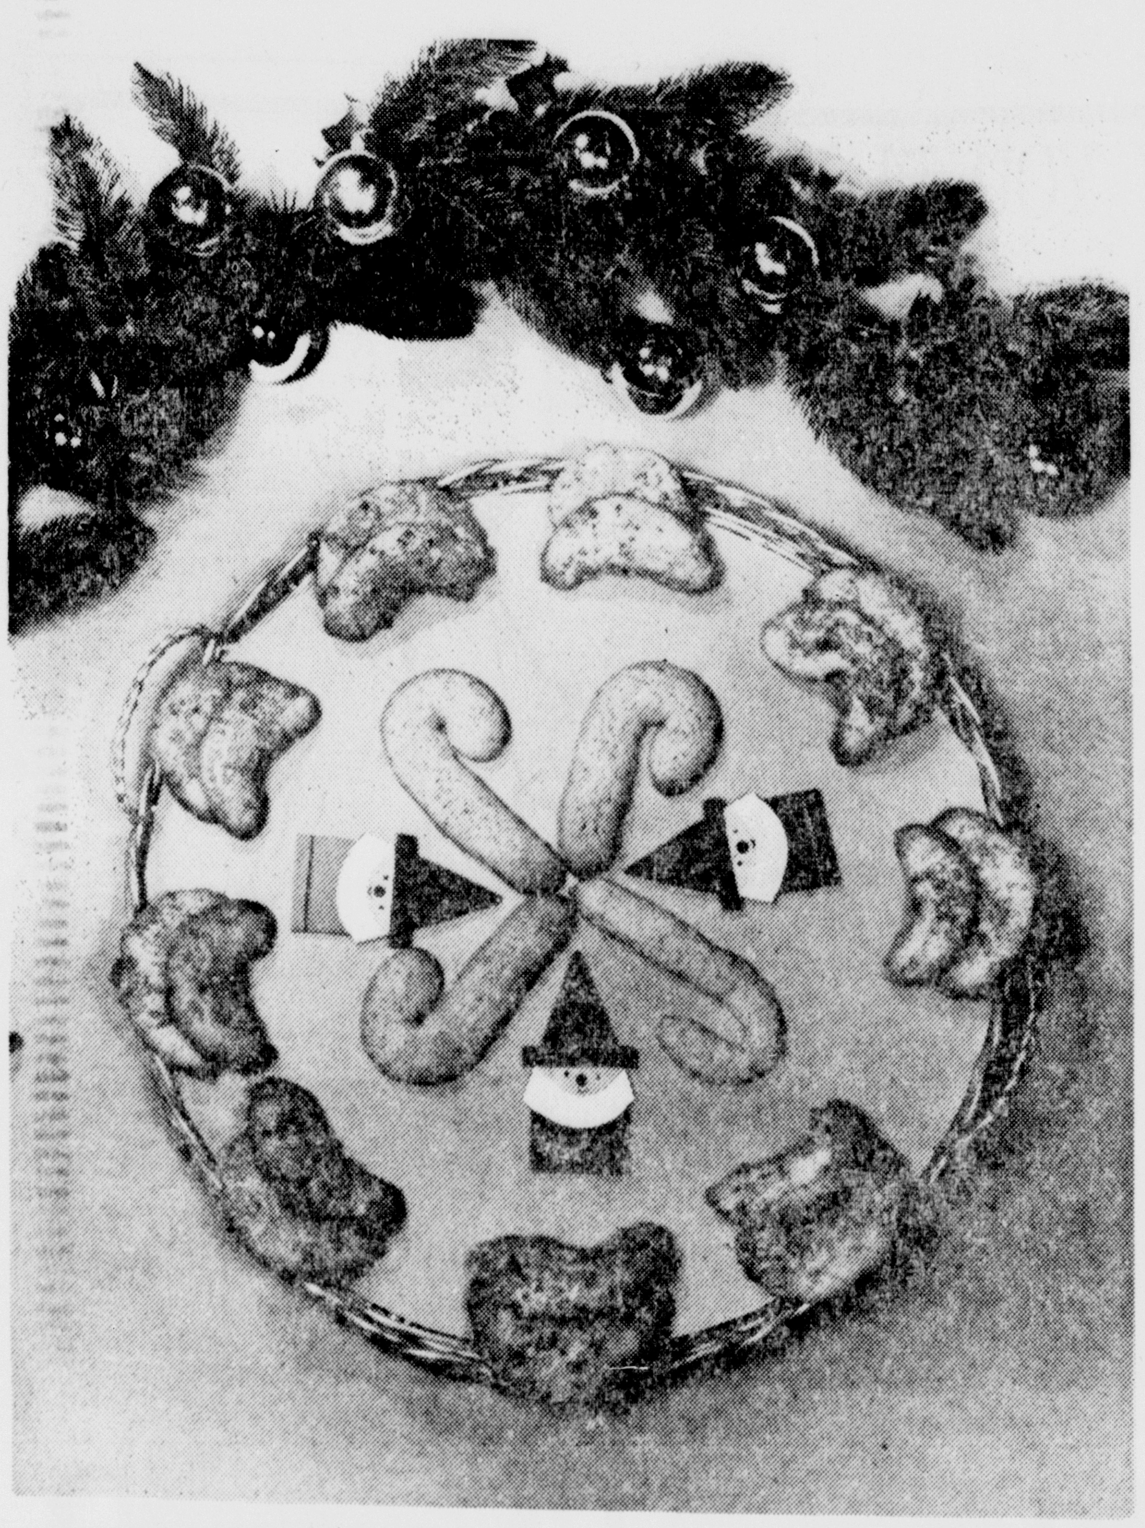
It's Time To Bake Those Christmas Cookie Gifts



EVERYBODY WELCOMES gifts of homemade Christmas cookies to serve friends through the holiday season. Two recipes for good Christmas cookies are Maple Nut Cooky Canes and Almond Crescents. Both are attractive to serve on a platter with coffee or punch when guests drop by.

Christmas is the most universally celebrated holiday. It is a festival that is shared by people all over the world, both from a religious and a social point of view.

The traditional Christmas festivities in America are a blend of many foreign customs — Spanish, German, French, English and Scandinavian, to name a few.

The use of a decorated evergreen dates back to the Eighth Century in Northern Europe. From Czech and Bohemian immigrants we get our interpretation of yuletide as a time to reward "good children" and punish the bad.

Our Santa Claus has many foreign counterparts. Pelznickel, Tomten, St. Nicholas, Kris Kringle, Sonner Klas and Sunder Klaas are international versions of our jolly fat man in the red suit.

"Merry Christmas" becomes "Joyeux Noel" in France, "Buon Natale" in Italy, "Feliz Navidad" in Spain and "Frohliche Weinachten" in Germany. The holiday greeting, in any language, expresses joy and good will.

Christmas cookies are popular holiday treats in many countries. Pfeffernusse, Norwegian Kringle and Swedish Spritz are classic European favorites which have been adopted by Americans.

Here are two recipes which you will want to add to your holiday favorites. Maple Nut Cookie Canes and Almond Crescents are delicious and fun to make. The cookie canes owe their nutty goodness to ground walnuts. For a festive touch, they can be sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. The crescents are coated with a mixture of sugar, cinnamon and finely chopped almonds.

MAPLENUT COOKIECANES

½ cup (1 stick) margarine, softened
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1 egg yolk
¼ teaspoon imitation maple flavor
1 cup ground English walnuts
1 cup unsifted flour

Cream margarine and sugar until very light. Thoroughly beat in egg, egg yolk and maple flavor. Blend in ground English Walnuts and flour. Chill thoroughly, at least 1 hour.

Turn a small amount of dough out onto a lightly floured board. Refrigerate remaining dough. Gently roll 1 level tablespoon dough into a 5-inch rope. Place ungreased baking sheet curving one end to form cane. Repeat with remaining dough.

Bake at 400 F. 10 to 12 minutes, or until edges are lightly browned. Remove from baking sheets and place on wire racks to cool. When cool, if desired, coat with confectioners' sugar. Makes about 3 dozen cookies.

ALMOND CRESCENTS

½ cup (1 stick) margarine, softened
2-3 cup sugar
2 hard cooked egg yolks, sieved
1 uncooked egg yolk
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1¼ cups unsifted flour
1-3 cup very finely chopped blanched almonds
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 egg white, slightly beaten

Cream margarine and 1-3 cup sugar until light. Add sieved yolks and uncooked yolk; beat until smooth. Blend in lemon peel and flour. Chill until firm, about 1 hour.

Meanwhile, mix together blanched almonds, remaining 1-3 cup sugar and cinnamon.

Roll 1 tablespoon dough into 2½-inch rope. Curve to form half-moon. Flatten to about ⅛-inch thickness; taper ends. Brush both sides with beaten egg white, then lightly coat with sugar-nut mixture.

Bake at 375 F. for 12 to 14 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2½ to 3 dozen cookies.

Steak, Blue Cheese Into Quick Sandwich

This is the season for informal entertaining. The holidays seem to encourage good fellowship and people will drop in to visit on short notice.

With this in mind, make sure that you will have ingredients on hand for quick repasts.

For instance, try this hot sandwich specialty featuring tenderloin tips topped with tangy blue cheese.

A slice of toasted rye is topped-off with tenderloin tips in a mushroom wine sauce and accented with American blue cheese. The sandwich is placed under the broiler until the cheese is melted and bubbly; then served with fresh vegetable garnishes or cole slaw and lots of hot beverages to drink.

The resulting subtle, sharp flavor of the blue-marbled cheese produces a delightfully different taste sensation sure to please everyone.

Plus factor in your favor, too, is that the pungent cheese eliminates need for lots of other seasonings.

With a speedy meal such as this you'll have one supper or luncheon you can put together with a minimum of work, both before and after.

STEAK SANDWICHES ALA BLUE

4 slices rye, whole wheat or pumpernickle bread (toasted and buttered)
½ cup butter
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup chopped onions
½ cup chopped mushrooms
4 beef tenderloin tips (4 oz. each
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ cup sweet red wine
½ cup American blue cheese (about 3 ounces, crumbled)

Melt butter in skillet. Add garlic, onions and mushrooms Saute until tender. Cut horizontally almost through tenderloins Open them butterfly fashion and put into skillet. Season with salt and pepper. Cook until brown on both sides. Add wine and allow to simmer about one minute. Place each tenderloin on a slice of buttered toast and pour juice over meat. Sprinkle crumbled blue cheese over each tenderloin Place sandwiches under broiler until cheese is melted

Serve A Lemon-Blueberry Fluff To Those Who Shun The Calories

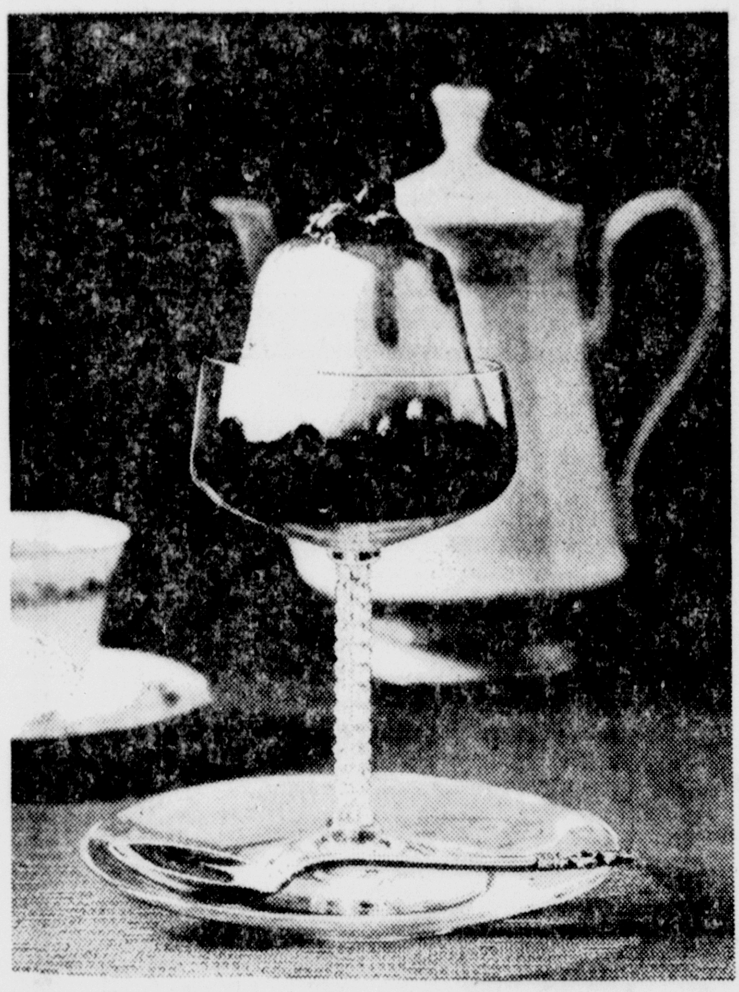
Tired of passing up those elegant-looking desserts in order to count calories? Now you can have your dessert and eat it too. And better yet, when entertaining you can proudly serve it to non-dieting guests.

Entertaining is more fun when you top off the meal with an eye-catching dessert. Dieters and non-dieters alike all voice their approval of Lemon-Blueberry Fluff, a light and satisfying lemon-flavored treat topped with blueberry sauce.

This dessert is a glamorous finale to any meal. And it contains only 76 calories per serving.

To make Lemon-Blueberry Fluff you need:

1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup cold water
2 egg whites
1 9-ounce carton frozen unsweetened blueberries, thawed (1½ cups)
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons sugar
Few drops vanilla



In large bowl dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in lemon peel, lemon juice, and ¾ cup cold water. Chill till partially set.

Add unbeaten egg whites to gelatin mixture. Beat with electric mixer till mixture is light and fluffy, about 1 to 2 minutes. Pour into eight 5-ounce custard cups. Chill till firm. (Slight separation into layers may occur.)

Meanwhile, in saucepan crush ½ cup of the blueberries. Blend together cornstarch and ½ cup cold water. Add cornstarch mixture and sugar to crushed blueberries. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, till mixture is thick and bubbly; cook and stir 1 minute longer. Remove sauce from heat; stir in remaining blueberries and vanilla. Chill sauce.

To serve, unmold lemon fluff in individual dessert dishes. Spoon a little blueberry sauce over each dessert. Makes 8 servings.

Low Cholesterol Dieters Can Enjoy A Cookie Too

Some suggestions from your Heart Association for holiday eating and entertaining with new, tasty recipes, low in cholesterol.

"POLY" CHRISTMAS WREATH

Heat oven to 400 degrees.

To prepare pan: Melt 1⅞3 cup polyunsaturated margarine. Put 3 Tablespoons in bottom of 9-inch ring mold (save rest of melted margarine for later step) Sprinkle with 3 Tablespoons brown sugar. Use almond halves or walnuts and red and green maraschino cherries (or pineapple) and place over brown sugar in a design.

Batter:

Sift together:
1-1⅞3 cup sifted all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1⅞2 tsp salt
Add:
1¼ cup polyunsaturated oil
1½ cup nonfat (skim) milk

Mix to a moderately soft dough. If dough is too sticky to handle with fingers, knead in another tablespoon flour. Shape dough into 12 balls, about the size of walnuts. Roll each ball in melted margarine and then in mixture of 1-½ cup white sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Bake at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from pan immediately by placing a plate over top of mold and turning whole thing over. Best when served warm.

NON-CHOLESTEROL CRUMB CRISPS
(a macaroon-type cookie)

1 cup sugar
2 cups fresh breadcrumbs
2 oz. glace cherries cut into small pieces
1-1⅞" cups chopped or sliced nuts (any type will do but a mixture of almonds and walnuts is especially good)
3 egg whites, slightly beaten
Pinch salt
3 drops vanilla flavoring

Mix all together. Drop on to well-greased cookie sheet by teaspoonful. Bake at 350 degrees for approx 15 minutes, until golden brown color. Makes 2½ :2 dozen cookies, about 70 calories each.

STUFFED STAR APPLES

Heat oven to 375 degrees.
1 cup flour, sifted
1 teasp salt
1¾ cup vegetable oil (polyunsaturated)
2½ Tablespoons water
For EACH serving:
1 Roman Beauty Apple
2 dates, pitted, sliced
1 tsp. chopped nuts

Remove core from each apple, and remove peel one inch from top. Mixchopped dates, and nuts and fill core holes lightly. To make pastry: Mix flour and salt together. Beat oil and water together and add to flour. Mix until ball of dough is formed. Roll dough between sheets of wax paper until thin. Cut out a star for each apple (recipe will make 6 to 8 stars). Place a star on top of each apple, sprinkle with cinnamon and bake at 375 for about 45 minutes, until apple is done and pastry a light brown color.

About 275 calories each — compared to 420 calories for one slice apple pie.

Other stuffing which may be used: dried apricots and nuts, mincemeat, raisins and nuts, whole cranberry sauce.

Cranberries

Cranberry cookery was not popular, even in New England, until the early 1800's. Like Rhubarb, the tart fruit required sweetening and until Louisiana cane sugar was profitably produced after 1796, sugar was a precious food. Today sugar is one of the few low-cost food items, and cranberry recipes abound.

PRACTICAL FASHIONS ON THE SLOPES

Color, texture and style have no limits in ski wear. Skiers do not have to stick to the one-style parka-sweater-pants look, and there are more parka lengths than there are dress lengths. Some stop at the waist; others are long and belted, tunic-fashion. The midi in parkas, left, by Bogner is a nylon mid-thigh length self-belted jacket. Bogner calls it the Forela and believes it will replace the short waist jacket popular last season and impractical because of insufficient protection. Center, a trio of skiers wear, from left, the Tioga, a two-piece vertical matchstick-quilted suit in stretch nylon with horizontal quilting at elbows for freedom of movement; the Carera, a nylon stretch quilted jumpsuit for men; and Peru, a window pane quilt cire nylon vest which reverses to fleece lining to top the matching over-the-boot pants in stretch gabardine-like fabric. Bogner's leanest silhouette look, right, is a stretch gabardine one-piece suit that affords a minimum of bulk.

Status Of Women Told In Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — Women in the Royal Canadian Mounties?

Yes, said Canada's four-year-old Royal Commission on the Status of Women Monday when it called for an end to discrimination against females in employment, the right to abortion on demand for pregnancies up to three months, and raising the marriage age to 18 "with no exceptions at all."

In a 500-page report presented to the House of Commons by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the Commission released its formula for promoting women's equality in a society "unjustly conceived and controlled by men."

Questioned about the government's plans for action on the proposals Trudeau was noncommittal.

"WE WILL consider the report, then we will announce to the House what course we will follow," he said.

Among the 167 detailed recommendations were proposals for child care centers accessible to women of all income levels, 18 weeks paid maternity leave, guaranteed annual income for the heads of one-parent families and a pension plan for housewives.

The report asked for special measures to spur women's employment in every area from the public service to the armed forces and demanded an end to "six-typing" of occupations in all fields and equal opportunity in hiring, salaries, recruitment and promotions.

It proposed enlistment of women in the Royal Canadian Mounted police, admittance of women to federally operated defense colleges and a required plan for increased female representation in the Canadian senate.

Mrs. Traversi Unit President

Petaluma Unit, Catholic Social Service, members have elected Mrs. David Traversi, president. She has also served as recording secretary, Sonoma County bulletin chairman and chaired various sub committees for the unit.

Rowene Traversi and her attorney husband are native Petalumans. They have four children Marrianne, 13, David, 11, Diane, 10, and Stephen, 6. A Petaluma High School graduate, the new president worked in San Francisco prior to her marriage.

Mrs. Traversi's pastimes include sewing, reading and decoupage, and she is a leader of Junior Great Books' discussions. She is a past president of the Petaluma Boys Club Auxiliary and maintains an active interest in Sonoma County Law Wives, St. Vincent's Mothers Club.

The annual Black and White Ball, set for Feb. 20 is this unit's main fund raising activity. All proceeds provide operating funds for the Santa Rosa agency to further its counseling services in addition to the chapter's own donations of gifts to the dependent children of the Sonoma County Juvenile Hall during holidays and birthdays. Any woman, regardless of faith, may join.

Other officers serving with Mrs. Traversi are Mmes. Daniel Longaker, vice president; Ronald Walters, recording secretary; George Mertens, treasurer; Gino Paieri, corresponding secretary; Edward Borr, membership chairman; Ron Hopkins, press releases; and William J Bianchini, dance chairman

It's Bike Sales Time

More bicycles are sold during the Christmas shopping season than at any other time of the year. The California Medical Association warns that parents making these purchases should keep certain accident hazards in mind.

Two kinds of braking systems for bicycles are currently available. The simplest to operate is the coaster brake, which requires only that the direction of the pedals be reversed. To apply reverse pedal pressure the arms are used to push the main weight of the body back from the handle bars and onto the pedals. This bracing action tends to keep the rider from being pitched headlong over the front wheel as the cycle stops.

Becoming increasingly popular with youngsters are bicycles with gears which permit the use of multiple speeds. Usually, such cycles are equipped with brakes operated by special grips applied to the handle bars. Cables transmit the pressure from one hand grip to the front wheel and from the other grip to the rear wheel. If equal pressure is applied to both wheels the braking

Prepare For All Conditions

By PAT BALMES

Families are taking new interest in the old winter sport of cross-country skiing, according to Mrs. Mary King, owner of a mountain shop in Kentfield

Safer than down hill skiing because of gentle slopes and non-rigid ski bindings, Mrs. King says, cross-country skiing offers families who are tired of long waits for ski lifts the freedom of backpacking. The push-glide movement, she says, can be learned in a weekend, and special waxes increase the glide.

HIGH ENERGY snacks, especially for children who burn more calories than adults, include beef jerky, chocolates, pemmican bars, dried fruits, herb and dextrose candies and meat bars, specially designed to be eaten on the trail.

The ability to read maps, a compass and the knowledge of weather are prerequisites, according to the mountaineer. She advises observing safety rules and wearing the right kind of clothes to have fun in the snow country.

Elementary mountaineering safety rules can prevent tragedy, says Mrs. King, who has been readying families for the mountains for 25 years. She advises:

Don't start out on a long tour without being in good shape.

Never go alone

TALK WITH people who know the area before you try out new terrain.

Have your mountain equipment in order, and always take it with you, even on a short tour. Include a knife, map, compass, matches, candle, first aid kit, snow glasses, flashlight and whistle.

Report where you start from and where you are going.

Respect weather and weather forecasts.

Turn back in time! There is nothing shameful in turning back, says the mountaineer.

Keep together in critical situations.

Save your strength. Seek shelter in time. When necessary, dig yourself into the snow.

You must have this equipment with you in the mountains: wool or thermal underwear, parka with hood, windproof pants, extra sweater and stockings, stiff ski hat with earflaps, woolen mittens and windproof cover with spares, snow boots, scarf and extra ski straps.

TO KEEP warm, cover your head so your body won't lose heat through radiation.

Thick insulation and trapped

Academic Status Of Women

A survey adding to the data showing that women do not have equal status with men in the academic world has been released by the American Association of University Women.

Questionnaires were sent to 750 colleges, and answers were received from 454. The survey showed that at every level in colleges and universities women are under represented or placed in positions with little power.

Dr. Mabelle G. McCullough, assistant dean of students at the University of Minnesota, who headed the AAUW committee making the survey last January, said, "There are clear indications that there are discriminations, at least between policy and prectices."

Ninety per cent of the schools, the servey said, say that their promotional policies are the same for men and women faculty, yet in 34 schools, all coeducational, there are no women department heads and the mean number of women department heads in all schools is less than three per institution. Women as department heads are found primarily in the fields of home economics, physical education, English languages, nursing and education, it said.

The report also said that nationally women comprise about 22 per cent of the faculty at all ranks in higher education in the United States.

"Percentage of women decreases, however, as rank increases, with less than nine per cent holding the rank of full professor," it said.

Of the schools contacted only 21 per cent had no women trustees while 25 per cent had only one.

The AAUW plans to get the information out to its branches for them to use in trying to improve the status of women

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Son And Daughter, 35 and 37 Are Still At Home Tied To Mother

DEAR HELEN:

This woman has been a widow for 35 years, is now 76. She had five children, three married, and two still living at home. These two are 35 and 37.

At dinner time she fixes their plates as if they were 10-year-olds. She buys their clothes and tells them what to do, even though both have good jobs and seem moderately intelligent. They're normal, I mean, though they have no social life outside of their mother's friends.

Don't you think she should untie the apron strings and let them go? — NOSEY NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR:

Don't you think if they had wanted to go, they'd have done so long before this? Those apron strings may only be untied by death — and then two middle-aged people may find themselves very much alone in a world they've never learned to face. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband has all he ever wanted: A very good job, prestige, clothes that enhance his good looks, a fine car, and his choice of women. Perhaps he doesn't take advantage of that choice — yet — but he loves the feeling they consider him a good catch (even though married).

He started climbing the ladder of success when our children were in their teens. I was so busy raising the three of them that I didn't see he was drifting away from me. I've never wanted a career — being a wife and mother was enough. But now I'm neither — just an anchor, and feeling pretty well encrusted with barnacles.

You see, I didn't have a college education. I don't talk well at parties. I have no polish. My husband has all these attributes and, besides, he looks 10 years younger than me. He doesn't say it, but I know he'd be glad if I just disappeared so that he wouldn't be ashamed of me.

Should I leave a note and vanish? The children are all grown and gone, so nothing holds me back any more. — NO LONGER NEDDED

DEAR N.L.N.

For heavens sake, get off your self-pity and start competing. Take a self-improvement course, enroll at college, volunteer for worthwhile community projects, fix up your figure and face; look alive. And act it.

Your husband chose you because he loved you above any other woman. If you weren't still his choice, he'd be out chasing (which you indicate hasn't happened — yet). So stop the "Poor little left-behind me" routine and start catching up. A visit to your doctor might help you develop the energy for it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

"Soft-Hearted" mourned about all the dogs and cats taken to the pound. Might I remind her that slaughterhouses are filled with animals who don't want to die — and they aren't flesh-eaters either. Those poor innocent cows, pigs, lambs, etc. are killed every day. Does she mourn them — or enjoy the chops?

A dog, when unrestrained is a killer — responsibile for the deaths of more deer than poachers kill. A cat tortures its prey to death — and not from need to eat.

I love and respect all animal life, but I am provoked with people who shed tears for the poor "pets" who are humanely put to sleep at the shelter, when they have no feeling for those larger animals they raise for food. — HARD HEARTED

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal

Suspenders

Suspenders are back, says Levi's, the world's largest pants maker. So saying, the company will feature four numbers in fashion suspenders — a nine-color ribbon stripe, a red and blue stripe, a red, white and blue stripe and a solid red. They are to be worn with suspender buttons. Since there are a few pants now made that may not have such buttons, Levi's will pack detachable copper buttons with each pair of suspenders.

Buying Washer

Before you purchase a washer, ask yourself if there are any conditions peculiar to your home which might cause washing problems. For example, if your home has low water pressure, be sure the washer you select has a pressure-fill system so it will fill properly before washing and rinsing.

Beta Sigma Phi Chapter Elects Mrs. Robert Rafael

Serving as president of Theta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority is Mrs. Robert Rafael of Petaluma. A three-year-member of the chapter she has held the positions of social chairman and vice president.

Activities planned during Lorraine Rafael's term include projects to benefit children of Sonoma State Hospital. The chapter members will bring handmade toys and clothes for these children to their annual Christmas party. In April a bridal fashion show is scheduled with proceeds earmarked to send several mentally retarded children to a summer camp. Theta Epsilon also sponsors a Petaluma Boy Scout at summer camp.

Membership is invitational. Its purpose is to enrich members both culturally and socially.

A native of San Antonio, Texas, Mrs. Rafael is also active in the Environmental Center of Sonoma County and Zero population Growth.

She is a graduate of Petaluma High School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. Lorraine and her husband are the parents of Anthony, 2, and Scott, 10 months. Mr. Rafael is a builder. The new president's hobbies are sewing, knitting, crochet and reading.

Other officers of the chapter are Mmes. Allan Brody, vice president; Terry Dater , recording secretary; Ronald Ranson, corresponsing secretary; and James Costello, treasurer.

Hippies Stir Men's Fashion Revolution

Pierre Balmain, the French designer, credits the current men's fashion renaissance to the hippie revolution and the complete freedom in dress.

"Also the hippie revolution stirred the men's fashion industry that was really falling asleep in a sort of routine of suits that were just basic and just useful. "Now," Balmain says, "instead of just buying clothes to cover themselves, men are buying clothes to better their appearance, enhance their personality and make themselves more dashing." See?

air space between a down jacket and a covering windproof parka will keep you warm even below freezing. Keep torso warm; it will heat your toes and fingers.

Avoid sweating. Allow for ventilation through clothes or out of neck of jacket. Foam rubber and nylon insulation allows for evaporation.

Leather boots, waterproofed, which double for hiking in the summer.

Tight boots cut off circulation. If they are too short, going downhill the boots will rub blisters on tips and tops of toes.

When buying boots, unlace them and slide foot forward. Observe if there is the ideal ⅜ inch space between heal and back of boot. For another test, kick a board. That simulates the movement of the foot inside the boot when traveling downhill. Kick hard! If you feel your toes hit the front of the boot, they are too short. For sore spots on the trail, cut a piece of gum-backed moleskin and stick on foot.

WET FEET are susceptible to frostbite. Take off boots and dry stockings when you come into shelter. Warm feet with warm hands. Never rub. Never use snow.

Altitude in mountains effects visitors. It takes three or four days to acclimate. Altitude dries skin and a moisturizer is helpful.

Remember that mountains demand respect. Therefore, take no unnecessary chances. The tour is not wholly successful until you are home again in good condition, according to Mrs. Mary King.

Businessmen Disclose Plans To Help Solve Consumer's Problems

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — At precisely the hour last week when a group of housewives launched a nation-wide sale of stamps to draw attention to consumer problems, a nation-wide sale of stamps to draw attention to consumer problems, a nation-wide organization of businessmen disclosed plans for doing more to solve those problems.

Although the timing was a merely coincidence, rather than a split-second response of one group to another, it dramatized the accelerated pace of action programs by both consumers and businessmen in response to them.

Never before have businessmen become more alert to consumer issues. The 14-point plan of the Council of Better Business Bureaus promises a better day for consumers if it is fulfilled as announced last week.

FOR IT BRINGS one of the more controversial organizations into the mainstream of what has become known as "consumerism."

For many consumers frustrated by problems with products or services, the Better Business Bureau has become only the final disillusionment of many. By the council's own count, four out of every 10 callers to the 139 bureaus last year got either a busy or no-answer signal.

Of the six who did get through, probably less than one got any sort of satisfaction with a buying problem. Service to the public has varied greatly from bureau to bureau, with the best operating in large metropolitan areas such as Chicago and St. Louis.

Although an estimated one out of every 12 households in the country had some type of contact with BBB last year, many of the others had no bureau to contact in their area.

TO HELP remedy these problems, the Council of Better Business Bureaus has drawn up a Declaration of Responsibilities "to help business and the consuming public achieve maximum satisfaction in their relations with each other."

The Council has also elected a new president, H. Bruce Palmer, a former insurance executive, and assigned him to raise $25 million from concerned businessmen to provide funds for the new program.

Among the aims of the program are:

— Increase bureau capacity to handle consumer complaints.

— Broaden bureau coverage by establishing new bureaus and inaugurating free telephone service for people not now covered.

— Set up consumer councils "as vehicles to promote consumer education and to create a consumer presence that will encourage business in self-regulation." Twelve "public" members would be added to the board of directors.

— Allow private citizens to become members of local bureaus so they can receive periodical literature and materials and participate in market panels.

— Expand consumer education activities through schools, mobile vans and other means.

— Prod business to eliminate any malpractices in the marketing of goods and services.

— Encourage establishment of arbitration procedures for consumer complaints, a system which has been growing in popularity in recent years.

In announcing the new program, Council Chairman Elisha Gray II, head of the Whirlpool Corporation, acknowledged "a swelling tide of consumer complaints and frustrations."

"We've reached the point," he said, "where either business is responsibe to consumer needs or the choice for voluntary action will be taken out of its hands."

Rings For Men, More The Merrier

Shake a man's hand these days and you're likely to withdraw yours in pain — not from the heartiness of his grip, but form the collection of hardware he's sporting on a minimum of two to a maximum of four fingers per hand.

The ring is the thing, and like rings for the gals, the more the merrier. The rings for "him" range from combinations of everything from writhing snakes perfect for pinkies to bold metallic nuggets, mythological animals, Zodiac signs, genuine gem stones, not-so-genuine gem stones, Indian beaded bands, leather thongs, and,of course, for the unlibbed man, the wedding band.

Washing Knits

Before washing a knit anything, make sure it is washable. Read the labels, including information about trimmings and bindings.

Bicycle Sales And Safety Tips

action of this system is excellent, but obtaining this result requires a degree of skill not possessed by all children. It too often happens that most of the braking is applied to the front wheel, flipping the bike so that the rider is thrown headfirst to the pavement. Hand brakes also add to the risk of severe injury by encouraging coasting with the weight suspended over the handle bars instead of back over the pedals.

In addition, parents should ponder the availability in their neighborhoods of areas safe for cyclists. Physicians are reporting more fatalities and serious head injuries from falls, particularly from bicycle accidents, in the 5 to 15 age group than all other causes combined. Here are four suggestions for reducing the danger to your child:

Give more thought to matching the bike to the skill of the rider

Beware of nand brakes for younger children.

Provide a hard heimet, similar to those worn by motorcyclists, to be worn while bicycling.

Make certain that lights (the tail light in particular) are installed, maintained, and used when your youngster rides in darkness.

Resolution Due On Sewer Policy

A resolution to form an improvement district for financing of a study of a proposed Southern Marin sanitary sewer system will be considered by the Marin Municipal Water District board when it meets at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Passage of the resolution would end seven months of discussion of the sewerage system. The board on Nov. 13 passed a resolution of intention to form the improvement district and set a public hearing on the proposal for tomorrow.

The resolution of intention passed last month differed from one passed in June in that the City of Belvedere and the portion of Tiburon served by the Tiburon Sanitary District have been removed from the boundaries of the proposed district.

16-Year-Old Is Cited On Stereo Theft

Sixteen-year-old Peter Epidendio of 57 Oxford Drive, Santa Venetia, has been cited to the juvenile probation department on a charge of stealing an auto stereo valued at $140.

Information that led to young Epidendio's arrest came through a tip to the "Secret Witness" program sponsored by the Independent-Journal said Inspector Charles Prandi of the county sheriff's juvenile division.

Prandi said the stereo was stolen Oct. 22 from a car parked in front of 405 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia.

The "Secret Witness" program has offered rewards for information leading to solution of the courthouse bombing and of incidents of vandalism involving the Independent-Journal and Marin merchants. No reward has been offered in other cases but the program invites information about any crime known to a person who wishes to inform the authorities while retaining his anonymity.

He was released on his own recognizance to appear in Marin Municipal Court Dec. 14.

Novato Gets Townhouse Master Plan

The Novato City Council last night approved Boise Cascade Building Company's master plan for a townhouse development west of the city including 20 acres of park land.

The firm plans to construct 215 townhouses on the 59-acre site between Novato Boulevard and Novato Creek.

The vote was 3-1 with Councilman George C. Quesada dissenting, and Mayor Douglas M. Merrill abstaining because his architectural firm designed the Boise Cascade headquarters building.

Residents of nearby Trumball Estates, who protested strongly at previous hearings, agreed "in principle" to the plan on several conditions.

Controversy had developed over the number of units to be made available to low and moderate income buyers. It was finally agreed that there be a maximum of 15 per cent of the units for such families.

Jerry A. Cannon, representing the Ecumenical Association for Housing, backed low and moderate income housing, explaining: "We don't want a Marin City in Novato. The thinking that went into creating a Marin City in Marin County has gone by."

Cannon said that Boise Cascade's plan would provide "economic integration," and "this type of housing is needed."

William T Hopkins, representing Trumball Estates Residents Association, presented the request that Raposa Vista and Pico Vista be closed rather than serve as through streets into the proposed development.

The firm has agreed to donate 20 acres of hill land to the city for park use, and Councilman Wayne Sartain recommended that there be a soils check of an area to be given to the city where there is sloughing.

The Novato City Council also:

ASPHALT PLANT — Denied an appeal of planning commission approval for McPhail's Inc. to operate an asphaltic concrete plant at the northeast corner of Highways 101 and 37, after hearing protests that the site wasn't appropriate for the proposed plant and that the use was incompatible with residential zoning across Highway 101.

RESERVOIR HILL — Introduced an ordinance to rezone 13 acres between Oleander Avenue and Reservoir Drive, east of the future Highway 101 by-pass, to planned residential with one family homes on half-acre lots, by a 3-2 vote with Councilmen Joseph Gargiulo and Womack dissenting. Attorney Leland H. Jordan and George Gnoss Jr., representing property owners affected, opposed the rezoning, and there was a petition with 33 signatures favoring it. Councilmen viewed the proposed rezoning as a holding action, pending further study

SURPLUS PROPERTY — Authorized the sale of three surplus city cars, with a minimum bid of $300 each, and about 40 bicycles at a public auction at 10 a.m Saturday.

COMMITTEES — Voted to reappoint the members of the beautification, building code, plan review, underground utilities and school traffic committees for one more year.

SIDEWALK — Passed a resolution ordering construction of a sidewalk for 126 feet on the south side of Ignacio Boulevard between Alameda Del Prado and the highway interchange by the property owner, Hector and Nancy Rubini of San Rafael, and set 8 p.m. Jan. 26 for a public hearing.

HIGHWAY AGREEMENT — Approved an agreement with the State Division of Highways for the state to construct storm drainage facilities and sidewalk on Reichert Avenue and pave the new alignment of San Marin Drive,at a cost of $63,000 to the city.

First The Lights, Now Only A Stump

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI)—The 10-foot evergreen in front of Anthony Aceti's home here was stripped of the Christmas lights last year and the family thought they would leave it bare this time.

The decision doesn't make much difference now, though. The Acetis reported this week that sometime during the early hours of Nov. 28 bandits sawed the tree down and carted it away, leaving only a stump.

Novato Council To Explore Land Offer For Park Site

The Novato City Council agreed last night to explore an offer by G. J. Garlick and Associates of Salt Lake City to sell 425 acres west of San Marin High School for park land.

The council voted 4-1 to discuss possible methods of acquiring the land with Garlick. Councilman J. Wayne Womack dissented.

Earlier the council had received a letter from attorney David Price Jones of Novato, representing Garlick, saying it appeared "that shortly" the property might not be available to the city.

Garlick has a 856-acre parcel, the Magetti Ranch, and he has given an option on a portion of the site to a builder, Jones wrote.

However, the unavailability of this portion doesn't make the property less attractive as a park site, Jones contended.

City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said the choices before the city would be outright purchase, lease purchase or parcel-by-parcel purchase.

Garlick originally offered to sell the land to the city for $600,000.

Womack argued that the city shouldn't attempt to acquire park land at this time, unless the property is donated. He opposed spending city funds for park land without authorization by the voters.

Leo R Andre of 1510 Vallejo Street said park land purchase "is okay if you have the money: but the streets aren't repaired yet."

Womack said there had not yet been a study of the cost involved in maintaining a major park, and the needed tax revenue.

Councilman Wayne Sartain suggested that the city study the possibility of acquiring the site "at some time," but felt there should be support in the community for it, and it should be financed by bonds.

The council then voted that a council committee should meet with Garlick to determine if he has a possible long-term financing proposal.

It was proposed that there be a closed session for negotiations.

Pastor Provided

SELATTYN, England (UPI) —Pastor Ronald Egerton got homecooked dinners as usual during the month his wife, Mary, was away on holiday. She cooked 31 pork, chicken, beef and sausage meals, wrapping them in tin foil, packing them carefully in the deep freeze, and leaving carefull instructions for the reverend on how to heat them.

Pelican Pesterers

LIMA, Peru (UPI) —Pelicans aren't curiosities in Lima. They are pests. During the winter, when the pelicans have trouble finding their usual supplies of fish, they invade the city's vegetable markets and stroll across downtown streets, disrupting traffic, but evoking laughter with their stately dignity and awkward takeoffs and landings in markets where people are trying to shop.

Oregon grows most of the nation's ryegrass.

Minority Group Firemen Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Board of Supervisors ruled Monday that future applicants for jobs as firemen must have lived for at least three years in San Francisco.

The change, made to encourage the enlistment of minority group firemen, was passed unanimously.

Previously applicants had to have lived for at least three years within 30 air miles of the city.

Transfer Of Kidney Unit Urged

The board of supervisors yesterday asked the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin to see whether one of San Francisco's six kidney treatment centers could be moved to Marin.

The board tacked the request as a rider, onto unanimous approval of a health planning council report that said Marin should not go to the expense of setting up its own dialysis center for kidney patients. The available chronic-treatment centers in San Francisco are not operating at capacity, the council report said.

COULD SUFFER

Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator, said if a Marin kidney center were established despite the council's findings, Marin might suffer when it soughtregional health planning approval for other medical projects.

"If we're going to be regional, let's start being regional — let's not isolate Marin," Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said. "Why can't one of those six units be transferred over to Marin?"

Board chairman John F. McInnis, whom Arrigoni called "the father of regional government," replied, "You shouldn't have askedthat question. The regional comprehensive health planning council may become a regional government that may replace us all."

McInnis warned that in terms of medical facilities, Marin is "rich. . . By population count and medical attention count we don't merit many of the things we have," compared to other Bay Area counties.

What's the council going to do — tell us we can't have many of the things we do have? There are too many questions regarding the regional approach that don't have any answers," McInnis said.

"Each and every month you're losing more options and authority," Campanella added.

TOO COSTLY REPORT

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin adopted on Nov. 18 its report that a dialysis center would be too costly in terms of equipment and staff, in light of availability of such centers in San Francisco. The report said Marin needed an emergency kidney machine for use in acute kidney failures, but that chronic treatment should be handled through San Francisco. The report required board action yesterday, Campanella told the supervisors.

Families of kidney patients in Marin have been urging creation of a Marin treatment center, and have been collecting Betty Crocker premium coupons to obtain a small machine.

Tiburon Appeal On Sewage Idea

The Tiburon Sanitary District board has called for formation of a citizens committee to help the district build a tertiary sewage treatment plant which would produce clear water effluent.

President Robert A. Sterling said the board called Monday for interested persons, especially members of conservation groups, to assist in planning and building the plant, which he said would be the first of its kind in California.

The $1.25 million plant would be built with a government grant, for which the district is applying. It would use an activated carbon filtering process to produce clear water.

Persons interested in serving on the citizens committee may submit their names to Sterling at the district's plant at 2001 Paradise Drive, Tiburon.

Bicycle Path Due Discussion

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the city hall, will discuss the status of city bicycle path proposals.

The commission will consider striping Doherty Drive to provide a four-foot wide bicycle easement, discuss negotiations with the Tiscornia estate on acquiring an easement for a bicycle path from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road and the integration of Corte Madera's planned bike paths with Larkspur's.

The commission also will consider setting criteria on the amount of land subdivision developers will be required to donate to public use and setting a timetable for master planning of city parks.

Legless YouthHas A Spirited Outlook

By BONNIE BARD

Danny Stankalis waited nervously in his wheelchair yesterday for a confrontation with the man accused of injuring him, but it wasn't to be.

The scheduled preliminary hearing was waived by Lewis Edward Meyers, 59, charged with felony drunken driving in the accident that cut off both of Stankalis's legs. Meyers will appear for arraignment in Sonoma County Superior Court next Tuesday at 9 a.m.

Stankalis, 17, chain-smoked cigarettes in the solarium at Hillcrest Hospital and joked to relieve the tense atmosphere as the first meeting with Meyers was anticipated.

When word was received from Judge Alexander J. McMahon that the hearing had been canceled, the youth said, "Boy, I'm glad of that," packed his belongings and was released from the hospital a few hours later.

Stankalis was injured on Nov. 17 when a car Petaluma police said was driven by Meyers struck him as he was bending over the motor of hiw own car making repairs. The impact of the bumpers acted as scissors on his legs.

His eyes bright and full of life, Stankalis wheeled around the hospital with youthful energy. His parents, Roger and Velma Vlastos, were obviously proud of his rapid adjustment to being an amputee and seemed to gain strength from his high spirits.

Stankalis said he hoped to be fitted with artificial limbs as soon as possible and to get back to full mobility.

With an attitude of hope and plans for the future, Stankalis hopes to collect enough money to build a future.

"All I want is money," he said. "I want to have bed sheets made out of $100 bills."

The family has attorneys preparing insurance claims, but his mother quickly reminded him. "It's going to be a long, drawn out process."

Mounds of cards and letters of concern from Petalumans have brightened the spirits of Stankalis and his family. "Everyone has been so kind, we certainly could never thank all of them personally," his mother said.

While in the solarium, Stankalis took a call from Paul Zell of Zell Furniture Designs of Petaluma offering him a job.

"He (Zell) says he's got a job I can do from my wheel chair," he said, beaming with assurance that he can still be useful.

With an eye to the distant future, Stankalis said he is thinking of working with the military in a medical program so that he can use his experience as an amputee to help men maimed in the war.

Chrysler Next

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers today turned its attention to Chrysler Corp., the last of the automotive Big Three without a national contract agreement with the union.

Ratification of its contract with Ford Motor Co. began today as the union's 166,000 members at Ford began voting on a tentative agreement.

TWA Scoffs At Collapse Rumor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Trans World Airlines (TWA) says it will lose up to $65 million on operations this year, but assured major financial backers rumors the carrier faced collapse "are completely unfounded."

Charles C. Tillinghast Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said in a formal statement after a 90-minute closed meeting that profits were expected for the airline in 1972 and 1973, with marginal results for 1971.

Tillinghast told newsmen the meeting had been scheduled for next month.

Economist Sees Joblessness Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Nathanial Goldfinger, the AFL-CIO's top economist, says unemployment will rise from the present 5.8 per cent to 6.5 per cent or more by next fall unless President Nixon initiates a "very decisive and very massive stimulus to the economy."

Goldfinger said an increase to 6.5 per cent would mean 5.5 million jobless and "it may be even higher because the whole trend in the economy today is one, unfortunately, of stagnation."

Bruce, Gardiner Reach A Truce In Juvenile Cases

A truce has been reached between County Administrator Alan Bruce and Judge Samuel W. Gardiner over the placement of juvenile court wards in institutions.

Judge Gardiner had threatened to hold Bruce and his assistant, Thomas F. Campanella, in contempt of court for interfering in such proceedings by refusing to approve the payment of county funds in some cases.

Concerned over the expense of placing youngsters in such institutions as Sunny Hills, where costs often run several hundred dollars a month, the board of supervisors had ordered Bruce to intercede.

Yesterday, Bruce, Judge Gardiner and County Probation Officer John W. Brewer agreed to work out a plan where the costs will be discussed before placements are made by the court.

Furthermore, Judge Gardiner agreed that it is reasonable that the county place a maximum amount on the funds that can be used for such placements, but not to make decisions on individual cases.

It is also planned that the county revenue officer will investigate the possibility of the families of the youngsters bearing a part of the costs, and if it is deemed they can, he will set up a payment schedule.

It is also planned that before such placements are made, a representative of the Community Mental Health Services will review each case to decide if there is a community agency that could be used instead of a private institution.

Bolinas PUD Panel Sets Closed Talks

Directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District will meet in closed session today at 7 p.m. to discuss hiring of a maintenance foreman. The district's foreman Edward H. Genazzi, died last week.

The board's regular meeting will follow the personnel session, according to clerk Jane Boyer.

Ice Age Fossil Discovery In Labrea Tar Pits Hailed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The discovery of prehistoric fossils of seeds, insects, twigs and leaves from the Ice Age was reported Tuesday and described by an archaeologist as "the equivalent of the discovery of King Tut's tomb"

Scientists digging in the Labrea tar pits adjacent to the county art museum here announced the find.

Project director George Miller said the discovery was unusual in that seeds, sod, leaves, branches and stems hardly ever remain fossilized. Also found were bones from an arctic musk ox.

Miller said a seed from a cypress tree which does not now grow in California and twigs from a now extinct juniper indicated that the climate in Southern California was much cooler 10,000 to 40,000 years ago than it is today.

Nixon Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will hold a nationally televised news conference at 7 p.m. Thursday, his first formal news conference since July 30.

City Votes Ban On Phosphates

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Detergents sold here after June 30, 1972, must be phosphate-free.

The City Council voted Tuesday to ban the sale of detergents containing phosphates after that date and, as an interim measure, ordered detergents to be labeled with their phosphate content no later than Feb. 1.

The ordinance contains a maximum penalty for the first offense of a six-month jail sentence and $300 fine.

Panel Backs Boise Park Land Offer

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended that the city accept the offer of Boise Cascade Building Co. to donate park land at its Oliva Ranch property, west of the city.

The firm plans to construct 215 townhouses at a 59-acre site and has offered the city 20 acres for park land between Novato Boulevard and Novato Creek.

At a recent city council hearing on the townhouse plan, neighboring residents protested that a city park in the area would create traffic and policing problems.

Parks and Recreation Dir. Edward W. Adams reported that the commission voted Monday night that the city should accept dedication of the land.

Commissioners also felt that the park preference survey taken by the Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce wasn't representative because only 1,271 persons responded.

The Jaycee survey showed opposition to the commission's position that a major park should be developed at the 67-acre O'Hair property at Novato Boulevard and Sutro Avenue.

Sixty per cent of the persons who responded to the survey preferred major park development at the 425-acre site west of San Marin High School offered for sale for a city park by G. J. Garlick and Associates of Salt Lake City.

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission also:

PIONEER PARK — Accepted the design plan for Phase II development at Pioneer Memorial Park, including a children's play area, restrooms, tennis courts and restoration of the cemetery area.

CITATION — Nominated the Novato Rotary Club for a citation by the California Parks and Recreation Society for its work in developing the Joyce Street lot and its work on youth employment.

ATTENDANCE — Received a report that attendance last month was 23,700, up 4,500 from November of last year.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Jan. 4 at the Novato Community House.

Probation Given In Drug Case

Eugene Breiskin Weiss, 26-year-old San Geronimo man now serving time in federal prison in Southern California for sale of LSD, yesterday was given straight probation for a drug charge in Marin by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court.

The judge first indicated he intended to give Weiss, who was being sentenced in absentia, jail time to run concurrently with the federal sentence. He was then pursuaded to impose only probation so that Weiss can attend college in a prison work furlough program.

Weiss had earlier pleaded guilty in absentia to a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana at his home on Oct. 29, 1969, when agents arrested him on the federal charge.

Wife Shot By Pillow Gun

HOUSTON (UPI) —Sherry Thrift, 53, was shot and killed in her sleep Tuesday by a pistol her husband kept under his pillow.

Thomas M. Thrift, 61, said the gun went off as he climbed out of bed and didn't realize the bullet had struck his wife until he returned to the bedroom from the kitchen after brewing their morning coffee.

Police charged Thrift with murder.

Library Expansion At Present Site Backed

The San Rafael Public Library should be expanded on its present site to offer all library facilities needed in the city, members of the library board agreed last night at a session with consultants.

A report from Ellis Kaplan, architect associated with the Consulting Organization of San Francisco, said the library is 8,500 square feet short of present needs and will be short 18,000 square feet by 1985, based on current population projections.

However, James Skelton, head librarian of University of California at Berkeley, urged that the board adopt a program of needed facilities and plan to provide space for them, rather than base planning on rule-of-thumb square footage. Board members endorsed this idea in instructions for Donald R. Hegstrom of the Consulting Organization, which is preparing a library expansion plan for the city.

Hegstrom proposed a survey for locations of "store-front branches" to carry the library to some who may not be familiar with it. However, James H. Mayer was backed by fellow board members in urging that this be put aside pending planning for complete facilities at the present Fifth Avenue and E Street location.

Additional parking poses the principal problem, members and consultants agreed, Mayer suggested parking might be provided under a second-story addition to the library.

A more complete report by the consultants is scheduled for the Jan. 11 meeting.

Board member Ella May Minneman was absent last night.

Switchboard Calls For Space

Switchboard of Marin needs money and quarters to resume operation, one of its directors said yesterday.

Reg Nedbal said the volunteer service's belongings are in storage at Marin Open House, until it can reopen. He asked that anyone who can help with either funds or office space send word throughPost Office Box 1346, San Rafael.

He said as soon as quarters are located he will obtain the necessary use permit from the San Rafael Planning Commission, and the switchboard will reopen with its old telephone number.

Other directors of the switchboard are Janice Betchauser and Alan Walzan, he said.

Victim Of Accident To See Own Doctor

A 15-year-old San Rafael girl was to see her own doctor for neck pains received in a two-car accident at 3:41 p.m. yesterday at Freitas Parkway and Northgate Drive.

She was Anne Violet Hunstock of 100 De La Guerra Road, a passenger in the car driven by her mother Mary Mae Hunstock, 47, westbound on Freitas Parkway. It collided with one driven north on Northgate by Marie Louise Davis, 26, of 10 La Brea Way, Apt. 23, San Rafael, according to police.

High Court Upsets Pot Case Ruling

The state Court of Appeal has overturned a 1969 decision by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior which freed two men charged with possessing 330 pounds of marijuana in Sausalito house almost two years ago.

Due to re-face the charges are Rodney John Shimmon, 37, of San Francisco, and Jeffrey Scott Meeler, 22, of Sausalito. Another man arrested during the Dec. 3, 1968, raid on the house at 43 Cable Roadway, Joel Anderson, 27, of Mendocino, is also still in the case but is only charged with possessing one pot cigarette.

The higher court ruled that Judge Wilson erred in ruling that the search of the house had been illegal. The judges said that police, who had gone to the house because of a suspected burglary, had the right to go inside when they saw a man run out the back.

They also had the right to return later, the higher court said, because they had seen large quantities of marijuana in plain view.

The officers said they also had found equipment for making methamphetamine.

Anderson and Shimmon had been arrested at separate times when they returned to the house. Anderson said that he was a former tenant and had come to pick up plants he had left there.

Both he and Shimmon had suspected pot cigarettes with them when they came to the house.

No date has been set for the case to be returned to the court calendar.

Innocent Pleas To Burglary

Susan Ellis, 24, and Linda Sue Burns, 22, both of 705-A Scott Street, Novato, have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglarizing an unoccupied Novato house on Nov. 22.

A preliminary hearing is set for tomorrow.

The women were arrested after reportedly taking books from an unoccupied house at 716 Lamont Avenue.

Bull Session Called On Courthouse Lot

Courthouse Square and how it could revitalize downtown San Rafael will be discussed at a public meeting of businessmen and property owners at 9 a.m. Friday in the council chambers at San Rafael City Hall.

The meeting has been called by the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce to see if any group of businessmen is willing to purchase the old courthouse from Marin County, said T. Robert Nelson, chamber manager.

An option on the property taken last February by Robert A. Roumiguiere, Wishard A. Brown and Ernest N. Kettenhofen expired Nov. 10. Since then, there has been no purchase offer. The county wants $767,000 for it.

Roumiguiere, a real estate dealer, will preside at the meeting at which he hopes to find out what type of development the merchants and property owners favor for the square.

"If some persons would rather see the courthouse saved as a historical monument or used as an ecological center, I hope they present their ideas at the meeting," he said.

Roumiguiere said that he hoped the meeting would produce a proposal for the property.

"Downtown San Rafael is too important to allow it to go downhill and the Courthouse Square could be the key to revitalizing it," he said.

He said that downtown San Rafael does not compete with Northgate or Corte Madera but gives San Rafael residents a place to shop.

He said that if a group of businessmen get some plans going, he feels certain that the City of San Rafael will help with traffic and Marin County will cooperate in the sale of the property.

Pan Am Asks To Drop Flight

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pan American World Airways, stating it has lost $3 million since the service started in 1967, has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) for permission to suspend flights from the U.S. mainland to Hilo, Hawaii for two years.

"What we have is a situation that is bleak, indeed, and one that cries for corrective action," Pan Am said in its brief to the CAB Tuesday. The airline already has suspended its San Francisco-Hilo run and has added a Honolulu stop to its Los Angeles-Hilo schedule.

A CAB ruling raised the number of U.S. carriers serving Hilo from three to eight and Pan Am said this was one of the major causes of its economic problems.

There usually are three to six racoons in a litter.

Protection To New Strains

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House has voted to give patent protection to developers of novel varieties of sexually reproduced crops, such as corn, wheat, cotton, barley, oats and rice.

The measure, which now returns to the Senate which has approved a similar bill, would allow developers of new strains of plants to get 17-year patents. Developers of new varieties of plants produced asexually through grafting or budding — such as roses and fruit trees — now get patent protection, but developers of new sexual varieties, have no patent protection.

The bill specifically exempts from patent protection development of new varieties of okra, celery, peppers, tomatoes, carrots and cucumbers.

It cost $100 million to build the Suez Canal.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Record Shop Visit Reveals Networks' Generation Gap

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—I went down to my friendly neighborhood record shop Tuesday for my weekly visit and checkup on what is being sidestepped on commercial television.

The networks, as you may have heard, say they are after the young audience. But you begin to think that maybe no one at a network ever sent anyone to a friendly neighborhood record shop to see firsthand some of the things the young audience is buying

Occasionally we do get some of the hot contemporary groups or singles on television, but the proportion of time allotted them is usually relatively small so that they make little impact on the audience video says it wants.

I mean, it's very thrilling that ABC-TV is giving a series next summer to British singer Val Doonican (who he?). But where are Joe Cocker and Richie Havens and Judy Collins and James Taylor and the Grateful Dead?

Look, Dean Martin is a gas. But where are Steve Sills and Ten Years After and Led Zeppelin and Paul Kantner and Jefferson Airplane and Cream and Elton John and Sky?

It's true that Arlo Guthrie and Bob Dylan and Randy Newman have done numbers on commercial television, as have other pop artists. But why don't they get a lot more air time? Why aren't conditions made attractive to them so that they will want to appear on the home screen?

And where are Laura Nyro and Santana and Chicago and Canned Heat and The Who and Tim Buckley and Phil Ochs and Sly and the Family Stone?

It is really a very odd thing that television, in its commercial quest for the rich young market, should give relatively limited attention to the art form that most often and most readily separates youth from its money—pop music records.

Occasionally, a network tries a series geared to such records —as with ABC-TV's "Music Scene," which failed in the ratings. The trouble has been that the right showcasing has yet to be found—one that will convince the desired audience of a program's commitment and integrity.

It is difficult to do this—to fit such a show into a network schedule admittedly made up primarily for the middleaged-to-older audience, which video has locked up.

But it would be a pity if the networks just give up on trying to find the right format and approach for the influential music of today.

Johnny Cash is part of the way there with his series. Whoever goes the rest of the way, with genuineness and know how, will not only strike a bonanza, but will score a major breakthrough.

The Channel Swim: ABC-TV's final Monday night pro football game of the season pits Los Angeles against Detroit next week ... Same network's "Wide World of Sports" this Saturday offers the Cassius Clay-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight in a replay . . . William F. Buckley Jr. is the guest on NBC-TV's "Laugh-In" Dec. 28.

John Wayne's recent NBC-TV show, "Swing Out, Sweet Land," got the highest rating of any program this season . . . Last Sunday's Bill Cosby-Dick Van Dyke special on the same network earned a smash overnight rating . . . Sen. J. William Fulbright discusses his book, "The Pentagon Propaganda Machine," on NBC-TV's "Today" show Thursday . . . Silent screen stars Gloria Swanson, Lillian Gish, Chester Conklin, Ken Maynard and Laura LaPlante appear on Merv Griffin's CBS-TV series next Wednesday.

LOVE, CHICAGO STYLE — Chicago's Bob Love (10), took a rebound away from Bob Portman of San Francisco (33), in the first half last night in Chicago, while Jim Fox of the Bulls (31), and the warriors' Nate Thurmond looked on. Chicago dumped the team from "The City," 98-87.

I'll Need 6 Weeks, Says Clay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay, his previously unmarked face still showing signs of his 15-round technical knockout over Oscar Bonavena, says he will be ready for a title showdown with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in six weeks.

"I could be ready for Frazier in six weeks," said the 28-year-old Clay, a bruise and a slight swelling showing by his right eye. "I don't care where or when the fight is after that."

A bidding war for the bout, the richest plum in sports history, has developed between New York's Madison Square Garden and Houston's Astrodome, but the most commonly discussed date is Feb. 17.

The fighters have already agreed to the terms of the bout, an even split of the $10-million receipts with 35 per cent going to each man. The Garden could be scaled for more than $1-million live gate with a top ticket price of $250.

At the present time, the Garden would seem to have the inside track in landing the bout since Clay does not have a license to fight in Texas and might have trouble getting one.

"The fight has not been signed with anyone or anywhere," said Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, "and anybody who says it has is lying. I can say it definitely will not go to Philadelphia, Boston or Chicago. I just want the best deal and so does Clay."

Frazier, who became champion after Clay was stripped of the title and banned from boxing in 1967 for refusing to go into the Army, has predicted a sixth-round knockout in the bout, but Clay says he is not making any prediction.

"I'm not going to make any prediction this time," explained Clay. "It's too dangerous."

Cassius, or Muahmmad Ali, tried so hard to make his prediction of a ninth round knockout over Bonavena come true that he almost got knocked out himself as he barged in recklessly.

However, by finally stopping Bonavena with three knockdowns in the 15th round, Clay succeeded where Frazier had failed twice. Frazier won two decisions from Bonavena in going a total of 25 rounds, and Bonavena knocked down Frazier twice in their first meeting.

"I'm satisfied with my fight for three reasons," Clay said. "I'm satisfied because I proved I had the stamina to go 15 hard rounds against the toughest man I ever fought. Second, I'm satisfied because I proved to everyone I can take a punch by taking more punches in one fight than I have in all my others. Third, I proved I could punch by stopping a man, putting him down, who had never been stopped before."

Prep Teams In Christmas Tournaments This Week

Marin County Athletic League high school basketball teams, which lately have been tearing up non-league competition in preseason action, play this week and next in annual Christmas season tournaments throughout Northern California.

In our own back yard, the Drake Pirates of San Anselmo host their sixth annual tournament tonight through Saturday. Besides Drake, San Marin, Terra Linda and San Rafael will represent the MCAL; Petaluma, Napa, Balboa of San Francisco and Montgomery of Santa Rosa complete the field.

In other events this week, Tamalpais and Novato journey to Healdsburg for the Redwood Empire Tournament tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, Marin Catholic plays in the St. Elizabeth tourney in Oakland tonight through Saturday, and Redwood travels South for the McClane Invitational in Fresno Friday and Saturday.

Without question the toughest of these events is that last one. Included in the field at Fresno will be three teams—Verbum Dei of Los Angeles, Berkeley, and San Joaquin Memorial — which have been listed among the top 25 high school teams in the country.

Redwood finished third in the tourney last year, and went on to a 24-3 season. This year so far, however, the Giants of Larkspur are 1-2, and could be over their heads at Fresno. Redwood meets Fresno in the first game of the tourney at 4 p.m.

The only MCAL team favored to win a tourney this week is San Marin. The Mustangs of Novato tuned up for the Drake affair by walloping Soquel of Santa Cruz County, 95-61 last Saturday night, with 6-foot-8 center Dana La Ferriere supplying 32 points and grabbing off 16 rebounds.

San Marin meets Drake tonight in a first round game at 6:30, after Petaluma and San Rafael clash in the opener at 5. Tomorrow the first round will be completed as Balboa and Montgomery square off at 5 p.m., and Terra Linda faces Napa at 6:30.

Tamalpais, which ranks slightly above San Marin as the preseason choice to win the MCAL title, would be favored to win their tournament in Healdsburg but for the presence of their first round foe, North Delta of British Colombia, Canada. The Huskies, who like the Indians of Mill Valley have impressive size and speed, are led by forward Dave Coutu, who averaged 23 points a game last season.

If Tam can get by the Northerners, the Indians should have little trouble running through the rest of the competition, although Novato has shown strength recently (an upset win over Petaluma last week), and could give them trouble.

Novato goes against Oakland Tech at 6:30 p.m. in a first round game that immediately precedes the Tam-North Delta confrontation at 8.

JIM GILMARTIN

Family Togetherness Key To Place Kicking

Because of family togetherness, Bobby Cooper of Novato High School had the best field goal kicking percentage in the Marin County Athletic League this past season, making 80 per cent of his three-point attempts.

That's because Bob's family helped him in practice. His dad would serve as center, his mom would hold the ball and his sister shagged the ball.

"It just goes to show," said place-kicker advocate Gordon Tovani of San Rafael, "the family that kicks together, sticks together."

Tovani, who has sponsored high school kicking clinics in Marin for the past few years, proudly noted that the MCAL made 93.2 per cent of its point-after-touchdown placements this season "which is better than the NCAA average."

And in field goal attempts, "our kids made 71 per cent as compared to the present professional league level of 67 per cent," he added.

San Rafael's John Morehouse, it was recalled by Tovani, made 18 consecutive PATs this season, an MCAL record, although he didn't attend any of Tovani's clinics. "I worked out with him during the summer, though," modestly added Gordon the Toe.

San Marin High's Urbano Boucsiequez booted three field goals in one game for a new California Interscholastic Federation record, and the 43-yard field goals by Urbano B. and Tam's Terry Rutledge this year were the longest in MCAL history, Tovani said.

Yep, they're really putting the foot back into football. Maybe we will produce a great one like New Orleans' Tom Dempsey who has rooted 63 and several 50-plus yarders this season. You'll see Dempsey on TV Sunday against the 49ers.

SAN RAFAEL HIGH can claim some of the strongest students in the county. Ray DeLeon, Dave Gottlieb and Oscar Guitterez, all SRHS students, were medal winners in the recent Junior Olympic Weightlifting Championships at Pacific. DeLeon took a first and Gottlieb and Guitterez seconds.

They eat their spinach.

WHEN COACH Charles Sava was inducted into the Swimming Hall of Fame at the Amateur Athletic Union in San Francisco Saturday, on hand to pay tribute to him were Beth Kaufman of Greenbrae and Ann Curtis Cuneo of San Rafael.

Both ladies are members of the Hall of Fame, Mrs. Kaufman for her great contributions to the sport as founder of the immensely successful Age-Group competitive program; and Mrs. Cuneo for her Olympic, national and world records back in the 1940s. Sava was Mrs. Cuneo's coach, by the way.

IT LOOKS like the great northwest will be loaded with football talen in the future. Of the six winners in the annual Pass, Punt and Kick Contest staged at Kezar Stadium Sunday, four of the youngsters were from the state of Washington and the other two from Oregon.

Rec Basketball

Lincoln Market beat Lawson and Dyer, 68-50, and the San Rafael Teachers edged Cal's Steakhouse, 60-57 last night in San Rafael Recreation Department adult basketball league games.

Water Polo Leader

Terra Linda High School remained undefeated atop the Marin County Athletic League water polo standings yesterday by defeating San Marin of Novato, 18-7. Bruce Fromberg paced the Trojans with five goals.

Slumping Warriors Move On

DETROIT (UPI) — The slumping San Francisco Warriors could use a day to regroup forces, but aren't getting it.

They play their third game on the road in as many nights tonight at tough Detroit, now 18-10.

The Warriors are riding a four-game losing streak and would be at an even .500 with a loss tonight. They lost 98-87 at Chicago Tuesday night.

Jeff Mullins, unable to play because of a cheek fracture, won't battle the Pistons either, but he thinks he'll be able to go Friday in Philadelphia.

San Francisco was 42.1 per cent from the floor at Chicago, but had 21 turnovers.

The game was closer than the score indicates as a final Bull burst widened the margin. Bob Love celebrated his 28th birthday by hooping 30 points for the winner.

Two 49ers 'Doubtful' For Saints

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Linebacker Skip Vanderbundt, who suffered a knee sprain against Atlanta, and halfback Doug Cunningham, who has a hamstring pull, are doubtful for Sunday's San Francisco 49er invasion of New Orleans.

The 49ers are 8-3-1 and battling Los Angeles and a trio of four-time losers for playoff spots while New Orleans is 2-9-1. But it was the Saints who tied the 49ers in one of the Prospectors' worst shows of the campaign.

Coach Dick Nolan explained Tuesday that the usual tradition of announcing the Len Eshmont Award winner at the final home game was abandoned last Sunday because the team has at least two more games. The award goes to the most inspirational player as voted by his teammates and will be announced the week before the Raider game.

The management also announced happily that more than 8,000 people had paid $10 deposits to establish priority for season tickets next year at Candlestick Park. Since this program did not involve the current 25,000 or so season ticket holders, it signifies a pickup of fan interest.

Nobody would speculate whether this represents support for a winning club or the shift to the more comfortable Candlestick Park

Supervisors 4-1 Against TV Blackout

Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday followed the lead of San Francisco and San Mateo County supervisors, in asking the Oakland Raiders to allow Bay Area telecasting of the Dec. 20 Raider-49er clash.

But John F. McInnis, chairman of Marin's board, kept the vote from being unanimous. "I think there is no more place on our agenda for this than there is for a peace referendum. How did it get there?" he demanded.

His fellow supervisors — obviously football fans all — reassured him that San Mateo County had asked for the resolution, and said they favored the idea because every seat in the Oakland Coliseum is sold out for the game.

McInnis was not mollified. "What would happen if we asked the (baseball) Giants to end their blackout?" he wanted to know.

It's not the same, argued the other supervisors. Besides, the New York Jets and New York Giants lifted their local TV blackout for their Nov. 1 football game. And the 49ers have agreed to televising the Dec. 20 game.

The vote was still only 4-1.

Santa Anita's Bronze Tribute To Shoemaker

ARCADIA, Calif (UPI) — A bust of jockey William Shoemaker has been commissioned by Santa Anita Park according to track president Robert F. Strub.

Joseph Portanova of Pacific Palisades, Calif., was given the task of creating a bronze bust of the all-time winningest rider. Strub said the bust will be a companion to the one of retired jockey Johnny Longden.

Both will stand in the paddock gardens at Santa Anita

FASHIONABLY FROZEN

Broadway Joe Namath, wrapped in a full-length fur coat and matching hat, watched from the sidelines as his New York Jets lost to the Oakland Raiders Sunday at Shea Stadium, 14-13. The star quarterback is out for the season with a broken bone in his right wrist.

Closed Door Practice For Secretive Chiefs

STANFORD (UPI) — The Kansas City Chiefs started workouts for Saturday's titanic tussle at Oakland with drills in Stanford Stadium - apparently.

Nobody but coach Hank Stram and his troops can say what happened for sure Tuesday because the practive was closed to absolutely everybody else.

"This game Saturday could mean everything to us," quarterback Len Dawson said. "The loser might not make the playoffs. It's similar to last year when we were playing for the championship."

Dawson noted that the Raiders had been going without tackle Tom Keating, who should be back Saturday.

"He's a heck of a defensive lineman; one of Oakland's keys," he said.

The Chiefs and Raiders are tied with 7-3-2 records and one of the two ties for both squads was the hysterical 17-17 tie they played earlier.

In that game, lest anyone forget, Dawson bootlegged for 20 yards to apparently ice a 17-14 Kansas City win. Ben Davidson roughly piled on Dawson and Otis Taylor of the Chiefs piled on Davidson. A fight started and the ensuing off setting penalties negated the play.

The Raiders got the ball back and George Blanda began the weekly sequence of last-gasp Oakland heroics with a 48-yard field goal in the last three seconds for the tie.

Dawson maintains there's no grudge held by the Kansas City team against Davidson, although he can't be sure of his team's fans. "Ben's just trying to do his job," Dawson said - following the old pro football quarterback's maxim of never riling up a defensive lineman.

In addition to Keating, the Raiders also listed Carleton Oats, the other starting tackle, as probable for the Chiefs battle. Running back Larry Todd was called questionable for the game.

Offensive tackle Harry Schuh called the Chiefs "a great defensive team." Contrary to the publicity, they really don't operate much differently from other teams, he said, "but they have that great personnel."

More Surgery For Johnson; This Time It's His Knee

HOUSTON (UPI)—Quarterback Charley Johnson of the Houston Oilers will undergo surgery Thursday to repair torn cartilage on his right knee, an Oiler spokesman said today.

The knee was injured initially in an exhibition game against the New Orleans Saints Aug. 15. He has had a metal brace taped to it in order to play, but it gets bruised in almost every game.

He suffered another such bruise in the first period against the Cleveland Browns Monday night and finally left the game in the fourth quarter.

It will be Johnson's second operation this season. He suffered a broken collarbone two months ago and had it pinned together surgically so he could resume competition.

Jerry Rhome, formerly of the Browns and Dallas Cowboys, will start for the Oilers against the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

Marin Tars Host Tourney

The surprising College of Marin Tars, having established their worth with four victories in their first five games, assume a co-favorite role in their own annual basketball tournament which begins tomorrow afternoon at Kentfield.

Junior College teams entered in the three-day tourney include two besides Marin from the Camino Norte Conference, Santa Rosa and Solano; Ohlone of the Coast Conference; Reedley of the Central Conference; and Sierra, Yuba and Napa of the Golden Valley Conference.

Ohlone of Fremont, undefeated in five games, ranks with Marin as a favorite.

The Tars, without a single returning letterman this year, have been outstanding so far. They racked up four straight wins before losing to Los Angeles City College, 67-59 in the finale of the Fresno Invitational tournament last Saturday night.

And most of the Tars' victories have come easily. They opened up with a 90-75 conquest of San Mateo, then beat Diablo Valley and Napa by 12 and 11 points before the trip to Fresno.

In that tournament, Marin disposed of Fresno City College, 57-49 and College of Sequoias, 75-64 before bowing to LACC.

One of the biggest reasons, figuratively and literally, for the Tars' success has been 6-foot-6 center Roosevelt Green. A transfer from San Francisco who did not play college ball last year, Green leads the team in both scoring and rebounding.

Close behind Roosevelt's average of 18 points a game is another San Francisco product, guard Joe Smith from Poly High School, who is averaging 15 points. Smith and Ron Small from Tamalpais anchor the backcourt and make Marin's fast break an explosive weapon.

The Tars' forwards are both 6-4 local products. Ed Herrnberger comes from Novato High School, Mike Peden from Terra Linda.

The only other team besides Ohlone that looks like a contender in this tournament is Santa Rosa, with a 3-1 mark so far. Those teams collide in the second game of the first round tomorrow at 5 p.m. Solano of Vallejo (1-3), plays Yuba of Marysville (2-2) in the opener at 3. In first round games tomorrow night, Reedley (1-3) takes on Sierra of Rocklin (0-4), at 7 o'clock, and Marin goes against Napa at 9.

Seals Entertain Canucks Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) — Vancouver skates into the Oakland Coliseum tonight fresh from a 4-1 pasting of the tough New York Rangers.

The California GoldenSealsare having no such triumphs. They're sliding along on a two-game losing string and still may be going without defenseman Harry Howell, hurt last weekend, and winger Norm Ferguson, out since Oct. 17.

Both have worked out this week but may not be ready for tonight's fray. Howell meets with doctors today to decide when he'll return to action.

The Seals lost 2-1 to Vancouver Canucks in their first meeting Oct. 20, but coach Fred Glover says "we didn't play as well as we could and didn't give Charlie (Vancouver goalie Hodge) a lot of hard shots to handle. He didn't have to move most of the time."

Towns' 75 Gives Him Lead At Pebble Beach

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI) — Ken Towns of Tracy ignored rains and wild winds to shoot 75 over the famed Pebble Beach course and take the second round lead in the $5,000 54-hole Northern California PGA Medal Play championship Tuesday.

Towns has 145 and a four stroke lead over three players, including first day leader Charles Leider of Crystal Springs who skied to an 81.

The Legend Of Notre Dame

In his scholarly work, "Notre Dame, Its People And Its Legends," the author, a legend himself, Francis Wallace, reports that, in 1928, a New York sportswriter, W.O. McGeehan, wrote that he had made a trip to South Bend "to investigate the rumor a university was located there."

HIS SKEPTICISM was understandable. Just as Germany was understood to be a country not run by an army but occupeid by it, just as some big businesses set up dummy corporations, or tanker fleets ship under Panamanian registry, Notre Dame was thought to be just a brand name for a traveling football team. It didn't own the team, the team owned it. Notre Dame was just a kind of complicated ventriloquism act.

THE CYNICAL legend went that Notre Dame had been founded in 1844 by Father Sorin but discovered in 1924 by Grantland Rice. It successfully fought off Indians, drought, fires, flood, cholera, prejudice and bigotry only to be captured by a football team.

It was a school to which the king of France (Louis Phillippe) once gave $700 — and the wags commented he just wanted to be sure of a season ticket. Or they say that like all institutions, it had small beginnings — they just put up the goal posts and went from there. Everyone on campus either wore a cassock — or cleats. It was always easy to tell a Notre Dame student: even if you couldn't see his number, you could tell by his gold helmet. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was a flop because people thought it was a football movie.

IT WAS the place where Rockne invented the forward pass, not where Julius Nieuwald invented synthetic rubber. It was a place where Math I was "Hike, hike, hike!" and where the verdigrised statues around campus were described as members of the punt-return team. "Abnormal Psychology" was a study in methods of getting a team to be 14-point underdogs. To Northwestern.

ACTUALLY, NOTRE Dame's greatest team never played in Yankee Stadium. Its goal was not the Cotton Bowl. George Gipp couldn't have coached it. It didn't have any Johnny "One Play" O'Briens. It was a 14-point underdog in every game on its schedule. It never went around shaking its finger at the sky and shouting "We're No. 1!" Its Victory Song was "Ava Maria" not "Cheer, Cheer For Old Notre Dame."

NOTRE DAME'S first national champions were a doughty bunch of French priests who hewed a university out of the wilderness. Its first Heisman Trophy candidate was their leader, Father Edward Sorin. All had become priests or brothes despite the ravages of anti-clericalism raised in the French Revolution and encouraged by Bonaparte.

They crossed the ocean in 39 days in steerage, barged down the Erie Canal like any other cargo. They played an 11-game schedule with the rules made up by the other guys.

SORIN RAN his team like any other top quarterback. He was dismayed to find that Indiana, where he founded his "university," was not really part of any French Northwest Territory (despite the presence of towns named "Napoleon," "Terry Haute," "La Porte," and "Vincen. s") and that he not only had to learn a new land but a new language.

He was a man of fortitude, gratitude and rectitude. He fought with the authority of the state, the city and his own church to erect his citadel of Catholic learnning. Amusingly enough his most exasperation was caused by the Irish whom he found pugnacious, disobedient and intractable, not given to authority, and once even went so far as to ban the wearing of the green on St. Patrick's Day.

BUT HE learned to live with his fighting Irish, little dreaming that one day, along would come a brokennosed, bald-headed, stammering Norwegian Lutheran named Rockne and a graceful, gifted but disdainful son of a Congregationalist minister named Gipp who would make his institution internationally famous — but for none of the reasons the French abbe in Le Mans foresaw when he gave Pere Sorin and his band of clerics 3,000 francs for passage to America to build a fount of Catholicism in the New World.

Succeeding heads of Notre Dame alternately have been embarrassed by, or awed by, the enormous incubus of football with the scholastic image outweighed by the athletic — and have sought periodically to stuff the full grown tiger back into the shoe box it came in.

BUT FATHER Ted Hesburgh and Edmund Joyce must do as Father Sorin would have done: accept the revenue, give thanks to God, rejoice in the diversion of the alumni and build a greater university. An ideal which can survive real Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death and can survive the Four Horsemen as well.

Rancho Cotate Cagers Triumph

Center Ron Seiler tallied 19 points and pulled down 20 rebounds to lead the Rancho Cotate High School Cougars past the Hogan High School Spartans, 62-47 in a non-league basketball game in Vallejo yesterday.

The win was the first of the year for the Rohnert Park team after three losses, and came at the expense of an unusually weak Hogan squad. Steve Wlodarczyk backed up Seiler with 15 points.

North Squad Named For Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — A 29-member North squad headed by quarterbacks Lynn Dickey of Kansas State and Dan Pastorini of Santa Clara was named Tuesday for the 22nd Senior Bowl Jan. 9.

The South squad for the nationally televised game at Ladd Stadium will be named later, according to Senior Bowl President Theodore K. Jackson.

Jackson said players will begin arriving Jan. 2 and drills will start two days later.

Dickey, who played despite rib injuries part of the season, amassed 2,136 yards to boost his career total to 6,208. Pastorini passed for almost 4,000 yards.

The two aerial artists will have a corps of fast, talented receivers in J. D. Hill of Arizona State, Henry Hawthorne of Kansas State, Sam Dickerson of Southern California and Herman Eban of Oklahoma State.

The North team's ground attack will be headed by Big Eight rushing champion John Riggins of Kansas, who netted 1,131 yards in 1970; Jim Harrison, a 238-pounder from Missouri who compiled 702 yards; and Boston College's Fred Willis, who had 1,007 yards in nine games.

The offensive line consists of tight end Doug Dieken of Illinois, centers Tom Beard of Michigan State and Leo Dillon of Dayton, and interior linemen Dennis Havig of Colorado, Larron Jackson of Missouri, Marv Montgomery of Southern California and Bob Newton of Nebraska.

The defensive unit features linebackers Dale Farley of West Virginia, Oscar Gibson of Kansas State and Phil Villapiano of Bowling Green.

Defensive backs are Tom Duncan of Toledo, Chris Farasopoulas of Brigham Young, Clarence Scott of Kansas State and Norman Thompson of Utah. On the line are Bob Bell of Cincinnati, Layne McDowell of Iowa, Tom Oesterling of UCLA, Jay Wallace of Missouri and Dave Walline of Nebraska.

Rounding out the squad is place kicker Tom Duncan of Toledo. Pastorini also is a place kicker and will handle punting chores.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Safe And Sure Winter Ideas

Millions of boats are in winter storage all across the country. Luckier boat owners in the south are just thinking about it. But everywhere, this week is a good time to take a second look for possible hazards at the spot where you are winter-storing your boat.

A spot near a chimney or close to a backyard incinerator is not good for obvious reasons. Sparks could set the boat on fire, burn its cover, or fill it with fly ash or half-burned junk.

ALSO, IF the area is treeless and exposed to high winds, give some thought to staking or weighting down the boat. On the other hand, don't park a boat too close to a building. It could be damaged by a snow slide or falling icicles.

If your boat is under a tree, consider the possibility of an ice storm or a heavy fall of wet snow. A boat could be wrecked by a heavy branch falling at such times. In general, small supple trees which bend instead of breaking under a snow load make a safer and often more effective windbreak.

MAKE SURE the boat sits so that rain and melting snow will drain off its cover. If your boat sits on a trailer, remove the trailer wheels for the winter. The wheels and hubs should come off anyway to check and lubricate the bearings. Coat the exposed axles with grease and take the wheels indoors for the winter. After tending to the bearings, store the wheel assemblies in cardboard boxes with about 10 pounds of air in the tires. Rest the trailer axle on concrete blocks for the winter to keep it from sinking into the ground during thaws.

There are many problems to winter storage as some of the questions we have been asked indicate:

Q. Should I clean all the marine growth off the bottom of my boat now that I have it stored in the backyard, or is it easier in the spring?

A. It will be 10 times as hard to get the mess off in the spring. Do it now! The longer marine growth is left on the bottom of a boat, the dryer, harder and more stubborn it gets.

Q. I have a couple of gas tanks, a battery box, a few life preservers and all our boating gear stored in the boat for the winter. A friend tells me that this is bad. Is it?

A. Yes, it's bad for two reasons. First, unless the boat is adequately supported, all this weight in it could conceivably ruin its shape so that it will not run properly next summer, Secondly, some of this "stuff" could mark the interior of the boat indelibly with rust, stains and discolored spots. Also, it is not good for life preservers or other fabric materials to be left in a boat all winter. Take them inside where it is warm and dry.

Q. Is an old unheated, well ventilated building (a barn) a good place to store my big wooden boat?

A. This is the best possible place. When wooden boats are stored in heated buildings, they tend to dry out excessively. The only thing you should be sure to watch is that the boat has good support. Make certain the keel is blocked up in many places, so that the hull won't change shape from its own weight.

Q. My friend says that I should cover my bright red fiber glass boat to protect it from the winter sun. Will it fade?

A. If it doesn't fade, it is almost sure to change color in some way under the actinic rays of the sun. If you don't want to cover it, be sure to store it so that each side gets the same amount of sunlihgt. Then, if it fades, at least it will change color evenly and you probably won't notice it.

Q. Is it all right to leave the outboard motor on the transom of my boat? I am storing the craft on its trailer behind the garage.

A. Yes, this is all right as long as you service the outboard motor (winterize it) and cover it. Be sure to put a block under the skeg of the motor so that it takes all the weight off the transom of the boat.

Q. I have no garage to store my wooden boat. Can I leave it outside with a canvas over it?

A. There's a danger with canvas that it will tend to keep water in contact with the wood. Tar paper or thin plastic sheeting may be better. Canvas or tarpaulin is best if you build a light frame. Then, keep the boat under a sort of tent constructed from either of these materials.

Q. Do I need to do anything to the fittings and deck hardware?

A. Not usually. Most hardware is either brass, chrome plated brass or stainless steel and even a Minnesota winter can't do much damage to these metals.

Q. What do you consider the most important thing to watch for in storing a fiber glass boat?

A. There's no question about it, the most important thing is support. The resins in the fiber glass boat are really viscous liquids and they change shape when pressure is applied to a few places for a long time. Metal will usually spring back into shape, but any "set" imparted to a plastic or wooden boat is apt to be permanent. Any distortion, of course, will cause the boat to run poorly next summer.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Itek's Potential Very Interesting

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like your opinion on Itek Corp. — D.M.

A. Although definitely not for "widows and orphans," volatile Itek has good long-term rebound possibilities. Between 1962 and 1967 these shares appeared to know no upside limits, reaching a record level of 172½ while sales and earnings soared. At the 1967 peak, shares were trading at a multiple of 47, compared with the present level of 24x estimated 1970 net of $1.25 a share. This appraisal, although sharply reduced, is still generous — in terms of actual earnings performance in recent quarters — reflecting the glamor that investors attribute to Itek in particular and the fields of high technology in general. In the first nine months of this year, sales fell 11+ in direct proportion to the decline in Government contracts.

A $4.8 million Air Force radar contract received in July helped stem the ebb in backlog. However, finances are good, working capital increased 25 per cent to $43.9 million in the twelve months through Sept. 30 and long-term debt is well below $9 million.

Q. I am thinking of investing $10,000 in a high-rated bond with short maturity. In addition I would like your opinion on my purchasing 100 shares of Outboard Marine, Pacific Gas & Electric or one of the Standard Oils. My salary is not sufficient to support my daughter and myself. — B.G.

A. In view of your evident need for additional income, bonds, supplemented by a high yield common stock, would be suitable. There are a number of high-rated bonds maturing in five to seven years, which meet your portfolio requirements. Two qualifying issues are: Appalachian Power 8⅝s of 1976, selling at a premium to yield 7.4 per cent to maturity, and American Telephone 7¾s of 1977, yielding 6.9 per cent to maturity.

Your broker may suggest another equally suitable bond, since these issues come to market frequently. Of the stocks which you mentioned, I would favor Standard Oil of New Jersey for its 5.2 per cent dividend return as well as its above-average growth potential.

Original Waterbed Maker Opening Outlay in San Rafael

A new opening in San Rafael is Innerspace Environments, Inc., a manufacturer of waterbeds, at 580 Irwin Street.

The company has leased 3,600 square feet on the ground floor through John J. Hourihan of Grubb and Ellis Co. William Shirley still maintains some space in the rear of this building for his printing operations, and the Department of Human Resources Development is taking over the second floor, also leased by Hourihan.

Innerspace's initial production will be about 300 units a week at this manufacturing plant which will maintain a staff of 10 persons, headed by Bruce E. Harlow of Muir Beach, vice president in charge of production.

The company was formed two years ago and has its main office at San Francisco and also a plant in Chicago. Main retail outlet for the waterbeds, which are said to have been invented by Innerspace, will be through the Slumberland Mattress Co. chain. The latter has about 400 stores in the United States.

SIERRA NATIONAL BANK has received permission from the Regional Administrator of National Banks to relocate its Corte Madera office from 5587 Paradise Drive to 56 Corte Madera Shopping Center.

This is presently an office of Household Finance Corp. whose regional headquarters in San Mateo reports that the Corte Madera office will be closed and have its operations merged with the San Rafael office at 887 Fourth Street.

Remodeling work will have to be done before Sierra National relocates in the center. An opening is not anticipated much before the end of January.

THERE IS A NEW NAME for the Mam'Selle Beauty Bazaar in the Corte Madera Shopping Center — now called Generation Gap..

Teamed with Diane Mehl in the new operation are Ronald McAllister, former owner of Maison d'Or Coiffures, and Rey Richardson, who owned Chez Les Girls, both located in San Rafael.

The salon has been extensively remodeled and redecorated and has a new men's section — where men can have their hair styled while wives are being serviced in another section by one of the five stylists. A grand opening is now being held, featuring a one-time introductory offer through Dec. 31.

Vilas

Isaacs

RICHARD S. ISAACS of Belvedere has been named manager of the San Francisco office of J. Walter Thompson Co. For the past two years he has been a vice president and director of client services. He succeeds Harry Lee, who has been appointed to the new post of manager of business development.

ROBERT M. VILAS of Nicasio is observing his 25th anniversary with Bank of America. He has been manager of the Point Reyes branch since 1965 following four years at the Mill Valley office. He has spent his entire career with the bank in Marin County and has served at many of the local offices.

A THRIFT HONOR AWARD has been presented to the Hamilton Air Force Base Federal Credit Union by the National Credit Union Administration for stimulating savings among small savers. The air base union attained a monthly growth rate of 3.9 per cent in accounts under $1,000, well above the average for federal credit unions of its size.

This credit union has been in existence since 1954 and on Oct. 31 has 4,117 members who had saved $2,351,389. Frank McGill is president. E. F. Pritchard is treasurer.

Gas-To-Pulp Process Told

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Crown Zellerbach has developed an experimental process for converting ethylene gas into synthetic wood pulp which can be manufactured into paper on conventional paper making equipment.

Ernest A. Mitchell, executive vice president, said, "Our principal objective has been to produce a synthetic fiber within sound economic parameters which was suitable for paper manufacturing."

In Tokyo this week, Crown Zellerbach and Mitsui Petrochemical Industries Ltd. announced an agreement to negotiate on a possible joint venture to manufacture synthetic woodpulp for the Japanese home market.

Cost of Murder Trial: 33 Cents on Tax Rate

What does it cost to try a murder case?

For the taxpayers of Lassen County, it will cost 33 cents on the tax rate this year — maybe more.

What bothers the Lassen residents most is that the case already has been tried and paid for once.

The trial that added 33 cents to the tax rate won't even be held in Lassen County. It will be in Eureka, Humboldt County. But Lassen taxpayers must pay for it.

The case makes plain the little recognized cost impact of the legal process.

IN AUGUST, 1967, Jesse Levoy DeForest and his wife Mary Jeanette were found slain in their ranch home outside of Susanville, the Lassen County seat, and Keith E. Utterback of Hoopa, Humboldt County, was found murdered near Bogard in Lassen National Forest. All three had been stabbed and shot. Sheriff's investigators concluded they were the work of the same killer or killers.

About a month after the killings William Tidwell, then 21 and recently discharged from the Army, and his brother Robert, then 19, were arrested in Redding. Possessions of the DeForests and Utterback were found in the Tidwells' home.

The two Tidwells were tried separately before Judge Stanley Arnold in Lassen County Superior Court. James Pardee, court-appointed attorney for William Tidwell, twice moved for a change of venue. Twice it was denied by Judge Arnold.

Both youths were convicted and sentenced to death. They were received on San Quentin Prison's Death Row on Feb. 5, 1968.

ATTORNEY PARDEE appealed on the basis that a change of venue should have been granted to assure a fair trial. He had 500 Lassen County citizens interviewed. All but five of them had heard the case discussed, he reported, all but 13 had heard or seen radio and television reports, all but 31 had discussed the case with friends. And, he said, "the vast majority of the persons interviewed were of the opinion that they would be unable to set aside the views they held and try the case fairly on the basis of the evidence in court."

This, insisted attorney Pardee, proved the Tidwells could not have had fair trials in Lassen County.

The California Supreme Court in August of this year agreed, by 6-to-2, and ordered the pair remanded for retrial in a different jurisdiction. On Oct. 29, the Tidwells were returned to the Lassen County Jail at Susanville to await the Eureka trial.

THE CASE ILLUSTRATES two things. The lengths to which the oft-berated "system" will go to assure fair trial for those accused of crime, and the cost this may impose on the taxpayers.

In a large county, the cost of a murder trial is submerged among the many millions of county expense. In a county the size of Lassen (assessed valuation, $35.6 million) it is all too evident.

The Lassen County Board of Supervisors added 33 cents to the tax rate to pay for the new trial — hoping that will be enough. It may not be. Expenses may have to be cut elsewhere to assure the brothers Tidwell their second trial by a presumably less prejudiced jury in Eureka.

Stellar And California Jays

The bird books tell us that the black-crested stellar jay prefers the tall coniferous forests where he can fly from tree-top to tree-top while calling in a crow-like voice, while the smooth-pated California jay favors the live oaks of the coastal region with their acorns to supplement his diet.

In Marin and Sonoma and in most of the Northern California coast counties, we have the remains of both kinds of forests. And we have an abundance of both kinds of these highly adaptable, very vocal birds.

Apart from shouting at each other, they seem to get on all right together. We often see them sharing seats on the same fence.

For birds so willing to quarrel with any creature, this is an accomplishment.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Law Virtually Mandates State To Raise Its Employees' Pay

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The wisdom of "freezing" state salaries is open to question as the state goes forward on short rations for the approaching fiscal year.

The state personnel board which in view of the delicate fiscal situation probably would have liked to skip recommending pay increases this year, nevertheless was virtually forced to recommend more than $100 million for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

Commenting on the recommendation, the board said:

The board is aware of the current depressed economy of the state, increased unemployment, and revenue problems.

Nonetheless, the board has a legal obligation to report the facts concerning salaries and fringe-benefits as accurately and objectively as possible.

And in the reporting, the board recommended that $60 million from the general fund and $43 million from special and other funds be appropriated for salary increases for state civil service employees next fiscal year.

OF COURSE, the board's recommendation is not final. Both the legislature and the governor may veto the recommendation but the board's guidelines will be given plenty of consideration, as well they might be, as the board spends many thousands of dollars maintaining statistical data to prove to the legislature it is carrying out the mandate in the law.

This mandate requires that the salary raise "shall be based on the principle that like salaries shall be paid for comparable duties and responsibilities. In establishing or changing such ranges, consideration shall be given to the prevailing rates for comparable service in other public employment and in private business."

Thus, the state could not, even if it wanted to, avoid increasing taxes every year to pick up the tab for the state employees' pay increase.

So, because of a virtual "freeze" in the law, which comes close to requiring the state to increase salaries regardless of the economic situation, taxpayers are to be hard hit in a time of economic stress.

IN ADDITION, the personnel board expands on its recommendation for state employee benefits.

The board, in addition to $100 million in salary raises, suggests that now is the time to add unemployment insurance benefits to the fringe benefits for state employees.

More than 30 years have elapsed since this proposal was first advanced, and it has been only lately that it has been taken seriously. Originally, the idea was that the state employees received sufficient holidays and other benefits to offset a demand for unemployment insurance.

But with the avid demands on government for more and more

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Source Of Illegal Apartment Figure

In recent letters to the editor, at recent city council meetings and in your editorial of Nov. 30, I have been quoted as having said that there are 150 to 200 illegal second units in single family zones in the City of San Anselmo. The public should be made aware that I did not make such a statement and that I have no idea how many illegal uses might exist in San Anselmo.

I believe that the misunderstanding is a result of your report of the meeting of the San Anselmo City Council of Sept. 8, 1970 which appeared in the Independent-Journal on Sept. 9. Your report stated, "Charles R. Leitzell, the city's public works director, told the council there are about 150 to 200 such illegal uses in the city and that they would be brought to the council's attention as the city discovered them."

What I actually said was in response to a question by Councilman (Woodrow V.) Capurro asking me how many non-conforming uses were in San Anselmo. I replied, " ... 100 to 200, I believe, and, of course, we show these as non-conforming uses, some are not, some are illegal uses ... the law, the zoning law, did allow the non-conforming uses to remain as long as they remained in continuous use."

Normally I would not request a correction but the I-J story has been so frequently quoted that I feel it is in the public interest to correct the reported statement.

Questions Raised About Our Schools

The following questions need to be considered and resolved:

1. When will our school board members awaken to the fact that the continuous failure of bond and tax elections is the only means left to irate citizens of expressing their disapproval of spineless board members, incompetent administrators, untrustworthy teachers, and unruly students?

2. When will the San Rafael board members dismiss some "undesirable characters" who are teaching at San Rafael High School and who will receive tenure unless gotten rid of now? And who recommended these "characters" in the first place? . . .

3. Why haven't the San Rafael school board members insisted on rigid student and teacher discipline, and proper patrolling by deans, to put a stop to this endless bodily violence, making it unsafe for a girl to walk the halls and to the bathroom? . . .

4. When will the San Rafael board acknowledge its negligence in permitting this cancerous condition to develop beyond administrative control? . . .

5. Since when is it "wrong" for students to meet at noon voluntarily to share their faith with pot addicts and problem kids who have "hang-ups" which only Christian love and concern can solve, as expressed by the Christian kids on campus?

6. Why has the College of Marin Board committed racial discrimination in permitting a "Black Room" on campus, where white students, teachers, and even the police are not permitted, and are afraid to enter?

When these questions are satisfactorily resolved, confidence in our school system will be restored.

Another Side To Salary Issue

The Nov. 17 editorial in the Independent-Journal reflected your concern that public officials in the Dixie School District should keep their word to the electorate by not granting pay not been considered by your newspaper.

The Dixie Teachers Association has recently asked for an 11.8 per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1, 1970. This increase would bring the salary schedule up to the median standard for bay area school districts for last school year.

The teachers did not ask for a raise last April at the customary time for negotiating salary increases because the Dixie district was in financial trouble. We did not intend to ask for a raise unless additional state funds were allocated to the district. We were assured by Dr. Clifford Campbell, district superintendent, in a letter attached to our contracts, that should additional state money be allocated to the district salary increases would be considered.

Since that time, $379,000 in additional funds have been allocated to the district by the state. The board of trustees has budgeted the additional funds to strengthen reserves and reduce the tax rate. No funds have been allocated to increase teacher salaries.

When additional money became available from state sources beyond that needed to sustain the current operating budget, the tax rate was reduced, the reserve fund increased, but the Dixie teachers, who are paid less than most other Marin County teachers, were told to tighten their belts. The low priority given to teacher needs cannot help but affect our morale and effectiveness as teachers.

Nixon Moving To Save Economy — And His Own Political Career

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The upcoming 1972 election seems likely to save the United States from economic calamity.

President Nixon is substantially altering his anti-inflation game plan. Politics is one of the reasons.

He is moving decisively away from economic restraint to economic stimulus. His goal: full employment in 1972.

He is combining political necessity — for his own re-election — with economic good sense.

HIS ACTIONS come none too soon.

If President Nixon did not begin to move now to bring about an early reduction in unemployment, the economy would remain dangerously sluggish and the prospects of his re-election would be in peril — or worse.

Mr. Nixon has made no secret of the fact that the "economic drag" hurt his party more than anything else in the November elections. His intention is to turn this political liability into a political asset for 1972.

The most significant fact to emerge from his address to the National Association of Manufacturers last week is the extent to which liberal Democratic economic policy and conservative administration economic policy are coming together on what needs to be done.

The President is now beginning to do it.

THE NATION seems to have lost its bipartisan foreign policy, but it is acquiring a bipartisan economic policy.

Compare what the liberal economics, like Walter H. Heller of the University of Minnesota, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers under both Kennedy and Johnson, have been urging the administration to do with what Mr. Nixon now says he is going to do. The areas of agreement are large and the differences hardly visible.

They are agreed that the federal budget should be expansionist and therefore in deficit for a period. That is being done.

They are agreed that the federal budget should be planned to be in balance at "full employment." That is being done.

They are agreed that the money supply available to the economy should be increased. It is.

They are agreed that interest rates should come down. They are.

They are agreed that the President must take a tougher, more activist role to achieve wage-price restraints by both management and labor. His NAM speech showed he is doing that — call it jawboning or not.

TO UNDERLINE that he was speaking for both the administration and the Federal Reserve Board, the President put this significant statement in his NAM speech: "I have been assured by Dr. Burns (head of the Federal Reserve) that the Federal Reserve System will provide fully for the increasing monetary needs of the economy."

He added: "I am confident this commitment will be kept." Burns had been shown this paragraph and approved it.

Obviously the President is not openly saying that he is significantly changing his economic game plan at half-time. Presidents don't do it that way. When F.D.R. was preparing his re-election campaign in 1936, he asked his closest adviser, Judge Samuel Rosenman, how he could get around his 1932 statement that he would balance the federal budget by a 15 per cent cut in spending. After pondering for a week, Rosenman replied: "Deny you ever made it."

President Nixon is understandably putting it this way: "Even before the results of our anti-inflationary actions became fully apparent, our plan called for moving the economy up toward its full growth potential in a way that would not bring about a new round of inflation."

NO ONE CAN fairly say that this part of the game plan was never in the back of someone's mind in the White House, but it was not on the public record. No matter. A change is needed. The President is making it.

He is acting just in time both for the nation's economic recovery and his own political survival.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

'System' Reform Falls Short When Good Will Lacking

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — We hoary upholders of "the System" looked pretty silly the other day after the House Rules Committee got through with the bill to create an independent consuemr protection agency. On the surface, it was the best / worst example in recent memory of what's wrong with the existing version of the democratic process.

The bill that was defeated, or some version of it, is urgently needed to give the consumer at large a voice in the federal government independent of the existing cabinet agencies and the ostensibly regulatory agencies. They have evolved into a cozy client relationship with the industries they are supposed to regulate.

But whether you are for it or against it, its passage clearly was the will of Congress. The Senate passed such a bill 74-4. The House Government Operations Committee cleared it 31-4. But when it reached the Rules Committee it hung up on a 7-7 tie vote; thus it will not reach the floor in this Congress.

Next year, its advocates will have to start all over.

THE FACT that such a thwarting of majority wishes is possible provokes another shriek for reform of the rules of Congress, particularly those of the House. This year, for the first time in 24 years, a few important legislative reforms were enacted — although none of them dealt with the death grip the Rules Committee still holds on lawmaking.

During the long, mostly cut-and-dried debate over House reforms, nobody ever held out serious hope that the seniority system of committee chairmanships would be affected, for example. Had it been changed, Rep. William Colmer, D-Miss., would still be chairman of the Rules Committee for the time being, but his reign would be limited.

Colmer, who does not list his birthdate in his biography in the Congressional Directory, is 80. The next two Democrats on Rules are 78 and 69 years old.

SINCE EFFORTS to legislate changes in the seniority rule fell through, caucuses on both sides of the House have moved toward party positions of moderate reform next time the issue arises.

The Republicans, who as the minority have nothing to lose in chairmanships any time soon, have agreed that election of House chairman should be subject to secret ballot on demand of any member. The Democrats have moved tentatively that way and made soft noises about putting an age limit of 70 on any incoming chairmen.

If either of these changes already had been in effect when the consumer agency bill reached the Rules Committee, the outcome likely would have been different.

In fact, however, the bill could have been cleared for the floor this year if the leaders of the House had exerted their muscle, despite Colmer's personal opposition.

NOT ONLY the conservative chairman but two other Democrats voted against clearing the bill. And another, who has aspired to the House speaker's chair, the majority leader position and the Rules chairmanship at various times, did not bother to break his vacation to come back to Washington to vote.

It was that strange refusal by Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo,, that was the key to the bill's defeat. Bolling was vacationing in the West Indies. When the head count in the committee came down to a likely tie, the bill's sponsors put out emergency calls to bring Bolling back. The Motorola Corp., one of the few big-business backers of the bill, offered to send its plane down to fly him to Washington. But he declined and the bill died.

What is proved by analyzing the consumer agency bill's defeat is that it was not "the System," archaic as it is, that buried a measure with such wide approval among the membership of both houses. It was the human element — lack of adequate leadership, lack of dedication by members in critical spots. Even a reformed congressional system cannot function in

It's easy to believe predictions that Marin's in for a long, rough winter The late November storms were the kind that usually don't arrive until very late in December or more likely in Januray and February

For some strange reason, the motorists didn't seem psychologically ready for the early onslaught of winter Accidents and near-accidents soared

Even the ski buffs seemed to have been caught unprepared The really serious ones annually put themselves through a cumulative series of athletic tortures to get themselves in shape for the hazards of the slopes. On the theory, I guess, that they'll break fewer bones when they take a tumble

So now a bunch of snow addicts are suffering aches and pains from trying to speed up their conditioning too fast.

TURNING FROM the mountains to San Francisco Bay. it's possible the Marin Conservation League has some good points in its proposal to put a Central Marin ferry terminal at Point San Quentin rather than on Corte Madera Creek.

Neither Larkspur nor Corte Madera city fathers can be very happy over the idea, but the league points out that the state owns 500 acres of already filled or diked land there. If the terminal were on the point, ferryboats would not have to navigate nearly two miles of dreaded channel, with its fog hazards, nor would their wakes pound against neighboring marshlands

The boats could move faster — about 20 minutes per round trip. the league contends.

AND NOW LET US tell the inside tale of downtown Larkspur's wondrous health food store sign.

The sign glows in many colors on the store at 460 Magnolia Avenue where Chris Rosenfeld purveys his natural products. The same "Dickens" who created the glittering mural that adorns the city's building in the park at the foot of Madrone Avenue, painted the shop sign.

John W Appleton, superintendent of city planning and building, put the sign on the carpet at a meeting of the city planning commission the other night

Appleton said the original sign permit called for black lettering on a white sign. He shunned making a recommendation. merely passing among the commissioners a color photo that barely captured the sign's hues

Rosenfeld said his fellow downtown merchants think the sign "brightens up" the area

"Is it lighted?" asked Commissioner Joseph N. Picetti "No, it glows in the dark," said chairman Robert H Lee. laughing.

"It's been suggested I put black light on it," said the serious, polite young Rosenfeld.

The commissioners thanked Rosenfeld for waiting patiently more than three hours for his hearing. Then they unanimously voted to let the sign remain

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

If Dismissals Are Purge, Hiring Practice Is Perfect

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The fat was in the fire this week at Fresno State College because 13 faculty members were denied tenure or new contracts and two administrators were demoted.

Two hundred and seventy of the college's faculty are teaching this year on probationary contracts Of these, 73 were up for tenure Once it is granted, the instructor has a lifetime job.

Of the 73. all but six were granted tenure Of the other 197 on probationary status, all but seven were offered contracts for next year

THIS SOUNDS as though Fresno State College has been doing a great job in picking faculty. Only 3.5 per cent of its probationary teachers not eligible for tenure have been found wanting Only 8.2 per cent of those eligible to receive tenure will be denied it

(It should be born in mind that at the state colleges and university, tenure does not come automatically but is determined by faculty committees and the administration. In California's junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools, it is automatic.)

In most fields, a personnel department would receive high praise if more than 90 per cent of its hirees proved good enough to keep permanently. It is different. however. in the education field Refusal to hire or give tenure to 13 faculty members at Fresno State has been branded a "political purge."

THERE HAD BEEN rumblings of such a purge when it was disclosed over a month ago that one dean and two instructors had been notified they would be rehired for a fifth year without being granted tenure (which customarily comes at that point). and that five others had been notified they would not be rehired. (These presumably are among the 13 announced this week.)

"I am part of a political purge that is ruthless in the sense that it is willing to sacrifice academic excellence for political goals," said dismissed Everett Frost, assistant professor of English, on Nov. 2

Ralph C Rea, acting dean of the college's school of humanities, said at that time that two philosophy teachers would be let go because of overstaffing in the department. To this, James Smith, department chairman, commented; "To our knowledge this is the first time anyone has been terminated because of overstaffing."

If Professor Smith is correct, it would seem the college not only does a remarkable job of hiring competent personnel, but an even more remarkable job of predicting class loads. With the student interests and areas of emphasis, it appears little short of miraculous that no department ever got overstaffed until this year

This week, nothing was said about overstaffing. But four of the discharged (as of next June) faculty members joined in branding their dismissals "a political purge."

SUPPOSE THEY are correct. Last May, Fresno State was wracked by rioting, during which a school official was held hostage in a college building by militants protesting the U.S. invasion of Cambodia. Faculty members — at least one of whom is among the 13 being "purged" — participated in the uprising.

After similar dismissals last academic year at San Francisco State College, there were the same cries of "political purge." An editorial in the Phoenix, student newspaper, at that time called attention that the protesting faculty members had been active in disrupting the campus. and commented:

"Those who live by politics can starve by politics.

"If you play the game, you have to be willing to accept the penalties involved. If you don't like the rules, don't play.

"The teachers involved seem to have a one-sided approach to the political chess tournament on this campus, a convoluted logic that makes it all right for them to attack, retreat, or distort, but when the opponent follows suit it becomes unfair."

Of course, if the 13 dismissals at Fresno State College are reprisals for politicizing the classrooms, it must follow that the college has a 100 per cent record of never hiring an incompetent teacher

First Session On Joint Fire District

A study committee will meet tomorrow in Mill Valley to take the first steps in forming a consolidated Southern Marin fire district.

Attending the public session, to be held at 8 p.m. at city hall, will be representatives of the county of Marin, the cities of Mill Valley, Belvedere and Sausalito and the Alto-Richardson Bay, Tiburon and Tamalpais fire districts.

Carl O. Modell, member of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District board and chairman pro tem of the consolidation committee, said the group will discuss possible boundaries of the combined district — which agencies want to participate and which don't — and the difficulties involved.

These problems include combining various pension plans, pay scales, work weeks, bonded endebtedness and fringe benefits of the fire departments, the number and location of fire stations and establishing uniform protection for the district

Its benefits. Modell said. would be a large tax base (about $150 million), better service and greater ease in purchasing new equipment.

For example, he said taxpayers in the Tamalpais district would have to pay about 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation for a $60,000 fire truck, while the same vehicle could be purchased for only 2 cents per $100 in the combined district.

Once tentative boundaries have been drawn up, the plan would be submitted to the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The Southern Marin consolidation talks are being held despite a decision by the board of supervisors last Tuesday to consider at budget time next year whether to hire an outside consultant to study merger of all county fire districts. This move was suggested in October by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association.

County Administrator Alan Bruce said that possible countywide consolidation resulting from the study is years off, and should not preclude a less ambitious merger in Southern Marin.

Chief Charles E. Masten of the Sausalito Fire Department said he hopes the committee will follow the county's lead and hire an outside consultant to make a study. He called the consolidation "enormously complicated."

The U.S. population in 1930 was 122,775,046.

Terminal Discussion On Dec. 15

The hot issue of where to put the Central Marin terminal for the Golden Gate Bridge District's $15.3 million ferry system will be considered by the district's transportation committee at 8 p.m. on Dec. 15 at San Rafael High School.

The combatants in the controversy are the municipalities of Larkspur and Corte Madera and the Marin Conservation League. Each municipality wants the terminal in its jurisdiction — a facility that would enhance the value of adjacent lands and trigger other development.

The conservation organization, however, wants the terminal to go on San Quentin Point on the ground that this site would preserve valuable marshland at the mouth of Corte Madera creek.

Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, chairman of the committee, said the hearing was to permit all three to make full presentations of their arguments. The committee will not make a recommendation that night, he said.

THANKS TO OUR BORROWERS...

AND A LITTLE PRESENT, AS WELL.

During the recent unpleasant credit squeeze we had to work hard to get money to take care of your loans. We could not meet all loan requests. We had to raise interest rates, particularly on business loans, because the cost of our money was high. We tried to take care of everyone's real needs. We kept our rate increases as low as possible for consumers and home buyers.

We appreciate your patience and understanding during that period and are now in a position to reciprocate. We're doing it with lower rates which are now effective on business loans, consumer loans and real estate loans.

We now have money to lend.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Very Few Take The Trouble To Look Ahead During Game

In some bridge hands you can plan ahead very easily. You know exactly which tricks you must lose and you also know exactly what the opponents are going to do whenever they gain the lead. Nevertheless, few bridge players will take the trouble to look ahead. Perhaps most of us would rather not know what is going to happen to us.

IN THE DUMMY

Declarer took the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts and drew two rounds of trumps, discovering that West couldn't follow suit. South continued with two more rounds of trumps, and West discarded clubs.

Now South had to give up three diamonds to set up his last diamond. When South gave up the first diamond, the opponents returned a heart, forcing declarer to use up his fifth trump. When South gave up the second diamond, the defenders led another heart, forcing South to use up his last trump.

South had reached the end of his rope. When he gave up the third diamond, South could not stop West from taking the setting trick with a heart.

NOTHING TO PROTECT

The point of drawing trumps is to protect your side winners from a ruff by an opponent. Since declarer had no side winners to protect, he had no reason to draw trumps so early in the play.

After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, declarer should immediately give up a diamond. Back comes a heart, and South ruffs.

FORCES A RUFF

South gives up a second diamond and is forced to ruff a third round of hearts. But then South gives up a third diamond and is safe against a heart continuation because dummy is out of hearts and can ruff. It is for just this reason that the trumps are left in dummy.

South is enabled to keep four of his trumps and can therefore draw trumps no matter what West returns. He can then cash his side winners in safety.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ 5 4 3 2
♥ 9 8 6 2
♦ Q 10
♣ Q J 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

The conservative course is to pass, but you will seldom get into much trouble when you raise partner's major suit with four-card trump support.
